Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alton Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,202; Gerald Marks, 5,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Daly of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

New Traffic Study Is Set

blind student who attends Wheeling High School, and Irv Svoboda of the Elk Grove Lions Club. Local members will observe Candy Day tomorrow.

Plans are being made for a complete traffic study of Elk Grove Village, the cost of which has not yet been determined.

The village board voted Tuesday to secure proposals from a professional traffic planning firm to update and refine the traffic pattern system.

"It is obvious we have a heavy traffic flow right now," said Trustee Richard McGrenera. "I agree with the immediate importance of this study."

Need for the study, to be paid for by the Illinois Division of Highways, was recommended by Clayton Hansen, president of the consulting firm of Hansen, Schneeman and Associates, and Stephen Schwelzenbach, chairman of the plan commission.

IN HIS RECOMMENDATION, Hansen said there is a dire need for upgrading the traffic planning that has been done in the past.

He said traffic influences to the south and southwest have changed drastically in the past year. He added that the comprehensive plan is at least two-years old and that he did not agree in many of the recommendations it set forth.

Hansen said a traffic study was imperative in order to prevent the village from being choked off by industry to the east and high-density residential, commercial, and industrial development in the Schaumburg area.

He recommended preliminary work be undertaken to determine the location of inner and outer belts to handle large volumes of traffic.

Hansen also indicated that another study to determine the desired line of traffic flow to and from the village would be necessary. He recommended that such a study be delayed at least 18 months until further development of I-90, Higgins Road, Algonquin Road, and the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

SCHWELLENBACH SAID the comprehensive plan needs to be revised to provide more guidance for the plan commission.

He said in recent weeks the commission has been confronted with land development plans which contain important street and road extensions and that a revised study would make the commission's job easier.

"We believe a thorough review of our traffic pattern is warranted," said Schwelzenbach in his recommendation.

The study would include recommendations on street patterns, right-of-way and improvement standards, and on design standards for important intersections.

"We would suggest the study be directed to areas outside the village which are within our planning jurisdiction as well as areas within the village, whether developed or vacant."

Study Mail Votes

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,961 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,068 votes and Young, 15,401.

School Referendum Is Likely

There has been some speculation by Dist. 59 officials lately that taxpayers may be presented a referendum before the year is over.

But whether it will be a building or education bond referendum is still undetermined. The speculation was made while board members worked on the 1970-71 district budget.

The district, which has had 11 successful referenda in the last 13 years, covers 20 elementary and junior high schools in Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines.

The board's budget committee, under chairman Richard Hess, has been meeting on an average of two to three hours a week for the last couple of months to discuss the tentative budget, item by item.

According to Al Waltman, acting superintendent, "The board is not yet ready to make a decision on whether a referendum will be needed."

"WE HOPE TO COME up with some framework with which the board of education can make a decision. They should be finished with the tentative budget in two or three weeks and should be able to make their decision then."

Hess said, "There is no doubt that we have to get a tax increase." He also said nothing definite can be established until the committee is finished with the budget.

"We are trying to find out what is going to happen in the next five years and establish an amount that will be acceptable to us and the voters," Hess said.

"We are trying to maintain what we have and we couldn't maintain the present program next year on anticipated revenue."

Woodfield Starts

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

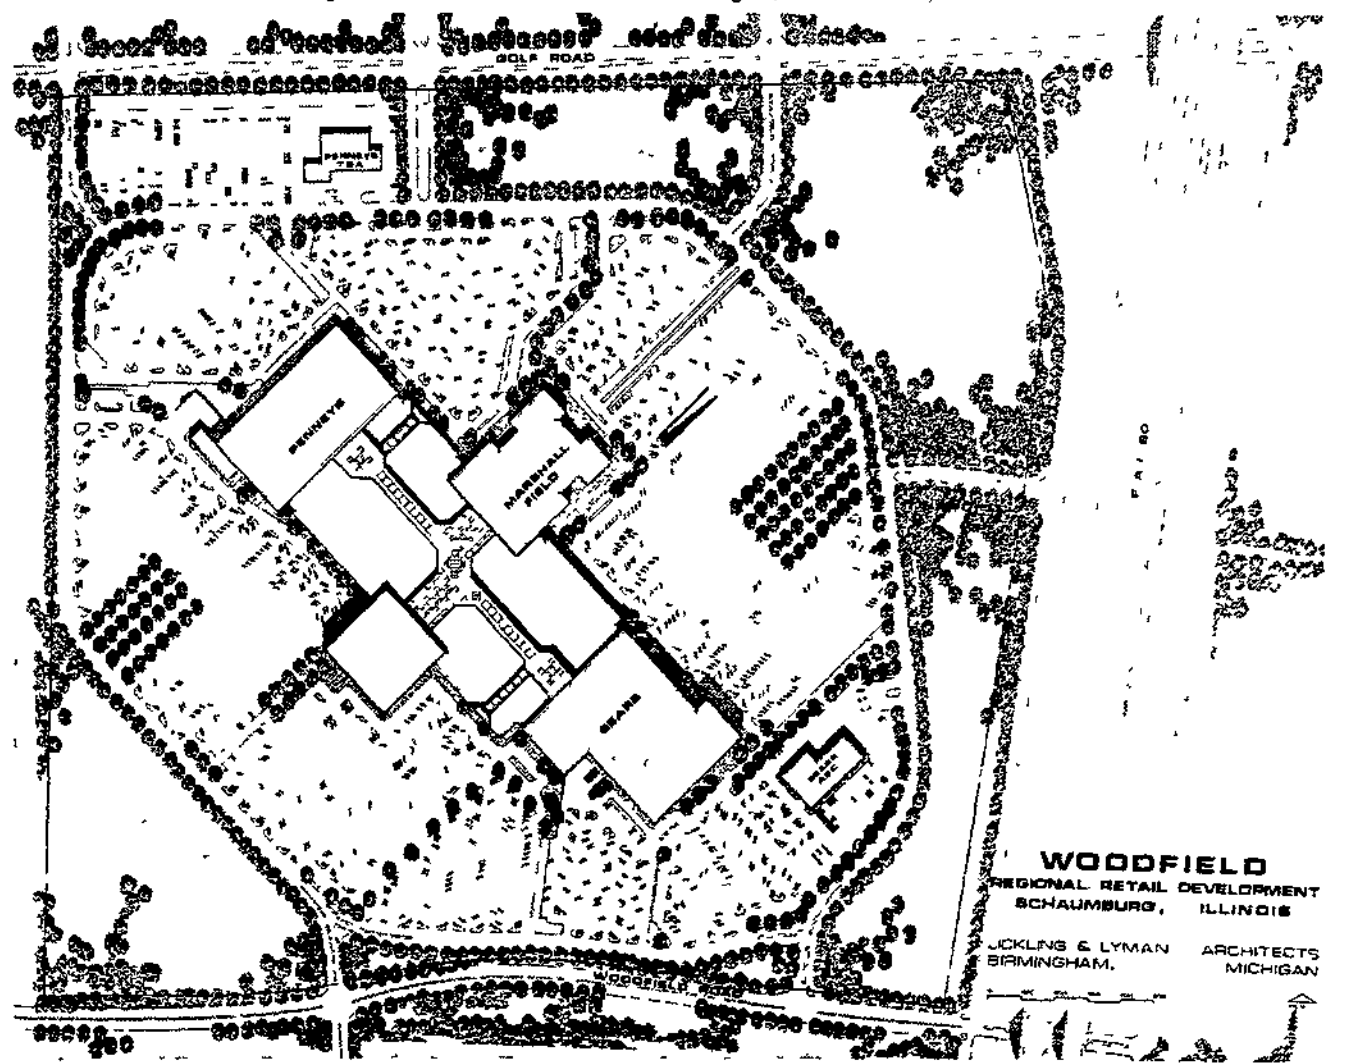

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Measham

Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

Gene Knows He Is Out

by TOM WELLMAN
and ALAN AKERSON

The quiet disbelief that marked Tuesday night at Gene Schlickman's Wheeling Township headquarters in the Arlington Carousal Restaurant gave way to grim acceptance yesterday morning.

For the men and women, the veterans of other Wheeling Township campaigns, it was a disappointing defeat. Many had worked long hours to sell their candidate to the voters.

For the Schlick Chicks, the seemingly endless horde of youthful campaign workers, it must have been difficult to wake up yesterday and realize the fun and energy had not produced a winner.

FOR THE INNER circle — the men and women who stayed at Schlickman's office on Campbell Street — it was a bitter defeat. Yesterday some of them were looking for paying or volunteer jobs.

The wake began at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday when several precinct captains walked into the almost-empty Carousal basement and posted their precincts on the tally board.

Wheeling Township committeeman Richard Cowen and several others looked on quietly as Crane's total mounted. Crane was not tallying 5 or 10 per cent of the vote; he was scoring 15, 20 and even 30 per cent forays into precincts in "safe" Schlickman territory.

And Schlickman was not winning 70, 80 or 90 per cent. By 7 p.m., before the adding machines were whirring, a Herald tally of eight precincts showed Schlickman with only a 2-1 edge over Crane, with the other candidates — except Joe Mathewson and Sam Young — out of the picture.

AT THE REAR of the big room, Fremd Yonkers and other volunteers took calls from other townships. And the bad news came early; for example, Schlickman tallied only a quarter of the Palatine Township vote, and the eastern townships were out of his grasp.

Slowly, precinct captains reported in with individual precincts, but the picture did not change. Schlickman was winning in the township, but he was not sweeping it. And he would need a sweep to gain the GOP nomination.

By the time 80 of the 89 precincts were in, Schlickman was holding about 43 per cent of the vote. Crane was holding at 27 per cent.

Finally, 87 of 89 precincts were in, and Schlickman had landed 42.5 per cent — 5,432 votes — of the township total. Crane, sweeping precincts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, tallied 28.7 per cent — 3,414 votes.

SCHLICKMAN couldn't manage to carry more than half of his township, and Crane had captured more than a quarter of it.

According to Ron Wittmeyer, Schlickman's finance chairman, his candidate needed to carry the township "by about a 3-1 margin."

"We also needed second place finishes for Gene in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships," he said.

Others agreed and began to wonder out loud why Crane had run so strong. Personal charisma, a powerful volunteer organization and a last-minute letter to voters from Crane's wife were all mentioned.

Cowen observed that several factors worked against Schlickman, including his legislative vote for the state income tax, support of HB 1241 (which antagonized many Prospect Heights voters) and the lack of any substantial eastern vote.

"CRANE MARSHALLED a strongly conservative vote. He's an effective platform speaker. He's articulate and a strong campaigner."

"He's accomplishing what all of us talked about; he carried one township and ran second or third in virtually every other," Cowen said.

Finally, Schlickman came over to officially thank his backers for their effort.

The man who had hoped to weld a powerful voting bloc in the western half of what has been called the most affluent Congressional district in America stood on a table with his wife and was generous with his thanks:

"During this campaign I learned more than I learned in any previous campaign and I met more dependable and wonderful people than in all of my previous eight campaigns."

"THERE ARE so many people I'd like to thank," he said, carefully and tiredly, "But if I did, we'd be here all night."

Later, he was asked if he would support Crane.

"I've always supported Republican candidates in the past without exception," he said firmly.

However, he would not comment on whether he would campaign for Crane.

How did Crane win? "Crane put forward a distinct philosophy that, in effect, set himself apart from the rest," said Schlickman.

THE CROWD OF 200 Republicans was beginning to filter out. Schlickman shook as many hands as he could, then joined a group of couples dancing as a small combo played. The campaign may have ended, but the party was going strong at 11:30.

Meanwhile, Cowen headed over to the Crane headquarters in Niles. For him, Schlickman's campaign was over, too.

Two of 12 Said They Voted Crane

Only seven of 12 Elk Grove Village residents interviewed in a Herald survey yesterday said they were registered voters, and only six of them reported voting Tuesday.

Two of the 12 voted for Philip Crane, winner of the 13th Congressional primary.

With only 20 per cent of his registered voters turning out, Elk Grove Township tallied 1,939 votes for Philip Crane, with Sam Young 75 votes behind. Carl Hansen, Elk Grove GOP Committeeman, was the only committeeman who didn't carry his township. The Elk Grove GOP had endorsed Sam Young.

Mrs. William Hudgins Jr., of 206 Greenbrier, said she followed the election closely and was glad Crane won.

"I CAME INTO the election not knowing anything about the candidates. I read all the literature I could and chose Crane. I agree with almost everything he had to say and thought the other candidates were a little wistly wasty."

Mrs. Norman Hill, of 657 Sycamore, said she voted for Crane but the primary had a lot of good men for candidates.

"I hope he'll win in November. I think any election is important."

Those who voted against Crane seemed disappointed but not vehemently opposed to him.

"I was surprised that Crane won," said

William Lambertson, of 160 Brandywine.

"He looks like a fairly good man and I think he'll win in November."

One woman commented, "I don't know how Crane will do." This Elk Grove resident works at the polls and indicated she is never satisfied with voter turnouts.

Mrs. John McCormick, of 450 Yarmouth, said she voted for Eugene Schlickman. "I guess Crane is all right. A lot of people endorsed him," she said, adding, "I think it was an important election because we're voting for someone to represent the people. It's pretty important to get the right person in."

ANOTHER RESIDENT commented, "I wish Rumsfeld was still there." She indicated that she did vote but not for Crane.

Those who didn't vote usually had no comment to make on the election. Joann Nelson, of 90 Grassmere Road, said she is a registered voter but forgot to vote.

The others made comments similar to that of Mrs. Anthony J. Tringali, of 84 Kennedy Blvd., who said she didn't vote because she hadn't registered.

Only one said he hadn't registered because he just moved to Elk Grove Village. He was Charles McDonough, of 1190 Leicester, who said he looked over the results of the election but was not familiar with Crane or the other candidates.

Walkout Threatened Today at Fremd

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weimer, Fremd High School principal, said.

In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weimer said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillesheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillesheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we are working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said. "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillesheim said.

School administrators attribute the idea of a walkout at Fremd to publicity of a nationwide walkout on college campuses next week when students will spend the day trying to convince citizens to oppose the Vietnam war.

No mention was made of the Vietnam issue in the literature passed out yester-

Flash and 'Frankie' To Be Shown Saturday

The first two chapters of a Flash Gordon serial and a horror film featuring Frankenstein will be shown Saturday by the Clearmont School Parent Teacher Organization.

The films will be shown at 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. in the school's multipurpose room at 280 Clearmont Drive. Admission is 25 cents. Popcorn and candy will be available.

day, according to Hillesheim.

"I DON'T THINK many students will walk out," Janice Rennack, another Fremd senior, said. "Seniors won't do it because they have too much at stake."

Weimer said he has had phone calls from parents and students supporting the administration's stand against a walkout. "We've had kids come by the office to tell us they think it is a stupid thing to do."

"It's our job to make sure school is not disrupted," Hillesheim said. "I've talked with the five who were suspended to help them understand that we will listen to their suggestions, although we may not condone them."

"We have to make every effort to stop something like a walkout, which would disrupt school. That is why they were suspended."

Decision Expected On Annexation Request

Decision on a rezoning and annexation request for a proposed 594-unit apartment complex is expected to be made tonight by the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission.

The complex, to be built east of Fleetwood Lane and north of Landmeier Road, will cost $10 million. Developer of the 30-acre tract is the Shell Development Corp.

Stephen Schwellenbach, plan commission chairman, said a decision for zoning and annexation would probably be made after an 8 p.m. public hearing for annexation and zoning for an auto agency north of Higgins and west of Elmhurst roads.

Trustees Eliminate 4th Monthly Meeting

Beginning in November, Elk Grove Village trustees will be able to spend an additional evening at home with their families, or so they hope.

Trustees voted Tuesday to eliminate the third meeting of the month. Instead of meeting four times a month on Tuesdays, the trustees will meet only three times.

Only Trustee Richard McGreenera objected to the change.

THREE FIREMEN make their way through a smoldering farmhouse near Illinois routes 53 and 72. Firemen from three departments in Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows took part in the Saturday morning drill, during which they received instruction in hose streams, ladder practices, salvage and use of masks. Elk Grove Fire Chief Allen Hulet conducted the drill.

nue," he continued. Waltman said the board is not only trying to maintain present programs but to make improvements.

ALL OF THE referenda since 1956 have been for building construction or improvements. When asked what the funds would cover if there was a referendum this year, Waltman said the necessity for additional funds is based on increased enrollment. "If we have more students, we need more buildings or additions and more teachers," he said.

"We're trying to find the total framework within which we'll have to work and see if that reaches the total revenue we'll receive. The revenue changes every year and we only have this year's known revenue to work from."

Reports Wallet Theft

Eugenia Bateman of 514 Crest, Elk Grove Village, told police Tuesday that her wallet containing $87 was stolen from her purse while she was at the Elk Grove Village Post Office.

She told police she noticed two women standing beside her while she was at a counter purchasing stamps. The women left hurriedly before she discovered her wallet was missing, she said.

Carelessness Causes Fires

The following story was prepared by Lt. Albert Kemnitz of the Elk Grove Village Fire Department in conjunction with the fire prevention week, Oct. 5 through 11.

Magical Lecture Set

Bob Teela

Bob Teela, a magician from Wheaton, will present a selection of tricks illustrating truths from the Bible at the Elk Grove Baptist Church Rally Day this Sunday at 9:45 a.m.

Teela is a graduate of Moody Bible Institute and North Park College, and is currently a candidate for an M.A. degree from Roosevelt University. Professionally, Teela is a member of the history department of the faculty of Naperville Central High School.

Visitors are invited to attend. The church is at 19W625 Devon Ave.

Over 6,700 persons, one-third of them children, are burned to death annually and uncounted others are seriously injured or permanently disfigured by fire.

Loss of customers, orders, rents or use of property often result from fires. Meanwhile fixed expenses go on. These consequential costs exceed the annual property damage loss from fire of over $1½ billion in 1968, most of it needless.

The only persons who can prevent loss by fire are the owners or occupants of the premises. Over 60 per cent of the fires occurring annually are preventable. The responsibility for preventing them rests with the chief executive of the firm.

THE PRESIDENT OR general manager should give positive instruction to foremen and department heads. Workmen depend upon the foreman to issue proper instructions in all details. Fire prevention and protection is as important as any other aspect of the business establishment.

Some common fire hazards in industry are likely to result because of the heating and electrical wiring in the buildings. Poor housekeeping and mishandling of cigarettes and matches also cause fires.

A source of fire in industrial buildings are the shipping, packing, and receiving sections where straw, excelsior and shredded paper make for possible hazards. Shipping materials should be kept in a metal-lined bin with a cover.

Small devices which produce heat (hot plates, irons, soldering furnaces) also serve as a source of fire. They should be put on sheet-metal-protected tables.

PAINTING, SPRAYING and touchup work should be done in a room for that purpose. No storage of combustibles should be allowed.

Special care should be given to the storage of oils, the handling of welding and cutting torches, metal working machines and motors.

For details on the precautions to be taken contact the fire department.

Let common sense and a sincere effort to prevent fires make each plant a safe plant. A point to remember is, "Fire prevention is defined as all the fires that never started."

New Fire Truck Purchase Gets OK

Purchase of a 100-foot aerial fire truck was approved Tuesday by the Elk Grove Village Board.

The board awarded a contract for $64,407 to Peter Pirsch & Co. for a Pirsch-Mack ladder truck. Delivery is expected in about one year.

Trustee Eugene Keith said he was concerned that the department would have to hire more personnel to man the truck. He noted that another truck, a $45,000 pumper, was purchased last summer.

Trustee George Cooney and Fire Chief Allen Hulet agreed that more men would be needed. Cooney added the equipment was a necessity to keep the current village fire rating.

Varble Fights Noise

by MARY DRESSER

(Special to Paddock Publications)

WASHINGTON — Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble presented his case against the noise from O'Hare Airport to Rep. John Erlenborn, R-14th Dist. Tuesday afternoon and Erlenborn said he will release a statement backing noise abatement.

What effect this will have on the din from O'Hare is questionable.

Varble stressed that the 1,700 signature petition he was presenting to Erlenborn was a result of spontaneous citizens' objections to the airport noise and not an organized campaign. He estimated the population area affected by O'Hare noise as approximately 400,000.

REPRESENTATIVES from Bensenville, Wood Dale, Des Plaines, Park Ridge and Norridge attended a jet noise seminar here yesterday with more leaders from the northwest suburban area expected.

Varble wanted a statement from Erlenborn recognizing that the request for government aid had been presented.

"Get me off the hook," he said, telling Erlenborn the people living in the northwest suburban area near the airport were becoming fed up with the current inaction.

Varble is in Washington to contact Congressman Erlenborn and Sen. Charles Percy in an effort to get some action on the O'Hare noise problem.

THE SEMINAR HE and other local leaders are attending is sponsored by the town of Hempstead, N. Y. and the city of Inglewood, Calif. These are areas affected by the large New York and California airports.

"O'Hare holds more traffic than any other airport in the world," insisted Varble during his interview in Erlenborn's office.

"I want support to try to attack this from a logical standpoint."

Erlenborn said the problem of noise abatement has been "booted around" for several years. He said he has long supported the establishment of an office of aircraft noise abatement.

Now the office of aircraft noise abatement is finally in operation and has received appropriations, he said. The office of noise abatement will spend their appropriations for a preliminary study of the problem.

AFTER THE STUDY is made, the Department of Transportation will set performance standards for the air industry.

One of the big problems in the effort to establish some control of the noise resulting from the big jet landings is a proliferation of government departments trying to get an answer to their questions.

"We would like to get these problems all in one place," said Erlenborn.

The Nixon administration is trying to streamline some of these overlapping departments by packing and simplifying structures, he said.

An example of the proliferation of departments was presented to Varble by Erlenborn's administrative assistant Finley McGrew, who counted nine federal agencies involved in the problems of air pollution and approximately 17 studying the problems of water pollution.

VARBLE AND Wood Dale Councilman Dr. Ralph Madonna attended a day-long seminar on the problem of noise Wednesday and heard Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., discuss the issue of airport noise.

A round-table workshop was held to bring local leaders representing areas from coast to coast together for a discussion of the problem.

This morning, a public hearing featuring testimony of air industry representatives will be held by the House Science and Astronautics Committee chaired by Rep. George P. Miller, Democrat from California.

One of the positions on the 32-member committee was held by former 13th District representative Donald Rumsfeld. Since Rumsfeld accepted the position of Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, the seat is now held by Rep. Barry M. Goldwater Jr. (R-Calif.)

This is 1939.

Or is it 1969? That's the fascinating you-never-know thing about today's clothes. They can be as romantic as the turn of the century. As slinky as the thirties. Or as geometric as the year 2001. Girls just don't have to look like other girls anymore. They can look like themselves. Or any self they want to be. They can be gypsies. Or spacegirls. Or cowgirls. Or any girls. And how to go about it is as simple as mixing some secret-type fantasy with some new-type clothes. If you'd like to indulge in a little self-expression, it's very simple. Just see us. And name your year.

Elgin School Dist. U46 will hold open house and other special programs for area citizens during the 1969 American Education Week (AEW) to be held Nov. 9 to 15.

The Elgin Teachers' Association, which is sponsoring the event, met with school officials on Oct. 1 for a kick-off meeting.

During the week, parents and other interested citizens are invited to attend open houses prepared by teachers and students in one of 36 schools.

On display will be the latest in teaching techniques and tools, along with explanations of these and other phases of the educational program.

And, Your Schools — Foster Lifelong pledged the national social fraternity.

Learning, Nov. 13; Your Schools — Promote Economic Prosperity, Nov. 14; Your Schools — Strive for Healthy Personality Development, Nov. 15.

This nationally recognized week is an annual event designed to focus on the needs and achievements of schools. It was instituted in 1921 through joint action of the American Legion and the National Education Association. One of its main purposes has been to combat illiteracy and encourage physical fitness.

"WE ARE proud of our students, teachers and educational programs," says Dr. Paul R. Lawrence, superintendent of schools, "and I hope every citizen takes this opportunity to visit the classroom, observe and ask questions."

With apples being harvested in abundance and readily available at roadside stands and super markets, this is the time of year to take advantage of their fresh, juicy flavor, not only for eating but for use in delicious pies and cakes.

Mrs. Edwin T. Henricks of 1217 N. Hickory in Arlington Heights has an excellent apple cake recipe which homemakers will find both quick and easy to make.

"Everyone in our family is fond of apples, so I try to use them in a variety of ways," Barb Henrick said.

"This recipe is very versatile," she added. "It may be used for breakfast, coffee parties or as a dessert."

WHEN HER CHILDREN, Jeff, 12; Jane, 10; and Bill, 6, know that their mother is about to bake this delicious apple cake, they are eager to help. Especially when they can use their grandmother's antique apple peeler, which is fun to operate and easily removes the skins.

"It saves a great deal of time when the children assist with this chore, as the batter is simple to mix together," Barb commented.

Basically a baking powder batter, chopped apples and nuts are stirred in and the cake is baked in an oblong pan. A cinnamon and sugar mixture may be sprinkled over the top, if desired.

"This is a moist cake that stays fresh, but it never lasts long enough for me to test its keeping qualities," Barb smilingly remarked.

IF SERVED FOR dessert, Barb recommends topping it with a dollop of whipped cream.

This good cook has another specialty which she calls her favorite fun-type dinner. It is for Ginger Beef, a Cantonese recipe which she acquired in California.

When Barb and her husband Ed, who is principal of Dryden School, attended an educator's convention in San Francisco, they participated in a Tiger Tour of Chinatown. Climax of the tour was luncheon at a Chinese restaurant where they were served Ginger Beef, which they enjoyed very much. At the conclusion of the luncheon, their tour hostess distributed her own recipe for this Cantonese dish.

"This isn't the type of recipe one makes often, but it is ideal when you want to serve something different," Barb remarked.

"WE SIT ON THE floor around the coffee table for this meal, simulating a Chinese atmosphere."

"It perks up a family meal occasionally to do something unusual. The children think it's fun, and guests enjoy it, too," she exclaimed.

Quick cooking is the secret to the success of Cantonese cooking. This dish combines flank steak and a soy sauce marinade, onions and celery, with ginger as the seasoning. It is cooked just long enough for the meat to lose its color but for the vegetables to remain crisp.

The marinade tenderizes the meat and gives it an appealing flavor, while the ginger adds extra zip.

Barb serves this tasty dish over fluffy rice and accompanies it with a tossed salad and rolls. To complete the Cantonese theme, she serves sherbet and fortune cookies for dessert.

ACTIVE IN LUTHERAN Churchwomen of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, Barb has served as vice president and program chairman.

She sews for herself and her daughter, likes to play bridge for recreation, and both she and Ed enjoy refinishing antiques, many of which they have acquired from their families.

The Henricks are enthusiastic campers, too, having their own camper for weekend excursions and vacations.

APPLE CAKE

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups granulated sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups all-purpose flour, sifted

2 teaspoons baking powder

1 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup milk

4 cups raw apples, sliced thin

1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Sift dry ingredients together and add to batter alternately with milk. Stir in apples

Spread dough in a greased and floured 9 by 13-inch pan. Sprinkle with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar, if desired.

Bake at 375 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes.

Serve as a coffee cake, or as a dessert

GINGER BEEF

1 pound flank steak

Soy sauce

1 teaspoon sugar

1 teaspoon cornstarch

Cooking oil

Salt to taste

2 or 3 slices ginger root

(1 teaspoon or more ginger powder may be substituted)

1 onion, sliced

1/2 cup celery, chopped

Remove thin membrane from flank steak. Slice very thin across the grain.

(The flank steak is easier to slice if it is partially frozen.)

Mix together the soy sauce, sugar and cornstarch. Marinate flank steak in this mixture for a half hour. (1 teaspoon or more sherry may be added to tenderize meat.)

Using a deep frying pan or Chinese wok, pour in just enough oil to cover bottom of pan. Heat oil and sprinkle with salt. Add ginger slices and onion; saute until onion looks transparent.

Add steak and marinade sauce to hot oil and onions. Add celery. Cook 2 to 3 minutes, just until the red leaves the meat.

Serves 4 as an entree with rice and a salad, or it may be used as the beef course in a Cantonese dinner.

Let 'em Eat This Cake

LOTS OF HELPING hands make light work of preparing apples for one of the Edwin T. Henricks family's favorites, an appealing Apple Cake. Assisting their mother are Jane,

Hello Hostess

A Sampling from the Fair

by MARY KAY MARSH

The next time someone tells you that American women are lazy, idle creatures living pushbutton lives of instant luxury, suggest that he (and that someone is sure to be a he!) take in an old-fashioned county fair. He — and you — will be amazed at the needlework and culinary products, at the horticultural and floricultural entries and at all the wonderfully intriguing craft and hobby items displayed by women exhibitors.

As we write this, we just got back from a county fair in Illinois. And while it's impossible to give you in one column even a sampling of all the entries, we did pick up some ideas that you might like to try.

In the horticultural building we saw sheaves of blue grass, wheat, rye and oats, put together stalk by stalk. Each was chosen for its perfect symmetry, and all were tied together as carefully as a Japanese flower arrangement. A sheaf like this would make a handsome decoration for your hall in the fall, or to grace your harvest table.

We liked, too, the manger and stable associations of plain little rustic wreaths fashioned out of straw.

THE FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS were truly spectacular. Not being gifted in this line, we can't give you technical descriptions. But one arrangement seemed especially easy and suitable as a centerpiece (or "desk piece") if you're celebrating Teacher Appreciation Day or any other scholastic occasion. The entrant used a child's toy lunch box — there may be one in your child's room right now. She filled the box's "thermos bottle" with a small bouquet of autumn garden flowers and stood it up in one side of the lunch box. In the other she tucked a shiny red "apple for the teacher."

But the cut-up cakes offered the most interesting possibilities for you as a hostess. A Mickey Mouse Cake we saw would be ideal for your child's birthday party, especially since Mickey Mouse balloons and paper goods are readily available almost everywhere. The face was a round circle, about dinner-plate size, iced in white. On top of this were two "ears" made from smaller circles, about dessert-plate size, iced in black. The maker also used a swirl of black frosting to make a hairline. The only other decorating involved two black icing circles for the eyes, another for the nose and a smiling mouth iced on in bright red frosting.

A GAY NINETIES CAKE was equally impressive, but considerably more complicated. This cake was cut in the shape of a Gay 90's hourglass corset and iced in pink. The top and bottom edges were fluted in white icing to simulate lace. There were a few fancy flowers, too, but the main features of the decoration were two lines of white frosting, criss-crossed to resemble old-fashioned lacing. The laces were "anchored" on each side with silver dragees. But what we liked best about this cake was the writing on it: "Pull yourself together, Mom; it's only another birthday."

PARTY LINE: Which reminds us that we mentioned sometime ago that the 1969 calendar duplicates that of 1890. Now we read that the 1970 calendar will match that of 1891. So you might want to consider a Gay Nineties theme if you're planning a special party or club event. The corset cake described above would make a conversation-piece centerpiece, as well as delicious refreshments!

TODAY'S QUOTE TO NOTE: From Thomas Dekker: "Autumn's the barber of the year, that shears bushes, hedges and trees; the ragged prodigal that consumes all and leaves himself nothing." Do take a little leave to enjoy the autumn leaves — and take along a friend to keep you company.

They'll Cheer Your Buffet

Half the fun of attending a game is looking forward to a great after-game party. Next time you spend an afternoon or evening cheering on your team, bring home the crowd for a Swinger Meat Loaf.

Swinger Meat Loaf is juicy, flavorful — just the kind of hearty dish for robust appetites. You can prepare it ahead, pop it into the oven when you return from the game . . . and have a wonderful buffet supper ready in a jiffy. Economical fare, too, for serving a crowd.

Beef, veal and pork, plus bacon garnish, go into this deluxe loaf, providing it with more flavor than you get with beef only. And Tabasco, the liquid red pepper sauce, is among the ingredients present to lend zest.

WITH GUESTS in the house, you want to keep your kitchen time to a minimum. While the meat loaf bakes, prepare a large bowl of instant mashed potatoes . . . and Tabasco also lends flair to this course. Just add a few drops of the liquid red pepper sauce to the water or milk. Notice that the liquid pepper sauce means no black pepper flecks . . . a real boon with pale foods such as potatoes.

A loaf of French bread can be heating in the oven at the same time as the meat loaf. For dessert, chocolate cake with scoops of coffee ice cream and fudge sauce would be great. And there you have a party meal that's easy to prepare, easy on the purse and tastes wonderful.

SWINGER MEAT LOAF

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 pound ground veal
- 1 pound ground pork
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup finely chopped parsley
- 2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 teaspoon Tabasco
- 1 tablespoon grated parmesan cheese
- 3 bacon slices

Break up meat with fork in mixing bowl. Sprinkle with salt, oregano, onion and parsley. Mash bread crumbs in tomato sauce; stir in eggs and Tabasco. Add to meat and mix lightly until ingredients are combined. To shape loaf, press mixture into a 9 x 5 x 2 1/4-inch loaf pan; invert in a shallow baking pan and remove loaf pan. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese; top with bacon slices. Bake in 350 degree oven, 1 hour 15 minutes. Serve with Flavorful Mashed Potatoes.* Yield: 8 to 12 servings.

*FLAVORFUL MASHED POTATOES

Prepare Instant Mashed Potatoes according to package directions. For a 6 to 8-serving amount, add 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco to the water or milk given in the recipe.

Traveling to the Game?

Have a Roadside Cookout

Fifth Quarter Buffet

An enthusiastic fan in the grandstands may burn as much energy during a football game as a substitute player. For an untrained roofer, that's a lot of calories.

Those post-football game soirees should be veritable oases of energy foods. If the crowd has picked your living room in which to discuss the precision passing of Gale Sayers and the near-tragedy in the fourth quarter, have plenty of fan rejuvenators on hand.

Any of these zesty foods recommended by home economists for the American Blue Cheese Association will bring cheers in the "fifth quarter."

Football Canapes: Use kitchen scissors to cut bread in football shape (large, round and thinly sliced loaves give highest yield). Spread bread with mayonnaise, then with blue cheese mixture and add anchovy "stripes." For cheese mixture, blend together equal parts of butter and American blue cheese, both softened at room temperature. Add grated onion to taste.

Pigskin Dip: Serve pork rinds along with traditional scoops with this spicy dip. Blend together one cup sour cream, one-fourth cup American blue cheese (about 1 and 1/4 oz. crumbled), one tablespoon each of prepared mustard and capers.

Hot Crunches: Prepare this unusual treat ahead of time — then pop crunches into oven after game. Spread onto melba rounds a mixture of one stick of butter, softened, one-fourth cup American blue cheese (about 1 and 1/4 oz. crumbled), one minced clove garlic, a pinch of sugar and a dash of hot pepper. Warm in oven until cheese bubbles.

Here Are Week's Best Food Buys

Though this is the peak of the harvest season, threat of a possible railroad strike is causing the price of fresh produce to advance.

October best buys in produce are:

Fruit—apples, bananas, coconuts, cranberries, figs, grapefruit, grapes, oranges, pears, persimmons and pomegranates.

Melons—casabas, Crenshaws, honeydews and Persians.

VEGETABLES — anise, better artichokes, beans, broccoli, brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, cabbage, kohlrabi, leeks, lettuce, mushrooms, okra, onions, parsnips, peppers, potatoes, pumpkins, squash, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, turnips and rutabagas.

Best values in meat and poultry are: round and sirloin steaks, beef chuck roasts, brisket, short ribs; center cut pork chops, spareribs, pork steaks, loin end roasts, hams; lamb shoulder roasts; whole fryers, large eggs, turkeys.

Mostly for Men

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

Looking for a different way to fix ground beef on a cookout, patio party or for a group of hungry football fans after an early-season game? This king-sized preparation can be prepared in advance, cooked at one time and yields either 6 generous plate servings or 10 to 12 sandwiches.

You can with ease double or triple the recipe for more people. The normal charcoal grill should handle two.

Purchase 2 pounds of good quality, lean ground chuck or round steak. Chop fine 1 medium-size onion and add 2 tablespoons to the beef. Mix lightly with 1/4 cup chili sauce, 1 teaspoon A-1 sauce, 1/2 teaspoon salt and freshly ground pepper to taste, remembering that pepper is a fine taste ingredient for beef.

When beef mixture is prepared, divide into equal portions and place each on a large sheet of wax paper. With your hands gently flatten the beef into 2 rectangular patties which will be about 6 x 12 inches in size.

ON ONE OF THE patties arrange 5 or 6 slices of aged longhorn or aged cheddar cheese, sliced thin so that the beef will be covered. Drain a 2 1/2-ounce jar of sliced mushroom caps and spread over the cheese.

Now lift the other patty with the waxed paper and flip it onto the first. Remove paper. Seal the edges by pressing together. Lay 6 slices of bacon crosswise on top of the double patty, then flip and put another 6 slices on the other side, securing them at the ends by overlapping and pinning with wood picks or small skewers.

Place the patty in a wire broiler basket or rack which closes. The wire enclosure is a necessity since such a large patty would be difficult to handle otherwise. You may have a fairly hot charcoal fire for broiling. Total time should be about 10 minutes on one side followed by 5 on the other. However, you can turn more often if bacon is charring unduly.

During the cooking brush with A-1 sauce mixed in equal parts with butter or oleo. Cut into serving pieces for plates or 12 squares which can be served atop slices of onions or pickles on buns.

Riotous Cook

Effectively combining a knowledgeable cooking dialogue with a series of riotous one-line gags, Graham Kerr on his "Galloping Gourmet" show gives the housewife new cooking ideas and helps her view some of her own cooking errors less tragically.

The show is televised daily, Monday through Friday, from 3 to 3:30 p.m. on Channel 32.

The witty Briton turns cooking from a chore into a situation comedy. Kerr even makes an occasional honest-to-goodness error of his own, but then saves the day for himself and the viewer by showing how it can be corrected with an added ingredient or a simple adjustment.

To put the "icing on the cake," Kerr actually eats the dishes he prepares at the end of the show.

Solution to Overpopulation? Brain Research Week, Oct. 12-18

Cambridge, Mass. (WMNS) — Caught between profound alarm over the population explosion and a longing for a large family, many thoughtful young couples feel they have found a neat solution: to limit their own children to two and to adopt the rest.

"We haven't taken a vow or anything," said soft-spoken Ann Peabody, 29, whose husband, Gerald, also 29, is on the verge of getting his doctorate in physics. The Peabodys, originally from California, are house residents (read: mature married couple available for comfort and advice) at one of the Radcliffe College dormitories.

Of friends and acquaintances who have decided to mix adopted and biological children in their families, Mrs. Peabody added, "We've each made our individual decisions. It's not something you just jump into."

"BUT IT MAY BE a trend. We know many people who are terribly concerned about overpopulation. We know there are so many kids around who would make splendid citizens if only they had loving parents. Who am I to say my genes are superior? Once you've changed a baby's diapers for a few months, he's yours."

So far, Mrs. Peabody has only changed the diapers of her biological children, Karen, 4, and Nathan, 1. But in a few years she and her husband expect to adopt a third child, probably one of interracial parentage because they feel that "little blond blue-eyed children will get adopted in any case."

Another pair of Radcliffe house residents have already acquired their adopted child, Christopher Manuel, not quite a year old, of Mexican-German parentage.

JAMES AND CATHERINE Austin, both 26 and originally from Flint, Mich., became agonizingly aware of population problems in South America where they served in the Peace Corps. Austin is now working for his Ph.D. in business administration.

"When we got married five years ago," Mrs. Austin explained, "we decided that determining the size of our family was very much a moral question. We knew we would eventually be able to afford a large family. But someone has to take personal responsibility for what is happening in the world. It doesn't make any difference whether you adopt first, or you have a biological child first."

OTHER RESIDENT COUPLES at Radcliffe who have taken the decision to mix giving birth and adopting include a graduate student in Far Eastern studies and another doing postgraduate work in education. A former resident, now teaching at Notre Dame University, is in the process of adopting a Vietnamese child. (This couple is noteworthy because, unlike most of the others, they rely on "a highly sophisticated rhythm system" to limit their biological family rather than the virtually foolproof birth control pill). Mrs. Austin's doctor, who has three children and wants more, is now considering adoption.

At the New England Home for Little Wanderers, which placed the Austin child, Casework Supervisor Robert Wise said that interracial adoptions seem to be growing and that most of the adopting parents have two motives: helping a child who needs a home and taking a personal stand against the population explosion. Almost all already have children of their own, he added.

At the request of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has declared Oct. 12 to Oct. 18 as Brain Research Week in Illinois. The announcement was made by Mrs. P. E. Ashwood of Moline, IFWC health division chairman, at a recent 2-day IFWC state board meeting at the Sherman House, Chicago.

Mrs. Roger Simms of Gibson City, IFWC junior director, reported at the meeting that the entire IFWC membership of more than 1,000 clubs, will participate in special brain research observances during that week.

"The IFWC has had a long-standing interest in brain research and has chosen to sponsor this week in order to help the public better understand the importance of such research for the advancement of society and the prevention and cure of those many brain and nervous system diseases which cause vast amounts of disability, dependency, delinquency, economic loss and family heartbreak," stated the junior director.

The IFWC has supported the work of the Brain Research Foundation since soon after its founding in 1953. Member clubs have contributed more than $190,000 for direct grants for current research, including $75,000 earmarked for the new Institute building. Money has been raised through theatre parties, bake sales, car washes, fashion shows and through the sale of items to the community, according to the chairman.

The IFWC has also made a significant contribution to better public understanding of the nature of brain-related diseases and their treatment and prevention through educational programs, slide presentations, and tours of hospitals and research facilities, reported Mrs. Simms.

In Defense Of Chocolate

Is taking chocolate away from an allergic person in the same category as taking candy from a baby?

Despite the weight of custom, this possibility has been raised by two allergists, Drs. Lawrence Mastansky and Geraldine Wein of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

Investigating whether chocolate has been unfairly defamed as an allergy-provoking food, the doctors fed disguised chocolate to eight adults who had consistently reacted to the candy. When they were unaware of what they had eaten, five patients survived their meal without any ill effects.

Before chocolate is routinely forbidden to allergic patients, the researchers suggest that similar tests be given so that only the truly-allergic-to-chocolate will be forbidden to indulge their sweet tooth.

Sunglasses Or Not?

Some people do not need sunglasses, according to the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness. They feel no discomfort from the sun's rays, even at the beach. Others, especially those who work indoors, may need sunglasses to provide eye comfort when at the beach or when skiing. But even those who do not require sunglasses should never look directly at the sun because it can burn the retina of the eye. This can also happen when wearing the darkest glass available, the Society states.

STUDIO OFFERS FREE LESSONS ON ORGAN

ONE HUNDRED FREE COURSES of instruction on the organ are being offered by NAYLOR'S Studios in Glenview.

NAYLOR'S is suburban Chicago's largest piano and organ company located at 1850 Waukegan Road, in Glenview.

In making this announcement, Mr. Naylor said the free courses are being offered as an experimental study with the newest and most revolutionary electronic method ever devised, for teaching and playing the organ.

There is no necessity for the student to own an organ, because NAYLOR'S will furnish the organ for practice with no obligation.

Of the 100 persons to be chosen for these lessons, one-half will be girls and one-half will be boys.

By dividing the instructions in this manner a complete and full study can be accomplished.

There will also be a limited amount of openings for adults.

NAYLOR'S will expend approximately $2000.00 to complete this musical experiment.

Persons interested in receiving this course are asked to contact the Manager or call 724-2100.

Time No Cure-All for Kids

Instead of curing "all ills," time can be a formidable enemy to emotionally deprived small children, a child psychiatrist has warned.

Dr. Irving N. Berlin of the University of Washington School of Medicine, Seattle, cautioned against the comfortable, optimistic belief that preschool children invariably outgrow their psychological problems.

"There is now powerful evidence," the head of the division of child psychiatry said, "that continued, prolonged or repeated stress before age three may result in irreversible damage," permanently interfering with a child's ability to learn and his capacity for friendship.

Dr. Berlin also warned against the comfortable belief of the middle class that only poor children suffer dangerous emotional stress.

ALTHOUGH LEARNING problems may be more obvious among the poor, he said, "Suburban mothers who are depressed as a result of having unwanted children or who have marital or other problems may not be in a position to nurture a baby."

Hallmarks of the possibly emotionally-damaged baby are failure to thrive and failure to develop normally, Dr. Berlin said. Only early diagnostic evaluations and intervention can rescue such a child.

Steaks for Less

Barbecue fans should consider grilling less tender steaks if the price of porterhouse is too high for the fool budget. Harold Neigh, consumer economics specialist of Pennsylvania State University says moderately tender steaks are those from the sirloin tip, top round and blade chuck. Least tender steaks which may need tenderizing come from the bottom round, eye of the round and arm chuck.

Prices Are High, But We Buy

by JEANNIE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumers complain about rising food prices but they go on buying some higher-priced items just the same.

The annual food industry census by Chain Store Age magazine indicates that lack of display space, not price, keeps sales of high-ticket frozen foods at a steady four per cent of total store income.

The magazine said many merchandisers consider frozen foods the hottest potential in supermarkets, which make up only 16 per cent of United States grocery stores, but account for 79 per cent of all grocery store sales. Chain supermarkets rang up more than 90 per cent of the record $53.9-billion volume done by supermarkets last year.

MANY CHAINS are installing multi-deck cases of glass-door upright freezers, which hold more packages in less floor space than conventional well-type freezers. But with 250 to 300 new items introduced annually, the storage space can't keep up. One result: even products that continue to sell have to be dropped for new ones.

Sales of boil-in-bag vegetables were cited as the fastest growing frozen vegetables, although they sell for about 10 per cent more per 10-ounce package than regular frozen vegetables.

A Chicago chain buyer reported about a 40 per cent sales increase in frozen desserts tagged at $1 and up. He added that sales records also are being set by frozen puddings that retail for as much as 49 cents for a four-serving container.

CANNED AND DRY milk sales also are losing out to fresh milk because, the magazine said, affluent Americans generally have more money to spend for the higher-priced fresh product, and more refrigerators to store it in.

Canned and dry milk are other victims of our affluent society. The magazine said sales are down because Americans generally have more money to spend for the higher-priced fresh product, and more refrigerators to store it in.

Canned and dried milk were created originally to prevent fast spoilage, milk shortages and high prices. They continue to sell best in neighborhoods with large, low-income households. Fresh milk and newer convenience products — including whole skim milk, coffee creamers and simulated baby formulas are replacing them elsewhere.

THE FOOD CENSUS indicated that consumers do check prices on many foods and buy accordingly. Among them are macaroni products, canned vegetables, herbs and spices in large size containers, and tuna, which the magazine said "has become synonymous with low-cost weight control." One canner said tuna accounts for more than 60 per cent of canned fish sales in many areas of the United States.

A Minneapolis chain merchandiser said prepared pasta dinners priced at 89 and 99 cents each don't sell well because heavy users of this type of product generally have lower incomes than families who buy mostly meat and vegetables.

A SOUTHERN CHAIN buyer said price was the main thing that keeps canned vegetable sales running ahead of frozen ones.

Products whose sales are growing rapidly include multi-use and multi-seasoning spices — such as barbecue and salad blends, Italian and hamburger seasonings, savory, celery and seasoned salts. These have 50 to 60 per cent of the blend business in some areas, the magazine reported. The biggest growth item in leaf herbs is oregano, thanks to the pizza boom.

Some industry experts said the weight-loss diet boom is tapering off, but sales of low-calorie dairy foods continue to grow. Yogurt sales have increased 500 per cent in the past five years. Once considered solely a health food, yogurt now outsells that dieters' old favorite, cottage cheese, in some areas.

AMONG HIGH-CALORIE foods, snack sales are soaring. Estimates of increases range from 30 per cent nationally to 75 per cent in some stores. Pizza flavored snacks remain the favorites, but other popular flavors include ketchup, butter, Mexican, cheese and barbecue.

Among baked goods, a paradox — one manufacturer said English muffins, which are fat-free and have a low-calorie image, account for 18 per cent of bread sales, but demand also is up for pies that are richer and creamier.

Household Hints

by United Press International
If crispier is full, place vegetables in plastic bags and store on refrigerator shelf. Store ripe tomatoes uncovered.

The first step in arranging a room is to decide what activities will be held in it, according to Magdalene Pfister, University of Nebraska Extension home furnishings specialist. Group furniture into activity areas such as study, conversation and recreation. A test to help determine how satisfactory an arrangement is, is to study how the furniture has been moved for conversation or games after guests leave.

Tightly drawn blinds are a tip to burglars. Leave them partially closed if you're going to be away for a while. Authorities in security also recommend using an automatic timing device to turn lights on and off at night in one or two rooms of your home.

Flowers, stripes, fringe — the choice is yours — as window shades have become high fashion. Dozens of hem styles from broken scallops to straight fringed edges are available. Order valances to match the hem treatment. Almost all styles are washable or treated with a washable coating.

A survey by a manufacturer of plastic containers shows that the typical refrigerator is such a colossal mess that as much as 50 per cent of usable space goes to waste. Even worse, good food spoils by getting lost or forgotten in the confusion. What homemaker exists who fails to find on cleaning her refrigerator a collection of biological surprises, as a result?

Will Meet Oct. 14

Local women interested in the homemaker unit may call Mrs. J. B. Abbs at 392-2672 for further information.

Coach, Bride, Postpone Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Macarol

Sandra Jean Joern and Joseph Macarol were married Saturday, Aug. 30, and since Joe, a football coach and teacher, was to teach at Gordon Tech in Chicago on Tuesday, the newlyweds postponed their honeymoon. They did, however, spend three days at the Marriott before settling on Chicago's northwest side.

Their wedding took place at 5:30 p.m. in St. Raymond Catholic Church, Mount Prospect. It was followed by a sit down dinner for more than 200 guests at the Itasca Country Club.

Sandy is the daughter of the Walter Joerns, 511 S. Louis, Mount Prospect, and Joe is the son of the Tony Macarols of Chicago Ridge.

Fr. Carroll officiated at the double ring ceremony, and Mr. Joern gave his daughter in marriage. Yellow and white roses decorated the church for the service and were also used in the bride's nosegay, along with Stephanotis and baby's breath.

THE BRIDE'S GOWN was of peau de soie, fashioned with high neckline, long sleeves and long train. A flowered seed pearl headpiece held her fingertip veil.

Diane Mayes of Mount Prospect was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Judy Siegel of Westfield, N. J., Maggie Daly of Kokomo, Ind., and Carla Spooner of Mount Prospect. All wore nutmeg linen floor-length jumpers with white blouses. Their hair bows matched their jumpers, and they carried nosegays of yellow and orange carnations.

The groom's best man was Tom Tracey of Worth, Ill., and ushers were James Foster, Riverdale, Ill., Ralph Coglianes and the groom's brother, Marc Macarol of Chicago Ridge, and the groom's uncle, John Macarol of Alsip, Ill.

FOR HER DAUGHTER'S wedding, Mrs. Joern chose a light avocado A-line, sleeveless dress with jeweled neckline and matching jacket. Her cymbidium corsage was in yellow and brown. Mrs. Macarol chose a yellow crepe dress with beaded neckline, and her cymbidiums were in green and brown.

Among the guests at the wedding were the bride's sisters, Merrily Joern Charlton of Tallmadge, Ohio and Jennifer Joern Spinello of Pasadena, Calif., and their families.

The new Mrs. Macarol is a graduate of Prospect High School and studied at the University of Iowa in Iowa City. She is employed by Illinois Toolworks, Chicago. The groom is a '69 graduate of Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

More Eye Injuries

Eye injuries are on the increase according to the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness. The most common injuries are caused by blows, sharp objects, cinders or specks of dust, BB guns, slingshots, bows and arrows and fireworks.

It is important not to let your children play with toys that are a potential hazard to their vision.

ROBERT HORTON of TV's Wagon Train stars in "There's A Girl in My Soup" at Pheasant Run Playhouse Oct. 14 through Nov. 2. The comedy by Terence Frisby is about a food and wine connoisseur who flirts from one romance to another. When he finally falls in love with "the" girl, he is rebuffed.

The Way We See It

Always in Crisis?

A familiar story is again being played out in Illinois.

A piece of the state's natural heritage — in this case the nearby Volo Tamarack Bog — is being threatened, and conservationists are scrambling to protect it.

Two issues are involved here.

One is the case of the bog itself, located in Lake County just northwest of Volo. The cause, as we see it, is a totally laudatory one.

The 47-acre bog, owned by the University of Illinois, is a rarity, particularly because it is located so far south on the continent. It dates back 12,000 years, when it was created as a huge hole by glacial action.

Since then, it slowly filled in and took on the unique qualities of a bog. Today, it is not only an area of primeval beauty, but literally is a field laboratory for scientists and students. At its bottom is evidence of the kind of life in the region 12,000 years ago, and at the top an intricate web of plant life peculiar to bogs — including sphagnum moss, ferns, mushrooms, tamarack trees and insect-eating pitcher plants.

The bog is imperiled by an $80-million development planned immediately adjacent to it, a complex that will cover 655 acres and include housing for 10,000 persons, a shopping center, golf course, hotel and convention hall.

Conservationists fear — rightly so — that this massive development at the edge of the bog will so disrupt its previously undisturbed delicate balance that it will be destroyed as anything unique.

There is still hope for the bog, because the final decision on the development rests with the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals and Board of Supervisors. Neither board is committed.

But the bog represents an even greater issue.

It is a fact in Illinois that questions of preserving pieces of the environment — Like Volo Tamarack Bog — rarely come up except in a crisis atmosphere.

There is concern usually when it is almost too late, when a last-minute blend of public outcry, conservationist pressure and possibly legislative action must be massed to carry the cause.

This is an indictment of a state which has never come to grips with the broad picture of preserving its natural legacy. There has been no pattern — not even in the Department of Conservation — of pinpointing the areas worth saving, of making plans to preserve and protect them, of anticipating the threats.

In this, the state has failed, and unless there is an awakening, we will continue a pattern of crisis upon crisis to hang on to what's left.

Chamber Gives Leadership

by MARK COHEN

The pitfalls and promises of greater industrial involvement were bantered about the room, as the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce talked of the businessman's duty to the community.

"Industry has been conspicuous in its lack of involvement in area problems," said Clinton Clickner of Curtis 1000.

"BUT THE AVERAGE businessman just doesn't have the extra time to spend with the community. It's often impossible to find people to give up time that could be spent with their wife and family to work in the community," others argued.

Everyone seemed to feel that civic involvement is a responsibility that industry should meet.

It is a duty that costs the company both time and money. Not one of Rolling Meadows' businessmen could recognize the profits of charity.

Industry spends millions of dollars to create a good company image. They develop slogans and symbols to keep themselves in the minds of the community.

There are those company signs like the "Flying A" which people try daily to drive from their memory. And how about . . . Do you know nobody in my office can recall a company slogan . . . Sorry."

Businesses often fail to recognize what happens when they engage in charity work. First the press, who has been filing the majority of their releases under "waste," begins to actively seek them out.

STORIES WITH the company name in the bold letters of the headline, shout out their name.

The community begins to identify with industry. They become interested in what they are doing and soon their interest extends to what they are producing.

What about that extra time? Well that public relations department can always develop a community relations branch whose sole job would be to create awareness of the company by civic involvement.

How about a hokey slogan like, "The Company That Reaches The Problems Of The Nation."

When this campaign method was tried on a minor scale, it met with immediate success. The Western Electric branch in Rolling Meadows held a charity drive, called Christmas is September, that resulted in a short story in the Herald.

AND THOSE MEMBERS of the Chamber of Commerce who lose sleep worrying about the extra cash they might have to dish out — there is a way to cut costs and help too?

How much newspaper space do you think a charity drive or community program, with all the necessary publicity touches, would buy you?

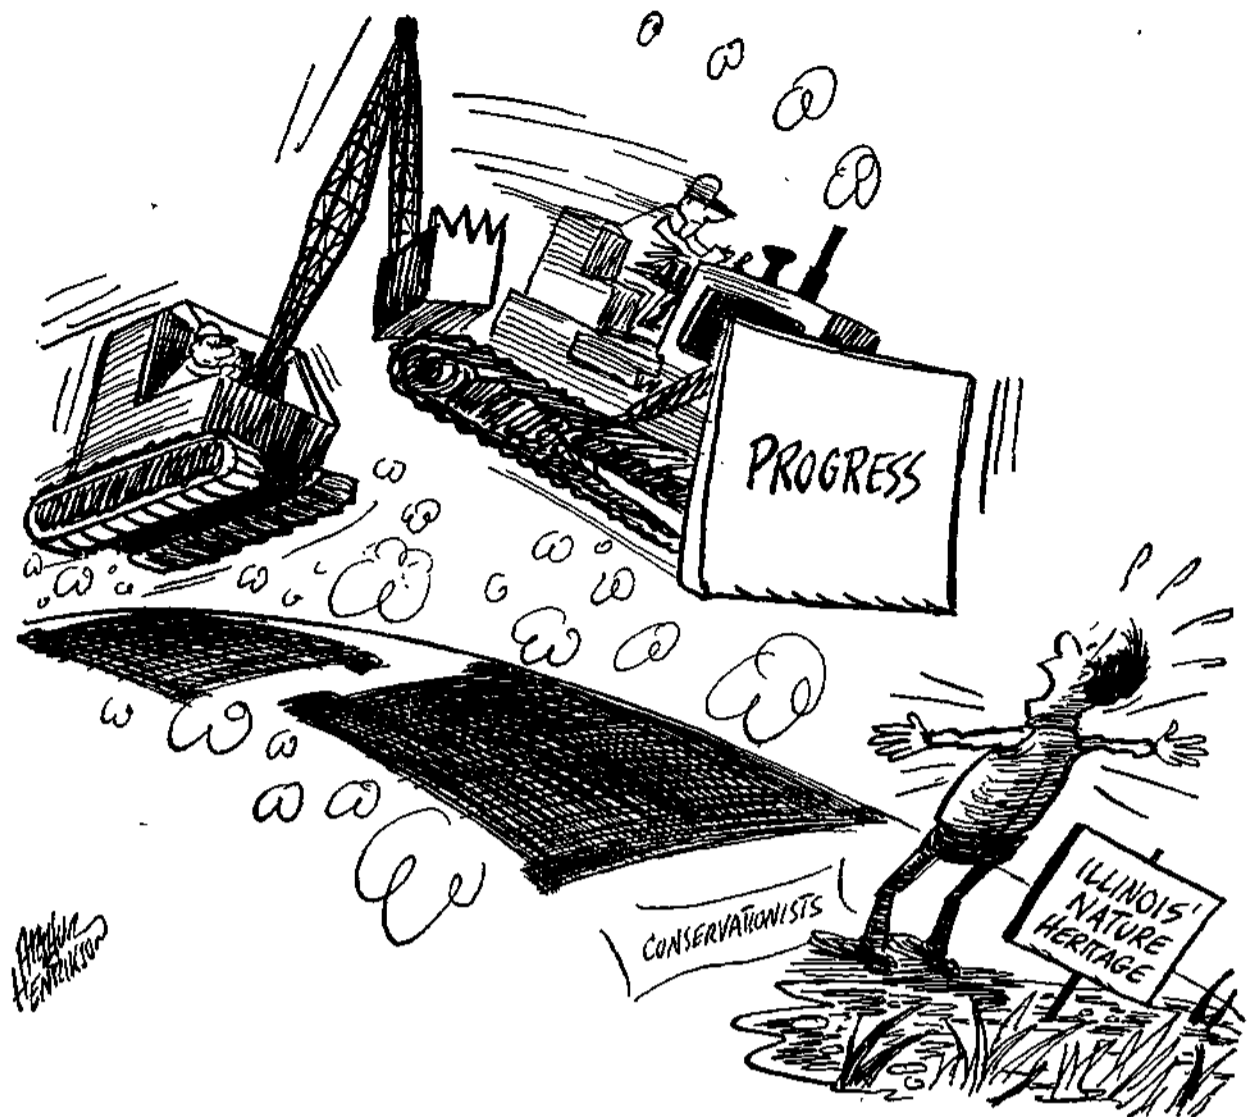

The Chamber has been discussing a student intern program, suggested by Rod McLennan, assistant superintendent of Dist. 214. Here local teens would work with businessmen to gain an exposure to various fields.

Not only can this work, but with the right publicity it can pay off by creating a good image for the participating companies.

I GUESS, JUST like everyone else, businessmen have to overcome their hangups. The sickened feeling that occurs in the pit of their stomach, everytime they hear the word charity or donation, with the proper therapy, can be relieved.

There is a cure, and it could start in the halls of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce.

Ditch Solution Found

by ALAN AKERSON

It took them three months, but Buffalo Grove village trustees have finally taken some action that might result in a solution to the problem of the drainage ditch lying behind Farrington Drive. The solution has been lying right under their noses.

The problem with the ditch stems from the fact that it has steep side slopes and a muddy bottom. Residents living on Farrington Drive and Springside Lane have long been concerned about the ditch because they fear a child might tumble down the side of it and become trapped in the mud. Moreover, there is often about five or six inches of water in the ditch — more than enough to drown a small child.

THE DITCH IS not fenced. A culvert that carries water from the ditch across a road to another ditch is placed two or three feet above the ditch bottom. As a result water in the ditch must be at least a few feet deep before it even has a chance of being drained.

Area residents brought the matter to the village board in mid-July. They asked that a fence be built around the ditch.

So began a wrestling match between the ditch and the village board. To date it has lasted three months.

Questions quickly arose as to whether the ditch was ever approved by the village engineer. Then, too, there was the question of whether the developer of the area, Harold Friedman, or the builder, Levitt and Sons Inc., was responsible for fixing the ditch.

FINALLY THE village board concluded the ditch did indeed violate the village's subdivision ordinance. But who was to fix it remained a question.

The land on which the ditch is located is part of a parcel that is to be turned over to the village as dedicated land in connection with the Lake County portion of the Strathmore subdivision.

And so it went — for three months. Whenever one question about the ditch was answered, another question arose. And through it all, no work was done on the ditch.

Finally last week, Robert Gleeson, one of the trustees, asked that a citation be issued to the developer because, in Gleeson's words, "he didn't finish the ditch."

IT TOOK another board meeting to have the followup work on the citation itself done.

At Monday's board meeting, however, the trustees came up with a simple, and hopefully, effective solution. They simply told Levitt they refused to even discuss approval of the builder's final three Strathmore units. This would involve about 300 homes. They refused, that is, until corrective work on the ditch is taken.

As a basis for their action, the trustees pointed out the ditch is part of the land to be turned over to the village in connection with the final three units.

So now it remains to be decided between Levitt and the developer, who is going to do the work on the ditch. And, though the village didn't put a time limit on when the decision was to come, probably such a time limit was not needed. Probably that decision will come — and soon.

Absentee Vote Query 'Just Plain Dirty'

The current attempt by some papers, suggesting something illegal about candidate Crane's absentee ballots, is just plain dirty. All the candidates are using the same "drop" address routine. It is a necessity with our ridiculous law that will not permit absentee votes to be mailed within the district. And our citizens cannot vote ahead of time at their local village hall, as it is done in the other states. The stupid "drop" is the only legal way to get a ballot voted, notarized, sealed and back to the county building by Election Day.

Our district has thousands of airline personnel living here who may be gone on Election Day. They do not know ahead of time so to be sure of a vote, they vote absentee. If they are in the district on Election Day, they are legally bound to go to their own polling place and vote in person. That vote is marked by their name in the binder.

Clinic Informative

Mrs. Thomas Rappel, St. Edna's Women's Club president, and I would like to thank you and the Paddock staff for the "coffee and" on Sept. 9. It was a well run, fast paced, informative and hilarious meeting and I am so grateful we were able to attend. If all meetings could be as great and as enjoyable, people would flock to attend every meeting in town!

Janet K. Fleuchaus
(Mrs. Albert)
Publicity Chairman
St. Edna's Women's Club
Arlington Heights

After the polls are closed, the judges open up the absentee ballots and check the signatures with the binder and note whether a personal vote was cast that day — purely routine procedure and foolproof. If a person did vote in person, their absentee ballot is placed unopened and uncounted in a separate envelope for the purpose and returned to the county election department with the rest of the supplies.

Every election judge is familiar with this routine. Maybe obnoxious, but legal.

Would any of the papers care to investigate the practice of one hungry candidate who is scrounging for votes in a rest home in Niles Township? Long after legal registration was closed, he personally took the elderly ladies down to the county building, managed to get them registered and "absentee" votes. Now that is illegal.

Jane M. Brown
Palatine Township

Easily Scared

I am writing in response to Rick Friedman's column of Oct. 3. If the thought of lower taxes, cuts in government spending, a peaceful solution to the war in Vietnam, stiffer penalties for criminals, programs which stress incentive rather than hand-outs and the restoration of faith in America which Phil Crane has the courage to work for "scared the hell" out of Mr. Friedman, then I would be inclined to think that the standing head "Ravings" which appears with each column is appropriate.

Personally, I think that Rick Friedman scares easily.

Between the Lines

A Get-Together, Finally!

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

It was a long time coming, but it's finally going to happen.

The Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates village boards are getting together to discuss mutual problems. The date for the joint meeting is Oct. 21, 8 p.m., in the Great Hall.

"IN THE PAST there has been a problem of communications between the two communities," Hoffman Estates Mayor Fred Downey said in announcing the meeting.

That's quite an understatement. The "official" silence between the two communities has almost been deafening during the past several years. This is the first sign of an attempt to do something concrete about it, and we're glad to see it.

Downey added, "We are now making efforts to come up with joint solutions to mutual problems and still have friendly competition." That sounds pretty good.

Preliminary talks were held last week between Mayor Robert Alcher of Schaumburg and Downey. The two will get together before Oct. 21 to set up an agenda.

DOWNEY SAID SOME of the areas of mutual concern touched on last week were common drainage problems in the western portions of the villages; extending Salem Drive north to Jones Road to alleviate traffic congestion on Roselle Road; the possibility of interconnecting water systems; mutual meetings of the two plans commissions and zoning boards.

A few other areas that might be considered at the joint meeting include:

—Locations of public land sites. School sites, parks, even fire stations should be located to serve a maximum number of residents, whether they're from Hoffman Estates or Schaumburg.

—Transportation. Pressure is needed not only from Schaumburg, but also Hoffman Estates to speed the state and county in widening the major roads in the township. Since 90 per cent of the residents in both communities drive to work, it's even more important.

And in the same area, it's time to start thinking about public transportation within the township. Now it would be a service for housewives without cars, but soon it will be demanded by industry and commerce.

—YOUTH CENTER. If both communities put a little effort behind it, the teen center proposed by Hoffman Estates several years ago and now languishing, could become a reality.

—Common administrative facilities. Computers could be shared to ease the clerical burdens, joint traffic studies could be made, a full-time sanitarian for the two villages could be hired. The list is endless.

Who knows, this could be the first step toward a merger of the two communities. In the first 10 years the two communities chose to go it alone. Maybe in the next 10 years, they'll come to see the benefits of one united community in Schaumburg Township.

Police Chiefs Cop Out of Love-In

by BARRY SIGALE

Some area police chiefs had a golden opportunity to do their collective thing at Miami Beach Sunday night but turned down an invitation to unleash themselves and get in the groove.

In short, they blew it. The chiefs were part of a contingent of more than 4,000 law enforcement leaders from over 20 nations attending the annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs.

Miami's chief love-in agent, Hank Roberts, copped a plea with the police officials asking them to frolic in the grass with about 3,000 local long-haired youths in the name of "peace and harmony."

APPARENTLY, THE POLICE chiefs saw the invitation a little differently and only a small fraction of the visitors to the resort town accepted the "invitation."

It seems that Sunday night was the scheduled wing-ding for all the chiefs at the Fountainbleu Hotel and the reception there was more important to them than having a high old time with the peaceful generation.

The love-in was called for by the 37-year-old Roberts, a boutique operator, who packed 'em in earlier in the month with a big bash at a local baseball park where 3,000 flower children loved each other.

THE SITE OF THE Sunday night fete was set for a grassy area near Miami Beach's Convention Hall, where the Republican party nominated Richard Nixon to lead their party to victory.

Thus time, the old pro politicians were replaced by tomorrow's adults and the area vacated by the throngs of party officials was filled by the new generations. But the chiefs didn't show.

"The thing didn't really materialize," said John O'Connell, Hoffman Estates police chief. "It was scheduled to be held near the convention hall on the other end of the city at the same time as the reception."

Mount Prospect chief Newell Esmond and Elk Grove chief Harry Jenkins both saw the love-in on television.

"WE DIDN'T PARTAKE in it," said Esmond. "I suppose it was very interesting and imaginative and made good publicity."

Jenkins summed it up in one sentence. "It wasn't on our schedule," he said.

The festival was authorized by Miami Beach's city council by an almost unanimous vote. One councilman refused to decide either way because, he said, "I don't know much about love-ins. I'm not voting."

Another area chief in Miami Beach was an interested M. O. Horcher, of Wheeling. Horcher said he intended to go to the love-in but couldn't find a way to get there.

"SON-OF-A-GUN," he said. "I wanted to see the thing in person. But there was a transportation problem and I had to wait to see it on television later that evening."

"I suppose it was quite educational," Horcher said. "I wanted to go because we could do either one or two different things.

We could either learn from them. Or we could teach them something. But, I didn't get the chance."

Oh yes, the convention. They discussed everything from soup to nuts during the Saturday to Thursday affair, including some of the sociological happenings in today's society.

A good workshop idea may have been to attend the festival and lie around, soak up some rock music and enjoy the beautiful generation.

The Lighter Side

He's Statistic

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economists, who can never agree on anything, have given several different interpretations of the abrupt rise in unemployment reported this week.

So I decided that perhaps a clearer picture could be obtained by interviewing one of the blue collar workers who lost his job in the September payroll cutbacks.

"Would you give us your name, sir?"

"My name is Harvey Swingshift."

"And what is your occupation?"

"Until a couple of weeks ago, I was employed as a nubby weave machine operator in a textile plant."

"Do you interpret your part in the unemployment increase as a cooling of the economy?"

"I certainly do, and also as a cooling off of my apartment."

"Your apartment?"

"Yes. After I lost my job I couldn't pay the rent, so they cut off the heat."

"During September, there was an actual increase of 90,000 in the jobless ranks and a seasonally adjusted increase of 365,000. Which group are you in?"

"Both. I actually can't pay my rent and I can't get seasonally adjusted to living in a cold apartment."

"Well, look at the bright side. Economists say the unemployment rise may mean inflationary pressures are tapering off. Aren't you pleased about that?"

"I would be thrilled to death if I weren't likely to freeze to death first."

"Economists also say that if inflation is checked, interest rates may be reduced. Would you care to comment on that?"

"I am mainly interested in getting the heat turned back on."

"Some economists predict that if interest rates are reduced, the stock market will boom again. How do you feel about the market?"

"I am in the market for a little heat."

"It seems to me, sir, that you have a bad attitude. Runaway inflation could have wrecked our economy. You should be proud to know that losing your job will help promote economic stability."

"I only regret that I have but one set of goosebumps to give to my country."

Tashkent: Reborn Out of a Quake

by PHILIP REED

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (UPI) —This ancient southern Soviet desert city, devastated by an earthquake three years ago, is turning into one of Russia's most modern cities.

When the earth turned into rolling waves on April 26, 1966, one third of the city's housing was leveled within 20 seconds, 15 persons were killed and 75,000 families left homeless.

Residents weren't long in getting back on their feet. Thousands without homes pitched tents in the streets. Others found living space with relatives or built new homes outside the ruined city with materials supplied by the state.

Many others left the city for other parts of the country where jobs and housing were arranged.

Then the rebuilding began. From each of the Soviet Union's 15 republics and several major cities came 40,000 volunteers, architects and engineers.

Each group brought its own building materials, staked out a destroyed section of the city and went to work in three-month shifts before being replaced by the next wave of volunteers.

Out of the rubble has risen some of the most modern and spacious apartments, schools, government buildings, hospitals and stores in Russia.

"They may not be as good as the big houses owned by American capitalists but they have everything we need. They are the best in the U.S.S.R.," said Aron Aronov, a Soviet foreign tourist guide.

More than 1,000 tremors have been felt since the 1966 quake. But local officials are so confident of their new "earthquake proof" methods of construction that they have begun a subway scheduled to begin shuttling its first passengers by the early 1970s.

"Before people used to run into the streets whenever there was a tremor," said Aronov, who lives in a three-room apartment in a new section built by the Ukrainian Republic.

"Now, when my wife is cooking in the kitchen and there is a shock, she says: 'Stay here. Dinner is almost ready.' Nobody is afraid anymore."

Construction goes on around the clock in an attempt to complete the work by April, 1970, the 100th birthday of V. I. Lenin, the founding father of Russian Communism, and the deadline for much of the construction going on in the Soviet Union.

By then, three times the original housing destroyed in 1966 is scheduled for completion. When it is done Tashkent will be one of the few cities in the Soviet Union without a housing shortage, Aronov said.

"We had planned to rebuild the city by 1975 or 1980. The earthquake just speeded it up a little, that's all," he said.

ATEA Meet Begins Today In the Towers

General sessions will cover the approach of industry to technical education, administration and accreditation of vocational-technical education, and federal guidelines.

ON FRIDAY, DONALD Andries, Harper's community relations director, will speak at a noon luncheon on "The History and Development of Harper College."

The conference will be highlighted on Saturday with speeches by Robert C. Barthel, assistant secretary of the North Central Association of accreditation, on "Progress on Regional Accreditation for Vocational-Technical Education" and Michael Russo, U. S. Office of Education, Washington, D. C., on "Federal Guidelines."

Over 20 exhibits selected for technical educators will be displayed today and tomorrow.

CON-CON NOMINEES MEN AND WOMEN OF THE WEEK

Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association salutes the four Third District constitutional convention (con-con) nominees as our "Men and Women of the Week."

John G. Woods, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness are deserving of this recognition because of the public service they are extending to the Northwest area in willingness to be elected as delegates to an important Illinois convention.

Two of the four will be elected Nov. 18 as representatives to the sessions opening Dec. 8 in Springfield. It will be an important assignment which will help to determine the state's goals and guidelines for taxation, home rule of municipalities, selection of judges, and possible aid to private schools.

Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association hopes that the four nominees will campaign with an independent rather than partisan party view regarding what is best for Illinois in reshaping an outmoded constitution. If they do so, they are truly "Men and Women of the Week."

The Tragic Stalemate Continues

by JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI)—The Nigerian civil war, bloodiest in black Africa's history, has ground to a stalemate after more than two years and an estimated cost of two million lives.

As in Vietnam, a clearcut victory for either the Nigerian Federal Government or breakaway Biafra now appears unlikely.

Western officials see a political settlement at the peace table as the only alternative to even greater bloodshed, suffering and starvation.

Biafra recently accepted a federal Nigerian offer to begin new peace talks in still another attempt to end the conflict.

Yet the prospects are not favorable.

Three times in the past two years at Kampala, Uganda, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and Monrovia, Liberia, peace talks have failed.

Each time the obstacle was obstinacy—the federal government's rigid insistence a peace settlement must include Biafra's return to the federation and Biafra's equally rigid demand for independence.

Pope Paul VI, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and former French President Charles de Gaulle all have tried and failed to end the war.

Now, barring signs of readiness by both sides to compromise—and there are no such signs yet—Western officials are frankly pessimistic about prospects for an end to the conflict.

The Nigerian civil war began July 6, 1967, when federal forces invaded the country's eastern region. They did so to quell a revolt by its leaders, who had announced secession from the federation set up when Nigeria was granted independence in 1960 after 80 years of British colonial rule. The eastern leaders proclaimed creation of an independent state known as Biafra.

The bulk of the eastern region's population are Ibos, one of 12 major peoples—each with its own language and customs—who live in what is black Africa's most populous state.

The Ibos are widely considered one of the most progressive and skilled African peoples. Tens of thousands had settled in other regions of Nigeria. They were prominent in government, the civil service, industry and trade.

These very qualities made the Ibos feared and resented by other Nigerians. In the fall of 1966 there were large-scale massacres of Ibos in other parts of the country. They resulted in a mass flight of Ibos back to their eastern homeland.

These were the sparks that touched off the eastern region secession in the spring of 1967 and led to the civil war.

When he launched the invasion, Nigerian federal government chief Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon predicted it would be a "surgical police action."

The federals, better armed and vastly outnumbering the Ibos, have conquered most of the eastern region and pushed the embattled Ibos back into their own heartland.

Originally, Biafra covered an area of roughly 40,000 square miles with a population of 15 million, of whom about 10 million were Ibos.

Now the Biafrans have been squeezed back into a small sausage-shaped area of 5,000 square miles—roughly the size of Connecticut—with an estimated seven million inhabitants.

Only one city, Owerri, remains in Biafran hands. Present-day Biafra is entirely surrounded by the federals. Its only contact with the outside world is a primitive airstrip at Uli.

Yet, despite superior weapons bought largely from Britain and the Soviet Union and the fact they have an estimated 100,000 men under arms, the federals have not been able to win the war.

Large scale fighting has been virtually at a standstill during the rainy season which began in April and ends in October.

Federal army losses have been estimated at 20,000 killed and wounded. Biafran losses are probably at least as high. But the real tragedy of the war has been the gradual starvation of the Biafran people, cut off from outside food supplies except for a trickle hazily flown in at night by relief planes.

Western officials estimate at least two million Biafrans, many of them children, have died of starvation or because they were caught in the fighting.

Yet neither federal Nigeria's Gowon nor Biafra's Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu will compromise. Both are young—Gowon is 34, Ojukwu, 35. They were contemporaries at Britain's Sandhurst Military Academy, from which both graduated.

Renewed peace talks were suggested by the federal government at the end of August and on Sept. 12 Biafra announced it was asking the federals to name a friendly country to help arrange a meeting. Biafra said it would make a similar proposal.

But neither side has shown a willingness to compromise and western officials here say there is little hope of agreement unless both sides are ready to abandon their rigid attitudes.

ELKHART, IND. (GGC Service)—Back in silent movie days the organist's musical interpretation of the film story was a featured attraction that often overshadowed the drama unfolded on the screen. Now the excitement and fun of those organ antics can be faithfully recreated in the home on the Conn Theatre Organ by any member of the family.

All-Star Cast

This spectacular, compact instrument, with its rainbow placement of 62 vari-colored, illuminated voice and coupler tabs, presents an all-star cast of features including the Conn Fun-Master, Rhythm Section, Stereo Expression Control and reverb, its 26 speaking voices include chimes, special theatrical voicing in brass-trumpet, Vox Humana and Accompaniment Tube.

Two separate built-in speaker systems, including a two-speed Leslie, solid state keyers and independent tone generation provide the quality of true organ sound that makes every Conn Organ delightfully listenable.

The Conn Theatre model is available in walnut finish and, for those whose nostalgia knows no bounds, antique white (on special order).

Land: A New 'Treasure'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Corporations are conducting unique treasure hunts in their own back yards—and front yards, too.

Many companies are discovering they have immensely valuable hidden assets in real estate carried on their books at cost. Frequently, the property has not been appraised since it was bought as long ago as 20, 30, or even 50 years.

Edmund J. McRikard, a partner in Brooks, Harvey & Co., a New York-based firm which arranges permanent financing for real estate ventures, warns that the inflation of the last two decades has made it imperative for corporations to take a hard look at the present and potential value of their holdings.

The swift increase in conglomerates has made corporate managements aware, some of them painfully, that acquisition-minded companies are looking sharply for companies that have hidden real estate potential on their books.

"Undervalued and unencumbered real estate offers a borrowing power to an acquiring company that can offset the purchase cost," McRikard said.

Alternatively, he said the best use of the real estate can be in development that results from increased cash flow. Sophisticated financing devices such as sale-leasebacks undertaken by the company alone or through a joint venture can result in tax advantages or supply capital in today's tight money markets.

The problem with many corporations is that for years they have regarded their real estate management as simply one of administration, McRikard said.

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,992; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,920; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Daly of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, of Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Meaham

Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center, which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,300-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated.

It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 53 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

Walkout Threatened Today at Fremd

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weimer, Fremd High School principal, said.

In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weimer said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

Youth Commissioner Post Added by Park

By unanimous consent, Hoffman Estates park directors created the post of youth commissioner Tuesday and agreed to name a Conant High School senior to the newly established position.

Members of the park administration committee will soon begin to interview prospective applicants for the nonpaying post from a list of students submitted to them by school officials.

Hopefully, the student chosen to serve as youth commissioner will be appointed by Park Pres. Robert L. Schuhr at the board's next regular meeting Tuesday, Oct. 21.

In subsequent years, however, the student will be appointed at the end of his junior year and will serve the following summer and school year until his graduation. He will be required, in addition to assigned tasks, to attend a minimum of one park board meeting each month.

According to Schuhr, the youth commissioner will act in an advisory capacity to the board in matters of park facilities and activities.

Conceived by Schuhr, the idea is designed to provide youth of the community with their own spokesman on park affairs and activities and to stimulate student interest in park and recreation careers.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillesheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillesheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we are working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a

Fund Week Ends Today

Today marks the culmination of United Fund Week in Schaumburg Township, but volunteers will continue collecting in some areas in the next two weeks, according to Richard McArthur, general chairman. Actually, the month of October is United Fund Month.

The 1970 campaign goal of the Schaumburg Township-Hanover Park United Fund is $10,000.

Volunteers will turn in their first collections tonight at the Schaumburg Township Library, and a progress report on the campaign will then be available.

HOWEVER, MARCHERS will not be out in strength in Hanover Park until this evening.

A contribution of $5 per family is being requested for the local United Fund. This is established as a minimum donation of 50 cents for 10 of the 14 participating agencies.

The Schaumburg Township-Hanover Park United Fund has a budget in 1970 totaling $25,650. Of this amount, $15,650 will be provided through the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. The local United Fund is one of 88 suburban community chests and funds which share in the Metropolitan Crusade.

AGENCIES THAT benefit from the United Fund campaign include Clearbrook Center, Northwest Mental Health Clinic, Family Service Association of Elgin, Family Service Association of Des Plaines, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Twinbrook YMCA, Salvation Army, USO, Hoffman Estates Boys' Club and the Leukemia Research Foundation.

Thomas Stocco, 514 Hawthorn, Hoffman Estates, is president of the Schaumburg Township-Hanover Park United Fund.

Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillesheim said.

School administrators attribute the idea of a walkout at Fremd to publicity of a nationwide walkout on college campuses next week when students will spend the day trying to convince citizens to oppose the Vietnam war.

No mention was made of the Vietnam issue in the literature passed out yesterday, according to Hillesheim.

"I DON'T THINK many students will walk out," Janice Rennack, another Fremd senior, said. "Seniors won't do it because they have too much at stake."

Weimer said he has had phone calls

VOLUNTEER MARCHER Mrs. James Hendrickson calls at the residence of Mrs. Frank Infusino, 1410 Colby Lane, Schaumburg, on behalf of the United Fund. Volunteers are soliciting donations in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Hanover Park through today during United Fund Week. The campaign goal is $10,000.

Gene Knows That He's Out

by TOM WELLMAN and ALAN AKERSON

The quiet disbelief that marked Tuesday night at Gene Schlickman's Wheeling Township headquarters in the Arlington Carousal Restaurant gave way to grim acceptance yesterday morning.

For the men and women, the veterans of other Wheeling Township campaigns, it was a disappointing defeat. Many had worked long hours to sell their candidate to the voters.

For the Schlick Chicks, the seemingly endless horde of youthful campaign workers, it must have been difficult to wake up yesterday and realize the fun and energy had not produced a winner.

FOR THE INNER circle — the men and women who stayed at Schlickman's office on Campbell Street — it was a bitter defeat. Yesterday some of them were looking for paying or volunteer jobs.

The wake began at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday when several precinct captains walked into the almost-empty Carousal basement and posted their precincts on the tally board.

Wheeling Township committeeman Richard Cowen and several others looked on quietly as Crane's total mounted. Crane was not tallying 5 or 10 per cent of the vote; he was scoring 15, 20 and even 30 per cent forays into precincts in "safe" Schlickman territory.

And Schlickman was not winning 70, 80 or 90 per cent. By 7 p.m., before the adding machines were whirring, a Herald tally of eight precincts showed Schlickman with only a 2-1 edge over Crane, with the other candidates — except Joe Mathewson and Sam Young — out of the picture.

AT THE REAR of the big room, Fremd Yonkers and other volunteers took calls from other townships. And the bad news came early; for example, Schlickman tallied only a quarter of the Palatine Township vote, and the eastern townships were out of his grasp.

Slowly, precinct captains reported in with individual precincts, but the picture did not change. Schlickman was winning in the township, but he was not sweeping it. And he would need a sweep to gain the GOP nomination.

By the time 8:00 of the 89 precincts were in, Schlickman was holding about 43 per cent of the vote. Crane was holding at 27 per cent.

Finally, 87 of 89 precincts were in, and Schlickman had landed 42.5 per cent — 5,432 votes — of the township total. Crane, sweeping precincts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, tallied 26.7 per cent — 3,414 votes.

SCHLICKMAN couldn't manage to carry more than half of his township, and Crane had captured more than a quarter of it.

According to Ron Wittmeyer, Schlickman's finance chairman, his candidate needed to carry the township "by about a 3-1 margin."

"We also needed second place finishes for Gene in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships," he said.

Others agreed and began to wonder out loud why Crane had run so strong. Personal charisma, a powerful volunteer organization and a last-minute letter to voters from Crane's wife were all mentioned.

Cowen observed that several factors worked against Schlickman, including his legislative vote for the state income tax, support of HB 1241 (which antagonized many Prospect Heights voters) and the lack of any substantial eastern vote.

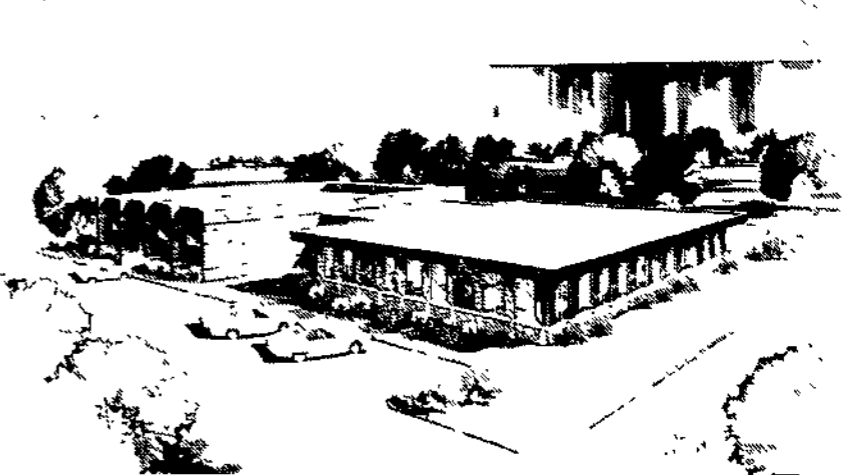

"CRANE MARSHALLED a strongly conservative vote. He's an effective platform speaker. He's articulate and a strong campaigner."

"He's accomplishing what all of us talked about; he carried one township and ran second or third in virtually every other," Cowen said.

Finally, Schlickman came over to officially thank his backers for their effort.

The man who had hoped to weld a powerful voting bloc in the western half of what has been called the most affluent Congressional district in America stood on a table with his wife and was generous with his thanks:

"During this campaign I learned more than I learned in any previous campaign and I met more dependable and wonderful people than in all of my previous eight campaigns."

Du Pont Ground Broken

Groundbreaking took place this week for an office and laboratory facility being built for the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. in Schaumburg Industrial Park.

The Du Pont building will be constructed on 1 1/2 acres. It will be a contemporary design of stone, brick and glass offering 19,000 square feet of floor space.

The combined lab-office facility will be located at Meacham and Remington roads.

The leasing and management agent for Schaumburg Industrial Park is Arthur Rubloff & Co.

The 240-acre park is bounded by the Northwest Tollway, Route 53, Meacham Road and Plum Grove Road. It has direct access from the adjacent four-way cloverleaf intersection of the tollway and Route 53.

Intersection Warrants Guard

A permanent crossing guard is being sought to handle the intersection of Roselle Road at Arizona Boulevard in Hoffman Estates.

Complaints that the crossing was not being properly guarded for children coming to and from St. Hubert's School were called into the Herald's office.

Police Chief John O'Connell told the Herald that a patrol car is stationed at the intersection when children are coming to and from school.

The patrolman is instructed to sit in the car and listen to the police radio. If children approach the intersection the officer is to get out of the car and see that the child crosses safely.

THE PATROL car may be called away if all other police vehicles are tied up and the officer at the crossing is needed elsewhere.

The only solution is to get a permanent crossing guard, Chief O'Connell said. The job is available but there are no takers, he added.

Crossing guards are paid $1.50 per hour starting wage. They are to be at the crossing at 8:15 in the morning for 30 or 40 minutes.

The children are sent home for lunch at 11:30 and return at 12:20, so about an hour is needed then too, the chief said.

The children are dismissed from school at 2:30 p.m. for the day so the crossing guard must be there for 30 or 40 minutes in the afternoon too, he added. A full three hours wages are paid each day.

Persons interested in the position should call the Hoffman Estates Police Dept. at 894-3131.

Thorsen Takes All But One

440 Are Signed Up For Music Program

Approximately 440 Dist. 54 students have registered to participate in the instrumental music program for pupils in grades four to eight in 1969-70.

Effective this year, the Dist. 54 board of education eliminated the $15 fee previously charged for music instruction. However, each pupil must have an instrument.

Parents may obtain instruments from any manufacturer either by purchasing them or through a trial-rental plan.

A SERIES of information nights explaining the Dist. 54 instrumental program to parents was held recently in the Schaumburg Township elementary district. Demonstrations of the various band and orchestra instruments were given to parents and interested students.

The objective of the Dist. 54 instrumental music program is to give each pupil the opportunity to explore his or her interest, talent, and capacity for work in the field of music.

According to Gregory Gorski, Dist. 54 director of music, "music today is recognized as having an important place in education and the lives of everyone. It is a universal language that enriches our lives individually and socially. Its value as a worthwhile activity for leisure time, both in childhood and in maturity, is unquestioned."

BEGINNING instrumental pupils in Dist. 54 are put on a three-month trial program. Following the trial period, parents are given a progress report on their child's progress and continued interest.

About 10 per cent of the beginning students do not continue past the trial period, Gorski said.

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1958 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin
For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Daily of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

COLORFUL LEAVES still cling to the trees throughout the forest preserves just east of Wheeling. Soon, however, the ground will be covered with them as fall arrives in earnest.

Village May Win
Solicitation War

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ordinances prohibiting door-to-door solicitation in Wheeling remain in effect, despite a recent Illinois Supreme Court refusal to review a lower court decision against the laws.

Essentially, the three Wheeling ordinances require licensing of solicitors, declare that door-to-door sales are a nuisance and prohibit trespassing on private property for solicitation.

Lower courts have declared that those three ordinances may not be applied against two companies, the Chicago American Publishing Co. and Field Enterprises, publishers of World Book Encyclopedia. The two companies won court cases against the ordinances.

THE VILLAGE HAS won several suits upholding the laws in actions brought by other companies, however, according to Village Atty. Paul Hamer.

The lower court decisions favoring the Field and American Companies, which said that the ordinances were invalid because the village had no statutory authority to make those laws, apply only to the two companies.

Other firms or charity organizations which solicit door-to-door may still be charged with violations under the three ordinances.

Moreover, a new village ordinance, passed originally to protect school property, can be used by the village against Field and American if they attempt to solicit in the village, Hamer said.

THAT NEW ORDINANCE includes a section saying it is unlawful to go on a person's property if he has a sign saying he allows no trespassing and if he points that sign out to a potential trespasser. While that ordinance does not stop a solicitor from ringing the doorbell, it does give a person who has posted a sign the right to call the police if a solicitor refuses to leave.

That ordinance, more recent than the first three, now has statutory support, according to Hamer. That support is House Bill 1474, signed into law Aug. 5 by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The new law gives municipalities authority to prevent trespassing as a disturbance. Although it is primarily a law to stop sit-ins rather than solicitations, it nevertheless allows municipalities to protect both public and private property from trespassing, regardless of the reason.

He said if Field Enterprises and the American company try to test this new ordinance in court they may find that the village now does have statutory authority to enact such laws.

HAMER ALSO SAID that a fifth village ordinance might be added, based on a recommended ordinance being drawn up by the Illinois Municipal League. That ordinance, which could be applied to solicitors, can be adopted uniformly by villages across the state.

Wheeling has been fighting to prevent door-to-door solicitors, from charity drive workers to vacuum cleaner salesmen, since the first three ordinances were enacted.

Although the village has lost some battles, it looks as though Wheeling may win the war.

Absentee Ballots Studied

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,981 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,058 votes and Young, 15,401.

Largest Shop Center Is Under Way

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walk-ways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, emphasizing one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 385,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Meacham Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

Countryside Has Job Training

(Editors Note: The 1969 United Fund campaign in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be next week. Last year the campaign collected $12,000, which was distributed among the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Northwest Mental Health Center, Countryside-DOOR, Inc. and the Salvation Army. This year fund raisers hope to collect $14,400. Continuing today is the third in a five-part series on the recipients of United Fund proceeds.)

by SUE CARSON

Supplementing the special education programs of the public schools and providing vocational training to handicapped adults is the task of Countryside Center for the Retarded.

Located on Shirley Road north of Palatine, the center includes several buildings scattered among shady trees on a grassy, six-acre plot of land.

"We are a private school, but our ownership rests with the public since we receive public funds," explained Ralph Walberg, executive director.

"We aid the public schools by providing services to children who cannot be helped in public school special education programs. When Countryside was first founded in 1958, we could provide only for the mentally retarded child. Since then we have expanded our services to include emotionally disturbed persons as well."

THE CENTER ALSO operates a vocational training program which enables some of those attending to be placed in light industrial jobs upon completing the program.

Those who do not take jobs in outside industry may be employed in the center's sheltered workshop.

This workshop holds sub-contracts from local companies to perform such jobs as assembling boxes, packaging dinnerware and assembling and packaging bicycle safety brakes.

Currently 40 children are enrolled in the Countryside day-school and 47 adults in the workshop program. Those attending come from Palatine, Wheeling and Elk Grove townships as well as the towns of Long Grove, Libertyville, Mundelein and Fox River Grove.

COUNTRYSIDE ALSO operates DOOR, Inc. in Wheeling. DOOR (Direction to Opportunity through Occupation and Rehabilitation) is an evaluation center. The vocational and rehabilitation needs of those attending are determined there. Six persons are enrolled in the DOOR program.

"Children in the day school program learn social skills, how to function in a group, and the 'readiness skills,' such as counting and identifying colors," said Mrs. Margaret Mundstock, day school coordinator.

Countryside operates four day-school classes, three for children 3-7 and one for older children.

"These children can be referred to the public schools when we think they are ready for it," she said.

The organization also serves a group of 14-15 year old boys, who have been referred from the public schools.

"THESE BOYS HAVE feelings of failure which have contributed to serious behavior problems. We try to build up their ego and make them feel wanted by allowing them to perform tasks at the center and having them participate in social activities," Mrs. Mundstock said.

Basic work skills are taught in the vocational training program, which has been operating for only 10 months.

Participants in this program are paid on the "piecework" system and earn an average of 58 cents an hour. Raises are provided on the basis of seniority and merit.

The shop is licensed by the Department of Labor, which allows it to pay less than the minimum wage.

"These people are definitely making a contribution to society," stated James De Ore, workshop coordinator.

He explained that those who can work in a competitive situation in local industry receive assistance in job placement in the program.

"IN THE PAST THREE months, six former clients at Countryside have taken regular jobs in local businesses," De Ore said. "None have come back to us once they have been placed on the job."

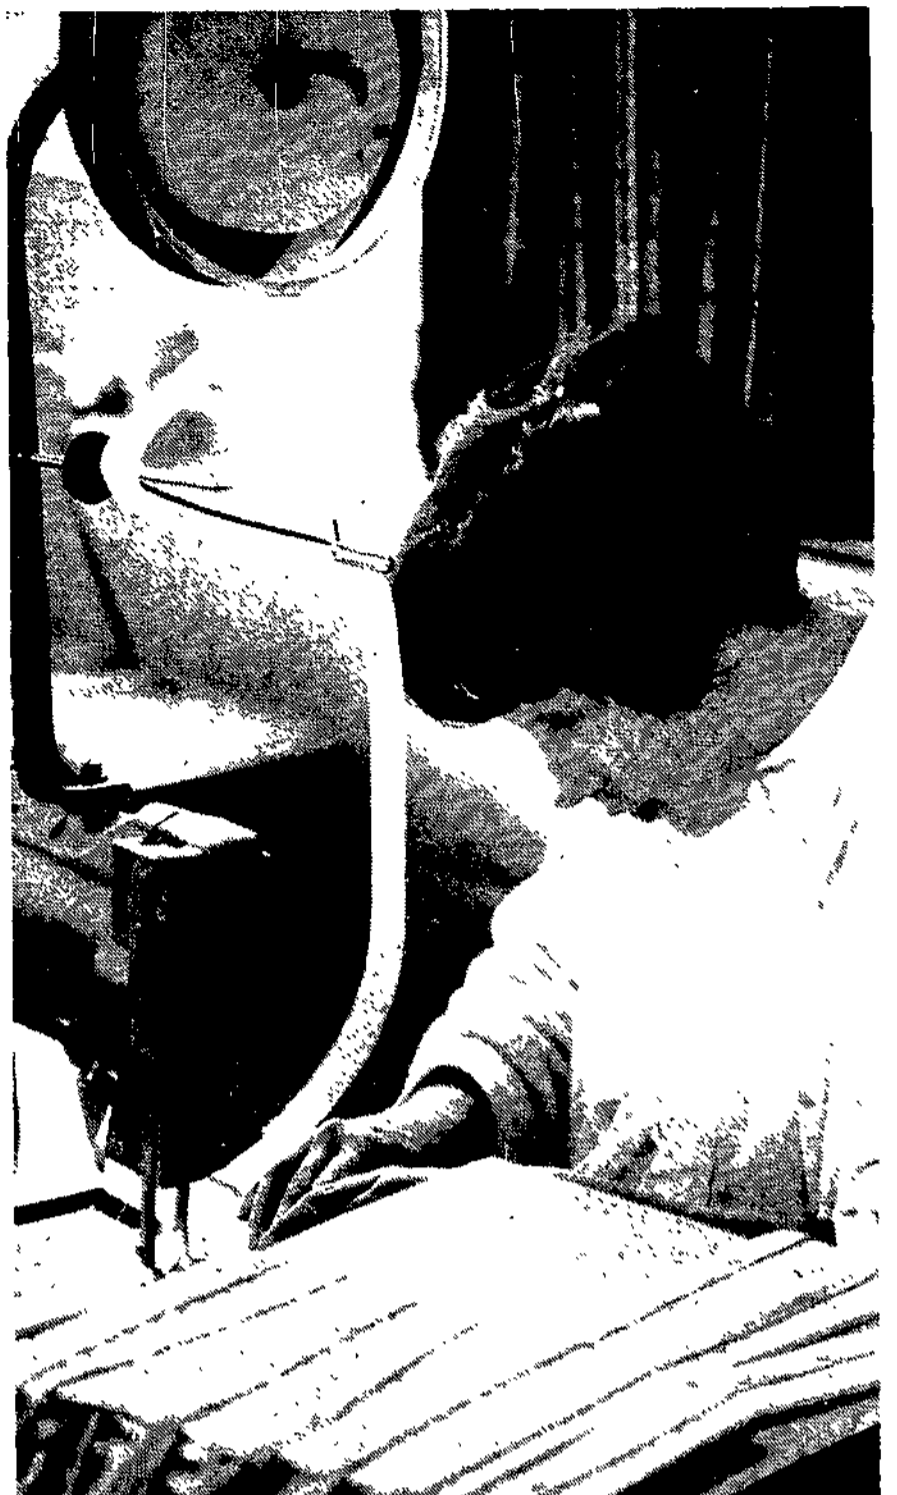

A new vocational workshop building is now under construction on the grounds. Scheduled for completion in December, the building will provide for 20-30 additional persons to be enrolled in the training program.

Funds to finance the center come from a variety of sources. Thirty per cent of the aid is provided by the Illinois Department of Mental Health and the Illinois Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

HOWEVER, 70 PER CENT of the total $205,000 operating budget must be raised locally. Part of the money comes from tuition, which is $48 per month per child.

Other monies come from local school districts, townships and contributions from organizations and individuals.

"Monies provided from the United Fund have decreased in recent years," De Ore stated. "In past years United Fund money has provided 25 per cent of our budget. Now, however, it is down to 10 per cent or less, forcing us to look elsewhere for funds."

INSTRUCTION in the use of the industrial sewing machine is one of the vocational training programs offered at Countryside Center for the Handicapped north of Palatine. Here, a participant in the program makes "sweat bands," frequently purchased by industrial concerns.

Library Purchase Delayed

Wheeling's library board was unable Tuesday night to approve a purchase option agreement for the St. Mark's United Church of Christ property because the appraisal of the land and the remodeling cost estimate have not been completed.

Library trustees decided the give L. B. Anderson and Co., Inc., until noon today to complete the appraisal which the firm has been working on for several weeks.

If the appraisal is not presented by then, the board plans to hire another appraiser through Roger Bjorvik, the board's attorney.

Although the board has received one figure of the property's worth from the real estate agent verbally, they said Tuesday that unless they have the appraisal in writing and know exactly what it includes,

they cannot negotiate the option agreement.

THE BOARD ALSO decided to contact an architect for estimates of remodeling costs.

Bjorvik read the proposed option agreement to the board but excluded the figures not yet available.

He said the board will pay $1,000 for an option to purchase the property at a negotiated price.

If the board does not purchase the property within six months because of failure of a referendum or other reason, it forfeits the $1,000 and loses its option.

Bjorvik also said that if appraisal figures turn out to be unreasonable or if negotiations with the church owners are unsuccessful, the district has a new power which may make finding a library site easier.

BJORVIK TOLD trustees that legislation passed in the last session of the Illinois General Assembly gives library districts the power to condemn land. That power would mean that if a landowner refuses to sell his property to the Wheeling district, the trustees can have the property condemned.

Referring to the property owned by the G. D. Searle Pharmaceutical Co., which lies adjacent to the new village municipal building along Dundee Road, Bjorvik said that the board might be able to "go back to Searle with authority." Earlier negotiations for purchase of that property proved fruitless.

The board also heard a presentation from Elic Nekimken who suggested the library board might compile a slide presentation in connection with a library referendum.

The slide show would be similar to one used to promote the "Torch" program, a forerunner to the current Community School Services program.

The trustees decided to see the Torch presentation before deciding if such a program would be appropriate for informing the public about the library referendum for a new building.

Pools Registration Deadline Is Nov. 1

A new deadline for registration of swimming pools in Wheeling has been set.

The deadline, now set for Nov. 1, will end registrations of existing swimming pools in the village. After that date, all pools will be considered new and will have to be inspected for compliance with the village's new swimming pool ordinance. Pools registered after that date will require a $2 fee for portable pools deeper than 24 inches and a $5 fee for permanent pools.

The deadline extension was made at Monday's village board meeting because of a delay in delivery of the village newsletter to residents. The deadline has been postponed three times since the passage of the ordinance in June.

Surprise Won Race for Crane

by ED MURNANE

A News Analysis

A stunning upset in Elk Grove Township and a strong showing on both ends of the 13th Congressional District put Philip M. Crane of Winnetka on the road to Washington as successor to former Congressman Donald Rumsfeld.

Crane pulled off the two major surprises of the 13th District GOP Primary election Tuesday — first by defeating Samuel Young in Elk Grove Township, and second, by defeating the six other serious candidates throughout the district.

He's not in yet, but only a battle with Democrat Edward Warman on Nov. 25 stands in his way, and a Democrat in the 13th District is not a serious threat to any Republican, be he conservative, like Crane, or liberal.

CRANE DID IT THE easy way — by running at or near the top in each of the eight 13th District townships.

He carried two, Palatine and Elk Grove, and ran second in four others. Only in Evanston, where he finished fourth, and in New Trier, where he was third, was Crane not in the running for the lead.

Why did he win? Why not Young, who had the endorsement of three of the eight townships and the Chicago Tribune? Why not Johnston, who had the endorsement of the powerful New Trier Township Republican organization?

A township-by-township analysis tells the tale.

FIRST, IN PALATINE, where Young had hoped to do well, Crane was an overwhelming winner with 2,831 votes. Young, who had a number of supporters who had backed the Palatine GOP organization following its endorsement of Crane, ran third behind Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights.

That was one strike against Young. His second one came in Elk Grove where Crane beat him by 75 votes. Young had been endorsed by the Elk Grove GOP, but Committeeman Carl Hansen failed to deliver.

The third strike against Young came in Evanston Township, a township he hoped to carry, but finished behind Johnston and only 200 votes ahead of Joseph Mathewson. That was it for Young.

JOHNSTON? HE WAS dead in his own New Trier Township, where he was only

Saga of Ditch Continues

And so the saga of the White Pines drainage ditch in Buffalo Grove continues. Monday night at the village board meeting, Morv Sisson, a representative of the village's engineering firm, told trustees it would cost $9,000 to grade and remove dirt from the drainage ditch. Sisson said that original drawings for the site "showed it to be a swampy area."

Sisson said that to build a closed culvert system to replace the ditch would be unfeasible.

TRUSTEE HENRY CINAGLIO, chairman of the public improvements committee, plans to seek permission from the owner of the land to remove dirt from the area to bring it to the level specified in the original drawings.

Earlier, the village board had given the owners of the land 10 days to remove the weeds in the area. The owners had cut them down but failed to remove them.

Because the weeds were reportedly not removed by the deadline, however, the board told Village Mgr. Richard Decker to issue a citation to the owners.

The land on which the ditch is located will be turned over to the village as part of its purchase of the Buffalo Utility Co. However, that purchase has been held up for almost a year, because the village has been unable to sell $4 million in bonds.

The ditch is located in the southern portion of the village behind White Pines Road.

Bookstore Bookie Booked

by BARRY SIGALE

Palatine police Wednesday closed down a local bookmaker whose yearly intake ranged from $45,000 to $75,000.

Charged with keeping a gambling place was Arthur Ziarkowski, of 4907 Bluebird Court, Crystal Lake. He is the owner of the Palatine Book Shop, where police said bets were taken on horse races.

ALSO PICKED UP was over $200 in cash, which was apparently taken in from betters and kept separate from the cash register, which held the day's receipts, police said.

Wednesday, police questioned some of the persons involved in placing bets, which apparently was only conducted in person, and from that information they had one of the betters make another bet while they waited for the transaction to occur.

The man went inside, exchanged his money with Ziarkowski for betting slips and the police followed to make the arrest. The better then showed police where the book was located containing other betting slips.

Centner said there was no evidence that Ziarkowski was involved with a syndicate operation and that no pickup man was observed at any time.

"AS FAR AS WE KNOW, he was only making bets on horse racing. There is no indication that he had anything to do with football or baseball gambling."

Ziarkowski was released after posting 10 per cent of the $300 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 7.

12-Month School Under Study

Tom Shirley, Wheeling High School principal, is one of 11 Dist. 214 and Dist. 211 officials who will travel to Atlanta, Ga.

later this month to examine that city's 12-month school program.

Dist. 214 is considering adopting a plan in which school facilities are fully used the year round, as in the Atlanta plan. Under that plan, about one-fourth of Atlanta students are on their three-month vacation sometime during the year.

"The dynamics of the plan are what I am particularly interested in," Shirley said. "Transition is always the difficult part. There would be so many people involved in the adoption of the plan students, parents, teachers, custodians, merchants."

SHIRLEY SAID it would be "pig-mature" to say whether or not the district will adopt the plan.

"We don't know what we will find. It may be that Atlanta has only a real fine summer school program. It is hard to say if they have a true 12-month program."

The group, which will leave Oct. 20 for Atlanta, will spend about five days in that city.

Also making the trip will be Dist. 214

board members Richard Bachhuber and Richard Stamm; Dist. 214 Instructional Coordinator Ruben Conrad; faculty members Dennis Olenki of Hersey High School and Herbert Laubenstein of Prospect High School, and citizens James DeLill and Martin Haring.

Dist. 211 officials making the trip include Leonard Nuendorf, principal of Palatine High School and school board members Carolyn Mullins and James Humphrey.

Auto Victim Was 16

The age of Deborah Ann Huber, who lost her life last September in an accident at the Buffalo Grove-Palatine Road intersection in Arlington Heights, was incorrectly stated on Sept. 26 as 15.

Deborah, 16, was on her way to work under a work-school program sponsored by Wheeling High School, when the accident occurred.

Walkout Threat at Fremd

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weimer, Fremd High School principal, said.

In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weimer said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillesheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillesheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we are working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said. "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillesheim said.

School administrators attribute the idea of a walkout at Fremd to publicity of a nationwide walkout on college campuses next week when students will spend the day trying to convince citizens to oppose the Vietnam war.

No mention was made of the Vietnam issue in the literature passed out yesterday, according to Hillesheim.

"I DON'T THINK many students will walk out," Janice Rennack, another Fremd senior, said. "Seniors won't do it because they have too much at stake."

Weimer said he has had phone calls from parents and students supporting the administration's stand against a walkout. "We've had kids come by the office to tell us they think it is a stupid thing to do."

"It's our job to make sure school is not disrupted," Hillesheim said. "I've talked with the five who were suspended to help them understand that we will listen to their suggestions, although we may not condone them."

Crane Has 'Great Victory'

by MURRAY DUBIN

Conservatively dressed in a dark green suit, a smiling Philip M. Crane, the 13th Congressional Republican campaign winner, held a press conference Tuesday night in a small room in the Dolphin Motel, Niles.

Sitting next to his beaming, pregnant wife, Arlene, the conservative history teacher told the eager press corps. "I feel just wonderful."

"This is a great, great victory and indicates the efforts of thousands of people. My victory expresses further belief that the great society is a thing of the past."

Three hours before, as the returns first began to trickle into Crane headquarters in Winnetka, Jerry Harknis, Crane's campaign manager said. "We've won. It's 6:25 p.m. and it's all over. You can quote me."

HIS OPTIMISTIC prediction fell on deaf ears and yellow Crane campaign buttons. But as the returns were being received, more and more people began to crowd into the renovated store front. Harknis told the crowd his strategy was to run first in Palatine Township and second everywhere else.

Crane showed up at 7 p.m. and appeared nervous and excited. He laughingly told Harknis, "I'll call you every 15 minutes."

By 7:10 p.m., the storefront was jammed and Harknis told the enthusiastic crowd that Crane was beating Joe Mathewson 2-1 in Niles Township.

Five "I'm for Crane" balloons hung precariously from a cheap chandelier. Crane popped in again, studied the fast-filling charts and said, "I wish I knew how to read these and determine trends."

"And I wish I knew how those western suburbs were doing."

At 7:50 p.m. Harknis, who had predicted 2,000 votes for Crane in Palatine Township, read the final Palatine figures to the crowd. "We've 2,800 votes in Palatine. It's all over."

A middle-aged woman in a mink rushed into the office and screamed, "Is it true? Have we won?"

THE CROWD roared "Yes!" and the gray-haired matron took three bottles of liquor out of a brown paper bag and passed them out. Minutes later, Harknis announced, "Just to add insult to injury, we just carried Elk Grove Township."

Someone broke the balloons as others huddled around the radio, smiling at the election returns. At 8:20 p.m., Harknis repeated for any disbelievers, "Whether you believe it or not, the election is over and Phil Crane has won!"

At the end of Crane's press conference, Crane who estimated his campaign costs at $9,000 dollars, was asked when he would start campaigning for his November runoff with Democrat Ed Warman. Crane replied, "Right now," and the crowd roared.

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Duty of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

COLORFUL LEAVES still cling to the trees throughout the forest preserves just east of Wheeling. Soon, however, the ground will be covered with them as fall arrives in earnest.

Bids Are Opened

Bids were opened Monday night by the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District (OTSD) for construction of phase one of a new sewer system.

The OTSD sewer system will be connected to a $3.7 million interception to be built by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD). The interceptor will be built in accordance with a contract signed between MSD and OTSD Sept. 5, 1968.

Currently, Prospect Heights residents in the OTSD are using septic tanks. Previously, residents in this area have been allowed to install septic tanks on half-acre lots. However, Cook County now allows them only on at least one-acre lots.

ACCORDING TO the contract between OTSD and MSD, construction of the interceptor will start in 1969 and will be completed by 1971.

The agreement was approved at a meeting of the engineering committee of the MSD board of trustees that met in August, 1969. At that time, an interceptor line for Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Palatine was denied in an effort to meet a restricted budget. No formal agreement committed the MSD to construction of these lines, however.

The Prospect Heights interceptor will start at Wolf and McDonald roads, move west on Wolf Road, north on Wheeling Road to Willow Road, west on Willow Road to Maple Road, north on Maple Road to Kenilworth Road, west on Kenilworth Road to the vicinity of Dale Road, south to Willow Road and the west.

CONSTRUCTION will begin in the southeast corner of the district and follow generally the same route as the MSD interceptor.

In Phase One of the construction, the OTSD will construct sewer lines to the interceptor south of Willow Road. This phase will involve approximately 750 homes. Phase Two will be north of Willow Road, involving approximately 450 homes.

Twelve builders bid for the first phase of construction at the Monday night meeting held at the Fletcher Engineering Company, designing for the OTSD system.

Low bids received Monday night for the first Phase were $800,000. Estimated cost for the entire system is $900,000.

"WE ARE CONFIDENT that we will come in around $900,000 for the entire system, give or take 10 per cent," said Schulz. "We have already sold $850,000 in general obligation bonds to the First National Bank of Chicago and to the First National Bank of Mount Prospect."

The additional $250,000 needed for Phase two can be obtained in several ways, according to Schulz. One way is to charge each home a connection fee of $170.

Another alternative would be to levy a service charge. This process, however, would take longer and would be more expensive for the district, because of the additional expense of collecting the charge.

Residents in the district are now taxed at the rate of $50 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

The district has also applied for federal funds from the Bureau of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The Application must go through several stages before final approval. As part of this procedure, the application has been approved so far by Cook County, the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission, the Indiana Planning Commission, and the village of Des Plaines and Arlington Heights.

IF FEDERAL FUNDS are granted to OTSD, they will cover 50 per cent of the district's cost. However, Schulz pointed out, "Money is tight right now," and many federal agencies have cut their spending.

"If anyone needs federal help, we do. Prospect Heights is unincorporated so we don't receive the tax monies that incorporated areas do; we have no industry and many of our wells are contaminated," said Schulz.

The OTSD will spend the next few weeks evaluating the various bids it received. According to Schulz, a decision to award a contract or to refuse all of the bids will be made by Nov. 1.

Construction of the OTSD sewer system may not start until 1970. "We are anxious to get started because we have told the Illinois School Building Commission that we would get a sewer into the Eisenhower School by fall of next year," said Schulz. The school is located at Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck Roads in Dist. 23.

Absentee Ballots Studied

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,981 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,068 votes and Young, 15,401.

Largest Shop Center Is Under Way

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg.

Lindstrom To Discuss School Sex Education

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, will speak on "Sex Education in the Schools," Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in Mark Twain School, 515 E. Merle Lane in Wheeling.

His speech will be accompanied by an audio-visual presentation. The meeting is sponsored by the Wheeling Township Movement to Restore Decency (MOTOREDE).

Tickets for the program may be obtained by calling 537-7430 or 537-3191. They may also be obtained by writing the MOTOREDE committee at 25 Laurel Lane, Wheeling, or at the door the night of the program.

Teen Dance Saturday

The Buffalo Grove Park District will sponsor a teen dance beginning at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Emmerich Park building on Raupp Boulevard. "Poor Richard's Almanac" will play.

This is one of a series of teen dances to be sponsored throughout the coming year by the park district. All area teenagers are invited to attend the dance. Admission is $1.50 per person.

Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Meacham

Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

Countryside Has Job Training

(Editors Note: The 1969 United Fund campaign in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be next week. Last year the campaign collected $12,000, which was distributed among the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Northwest Mental Health Center, Countryside-DOOR, Inc. and the Salvation Army. This year fund raisers hope to collect $14,400. Continuing today is the third in a five-part series on the recipients of United Fund proceeds.)

by SUE CARSON

Supplementing the special education programs of the public schools and providing vocational training to handicapped adults is the task of Countryside Center for the Retarded.

Located on Shirley Road north of Palatine, the center includes several buildings scattered among shady trees on a grassy, six-acre plot of land.

"We are a private school, but our ownership rests with the public since we receive public funds," explained Ralph Walberg, executive director.

"We aid the public schools by providing services to children who cannot be helped in public school special education programs. When Countryside was first founded in 1958, we could provide only for the mentally retarded child. Since then we have expanded our services to include emotionally disturbed persons as well."

THE CENTER ALSO operates a vocational training program which enables some of those attending to be placed in light industrial jobs upon completing the program.

Those who do not take jobs in outside industry may be employed in the center's sheltered workshop.

This workshop holds sub-contracts from local companies to perform such jobs as assembling boxes, packaging dinnerware and assembling and packaging bicycle safety brakes.

Currently 40 children are enrolled in the Countryside day-school and 47 adults in the workshop program. Those attending come from Palatine, Wheeling and Elk Grove townships as well as the towns of Long Grove, Libertyville, Mundelein and Fox River Grove.

COUNTRYSIDE ALSO operates DOOR, Inc. in Wheeling. DOOR (Direction to Opportunity through Occupation and Rehabilitation) is an evaluation center. The vocational and rehabilitation needs of those attending are determined there. Six persons are enrolled in the DOOR program.

"Children in the day school program learn social skills, how to function in a group, and the 'readiness skills,' such as counting and identifying colors," said Mrs. Margaret Mundstock, day school coordinator.

Countryside operates four day-school classes, three for children 3-7 and one for older children.

"These children can be referred to the public schools when we think they are ready for it," she said.

The organization also serves a group of 14-15 year old boys, who have been referred from the public schools.

"THESE BOYS HAVE feelings of failure which have contributed to serious behavior problems. We try to build up their ego and make them feel wanted by allowing them to perform tasks at the center and having them participate in social activities," Mrs. Mundstock said.

Basic work skills are taught in the vocational training program, which has been operating for only 10 months.

Participants in this program are paid on the "piecework" system and earn an average of 58 cents an hour. Raises are provided on the basis of seniority and merit.

The shop is licensed by the Department of Labor, which allows it to pay less than the minimum wage.

"These people are definitely making a contribution to society," stated James De Ore, workshop coordinator.

He explained that those who can work in a competitive situation in local industry receive assistance in job placement in the program.

"IN THE PAST THREE months, six former clients at Countryside have taken regular jobs in local businesses," De Ore said. "None have come back to us once they have been placed on the job."

A new vocational workshop building is now under construction on the grounds. Scheduled for completion in December, the building will provide for 20-30 additional persons to be enrolled in the training program.

Funds to finance the center come from a variety of sources. Thirty per cent of the aid is provided by the Illinois Department of Mental Health and the Illinois Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

HOWEVER, 70 PER CENT of the total $205,000 operating budget must be raised locally. Part of the money comes from tuition, which is $48 per month per child.

Other monies come from local school districts, townships and contributions from organizations and individuals.

"Monies provided from the United Fund have decreased in recent years," De Ore stated. "In past years United Fund money has provided 25 per cent of our budget. Now, however, it is down to 10 per cent or less, forcing us to look elsewhere for funds."

Library Purchase Delayed

Wheeling's library board was unable Tuesday night to approve a purchase option agreement for the St. Mark's United Church of Christ property because the appraisal of the land and the remodeling cost estimate have not been completed.

Library trustees decided the give L. B. Anderson and Co., Inc., until noon today to complete the appraisal which the firm has been working on for several weeks.

If the appraisal is not presented by then, the board plans to hire another appraiser through Roger Bjorvik, the board's attorney.

Although the board has received one figure of the property's worth from the real estate agent verbally, they said Tuesday that unless they have the appraisal in writing and know exactly what it includes,

they cannot negotiate the option agreement.

THE BOARD ALSO decided to contact an architect for estimates of remodeling costs.

Bjorvik read the proposed option agreement to the board but excluded the figures not yet available.

He said the board will pay $1,000 for an option to purchase the property at a negotiated price.

If the board does not purchase the property within six months because of failure of a referendum or other reason, it forfeits the $1,000 and loses its option.

Bjorvik also said that if appraisal figures turn out to be unreasonable or if negotiations with the church owners are unsuccessful, the district has a new power which may make finding a library site easier.

BJORVIK TOLD trustees that legislation passed in the last session of the Illinois' General Assembly gives library districts the power to condemn land. That power would mean that if a landowner refuses to sell his property to the Wheeling district, the trustees can have the property condemned.

Referring to the property owned by the G. D. Searle Pharmaceutical Co., which lies adjacent to the new village municipal building along Dundee Road, Bjorvik said that the board might be able to "go back to Searle with authority." Earlier negotiations for purchase of that property proved fruitless.

The board also heard a presentation from Elie Nekimken who suggested the library board might compile a slide presentation in connection with a library referendum.

The slide show would be similar to one used to promote the "Torch" program, a forerunner to the current Community School Services program.

The trustees decided to see the Torch presentation before deciding if such a program would be appropriate for informing the public about the library referendum for a new building.

Pools Registration Deadline Is Nov. 1

A new deadline for registration of swimming pools in Wheeling has been set.

The deadline, now set for Nov. 1, will end registrations of existing swimming pools in the village. After that date, all pools will be considered new and will have to be inspected for compliance with the village's new swimming pool ordinance.

Pools registered after that date will require a $2 fee for portable pools deeper than 24 inches and a $5 fee for permanent pools.

The deadline extension was made at Monday's village board meeting because of a delay in delivery of the village newsletter to residents. The deadline has been postponed three times since the passage of the ordinance in June.

Surprise Won Race for Crane

by ED MURNANE

A News Analysis

A stunning upset in Elk Grove Township and a strong showing on both ends of the 12th Congressional District put Philip M. Crane of Winnetka on the road to Washington as successor to former Congressman Donald Rumsfeld.

Crane pulled off the two major surprises of the 12th District GOP Primary election Tuesday — first by defeating Samuel Young in Elk Grove Township, and second, by defeating the six other serious candidates throughout the district.

He's not in yet, but only a battle with Democrat Edward Warman on Nov. 25 stands in his way, and a Democrat in the 13th District is not a serious threat to any Republican, be he conservative, like Crane, or liberal.

CRANE DID IT THE easy way — by running at or near the top in each of the eight 13th District townships.

He carried two, Palatine and Elk Grove, and ran second in four others. Only in Evanston, where he finished fourth, and in New Trier, where he was third, was Crane not in the running for the lead.

Why did he win? Why not Young, who had the endorsement of three of the eight townships and the Chicago Tribune? Why not Johnston, who had the endorsement of the powerful New Trier Township Republican organization?

A township-by-township analysis tells the tale.

FIRST, IN PALATINE, where Young had hoped to do well. Crane was an overwhelming winner with 2,831 votes. Young, who had a number of supporters who had backed the Palatine GOP organization following its endorsement of Crane, ran third behind Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights.

That was one strike against Young. His second one came in Elk Grove where Crane beat him by 75 votes. Young had been endorsed by the Elk Grove GOP, but Committeeman Carl Hansen failed to deliver.

The third strike against Young came in Evanston Township, a township he hoped to carry, but finished behind Johnston and only 200 votes ahead of Joseph Mathewson. That was it for Young.

JOHNSTON? HE WAS dead in his own New Trier Township, where he was only able to defeat Mathewson by 27 votes, 4,163 to 4,136. Johnston needed a big win there, to go with his win in Evanston, but he didn't get it. Crane ran third, picking up valuable ground on Young.

The other candidate considered to have a chance was Mathewson, but his support died outside New Trier and he quickly fell a few thousand votes behind.

The others? Forget them. Gerald Marks and his anti-Vietnam war campaign were snowed under in all but New Trier, his home township.

EUGENE SCHLICKMAN of Arlington Heights did as expected in Wheeling Township, and did better than expected in Palatine Township, but, as expected, he had little support elsewhere.

John Nimrod of Skokie, who had predicted a 14,000 vote total for himself, fell far short with fewer than 6,000 and was a distant seventh.

Lar Daly? He was a loser, again, but he cared less than any of the others.

Saga of Ditch Continues

And so the saga of the White Pines drainage ditch in Buffalo Grove continues.

Monday night at the village board meeting, Merv Sisson, a representative of the village's engineering firm, told trustees it would cost $9,000 to grade and remove dirt from the drainage ditch. Sisson said that original drawings for the site "showed it to be a swampy area."

Sisson said that to build a closed culvert system to replace the ditch would be unfeasible.

TRUSTEE HENRY CIMAGLIO, chairman of the public improvements committee, plans to seek permission from the owner of the land to remove dirt from the area to bring it to the level specified in the original drawings.

Earlier, the village board had given the owners of the land 10 days to remove the weeds in the area. The owners had cut them down but failed to remove them.

Because the weeds were reportedly not removed by the deadline, however, the board told Village Mgr. Richard Decker to issue a citation to the owners.

The land on which the ditch is located will be turned over to the village as part of its purchase of the Buffalo Utility Co. However, that purchase has been held up for almost a year, because the village has been unable to sell $4 million in bonds.

The ditch is located in the southern portion of the village behind White Pines Road.

Bookstore Bookie Booked

by BARRY SIGALE

Palatine police Wednesday closed down a local bookmaker whose yearly intake ranged from $45,000 to $75,000.

Charged with keeping a gambling place was Arthur Ziarkowski, of 4907 Bluebird Court, Crystal Lake. He is the owner of the Palatine Book Shop, where police said bets were taken on horse races.

They estimated that between $150 and $250 in bets were taken in each day for five days a week and possibly six.

In a raid on the book store, police confiscated 12 betting slips, containing names of three or four horses running at Belmont, Hawthorne and other race tracks throughout the country, according to Robert Centner, police chief.

ALSO PICKED UP was over $200 in cash, which was apparently taken in from betters and kept separate from the cash register, which held the day's receipts, police said.

Wednesday, police questioned some of the persons involved in placing bets, which apparently was only conducted in person, and from that information they had one of the betters make another bet while they waited for the transaction to occur.

The man went inside, exchanged his money with Ziarkowski for betting slips and the police followed to make the arrest. The better then showed police where the book was located containing other betting slips.

Centner said there was no evidence that Ziarkowski was involved with a syndicate operation and that no pickup man was observed at any time.

"AS FAR AS WE KNOW, he was only making bets on horse racing. There is no indication that he had anything to do with football or baseball gambling.

Ziarkowski was released after posting 10 per cent of the $300 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 7.

Crane Has 'Great Victory'

by MURRAY DUBIN

Conservatively dressed in a dark green suit, a smiling Philip M. Crane, the 13th Congressional Republican campaign winner, held a press conference Tuesday night in a small room in the Dolphin Motel, Niles.

Sitting next to his beaming, pregnant wife, Arlene, the conservative history teacher told the eager press corps. "I feel just wonderful.

"This is a great, great victory and indicates the efforts of thousands of people. My victory expresses further belief that the great society is a thing of the past."

Three hours before, as the returns first began to trickle into Crane headquarters in Winnetka, Jerry Harknis, Crane's campaign manager said. "We've won. It's 6:25 p.m. and it's all over. You can quote me."

HIS OPTIMISTIC prediction fell on deaf ears and yellow Crane campaign buttons. But as the returns were being received, more and more people began to crowd into the renovated store front. Harknis told the crowd his strategy was to run first in Palatine Township and second everywhere else.

Crane showed up at 7 p.m. and appeared nervous and excited. He laughingly told Harknis, "I'll call you every 15 minutes."

By 7:10 p.m., the storefront was jammed and Harknis told the enthusiastic crowd that Crane was beating Joe Mathewson 2-1 in Niles Township.

Five "I'm for Crane" balloons hung precariously from a cheap chandelier. Crane popped in again, studied the fast-filling charts and said, "I wish I knew how to read these and determine trends.

"And I wish I knew how those western suburbs were doing."

At 7:50 p.m. Harknis, who had predicted 2,000 votes for Crane in Palatine Township, read the final Palatine figures to the crowd. "We've 2,800 votes in Palatine. It's all over."

A middle-aged woman in a mink rushed into the office and screamed, "Is it true? Have we won?"

THE CROWD roared "Yes!" and the gray-haired matron took three bottles of liquor out of a brown paper bag and passed them out. Minutes later, Harknis announced, "Just to add insult to injury, we just carried Elk Grove Township."

Someone broke the balloons as others huddled around the radio, smiling at the election returns. At 8:20 p.m., Harknis repeated for any disbelievers, "Whether you believe it or not, the election is over and Phil Crane has won!"

At the end of Crane's press conference, Crane who estimated his campaign costs at $6,000 dollars, was asked when he would start campaigning for his November runoff with Democrat Ed Warman. Crane replied, "Right now," and the crowd roared.

12-Month School Under Study

Tom Shirley, Wheeling High School principal, is one of 11 Dist. 214 and Dist. 211 officials who will travel to Atlanta, Ga.

later this month to examine that city's 12-month school program.

Dist. 214 is considering adopting a plan in which school facilities are fully used the year round, as in the Atlanta plan. Under that plan, about one-fourth of Atlanta students are on their three-month vacation sometime during the year.

"The dynamics of the plan are what I am particularly interested in," Shirley said. "Transition is always the difficult part. There would be so many people involved in the adoption of the plan students, parents, teachers, custodians, merchants."

SHIRLEY SAID it would be "prudent" to say whether or not the district will adopt the plan.

"We don't know what we will find. It may be that Atlanta has only a real fine summer school program. It is hard to say if they have a true 12-month program."

The group, which will leave Oct. 20 for Atlanta, will spend about five days in that city.

Also making the trip will be Dist. 214

board members Richard Bachhuber and Richard Stamm; Dist. 214 Instructional Coordinator Ruben Conrad, faculty members Dennis Olenik of Hersey High School and Herbert Laubenstein of Prospect High School, and citizens James DeLill and Martin Haring.

Dist. 211 officials making the trip include Leonard Nuendorf, principal of Palatine High School and school board members Carolyn Mullins and James Humphrey.

Auto Victim Was 16

The age of Deborah Ann Huber, who lost her life last September in an accident at the Buffalo Grove-Palatine Road intersection in Arlington Heights, was incorrectly stated on Sept. 26 as 15.

Deborah, 16, was on her way to work under a work-school program sponsored by Wheeling High School, when the accident occurred.

Walkout Threat at Fremd

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weimer, Fremd High School principal, said.

In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weimer said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillesheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillesheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we are working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said. "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillesheim said.

School administrators attribute the idea of a walkout at Fremd to publicity of a nationwide walkout on college campuses next week when students will spend the day trying to convince citizens to oppose the Vietnam war.

No mention was made of the Vietnam issue in the literature passed out yesterday, according to Hillesheim.

"I DON'T THINK many students will walk out," Janice Rennack, another Fremd senior, said. "Seniors won't do it because they have too much at stake."

Weimer said he has had phone calls from parents and students supporting the administration's stand against a walkout. "We've had kids come by the office to tell us they think it is a stupid thing to do."

"It's our job to make sure school is not disrupted," Hillesheim said. "I've talked with the five who were suspended to help them understand that we will listen to their suggestions, although we may not condone them."

"We have to make every effort to stop something like a walkout, which would disrupt school. That is why they were suspended."

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,565.

Lar "America First" Daly of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

Village May Win Solicitation War

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ordinances prohibiting door-to-door solicitation in Wheeling remain in effect, despite a recent Illinois Supreme Court refusal to review a lower court decision against the laws.

Essentially, the three Wheeling ordinances require licensing of solicitors, declare that door-to-door sales are a nuisance and prohibit trespassing on private property for solicitation.

Lower courts have declared that those three ordinances may not be applied against two companies, the Chicago American Publishing Co. and Field Enterprises, publishers of World Book Encyclopedia. The two companies won court cases against the ordinances.

THE VILLAGE HAS won several suits upholding the laws in actions brought by other companies, however, according to Village Atty. Paul Hamer.

The lower court decisions favoring the Field and American Companies, which said that the ordinances were invalid because the village had no statutory authority to make those laws, apply only to the two companies.

Other firms or charity organizations which solicit door-to-door may still be charged with violations under the three ordinances.

Moreover, a new village ordinance, passed originally to protect school property, can be used by the village against Field and American if they attempt to solicit in the village, Hamer said.

THAT NEW ORDINANCE includes a section saying it is unlawful to go on a person's property if he has a sign saying he allows no trespassing and if he points that sign out to a potential trespasser. While that ordinance does not stop a solicitor from ringing the doorbell, it does give a person who has posted a sign the right to call the police if a solicitor refuses to leave.

That ordinance, more recent than the first three, now has statutory support, according to Hamer. That support is House Bill 1474, signed into law Aug. 5 by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

The new law gives municipalities authority to prevent trespassing as a disturbance. Although it is primarily a law to stop sit-ins rather than solicitations, it nevertheless allows municipalities to protect both public and private property from trespassing, regardless of the reason.

He said if Field Enterprises and the American company try to test this new ordinance in court they may find that the village now does have statutory authority to enact such laws.

HAMER ALSO SAID that a fifth village ordinance might be added, based on a recommended ordinance being drawn up by the Illinois Municipal League. That ordinance, which could be applied to solicitors, can be adopted uniformly by villages across the state.

Wheeling has been fighting to prevent door-to-door solicitors, from charity drive workers to vacuum cleaner salesmen, since the first three ordinances were enacted.

Although the village has lost some battles, it looks as though Wheeling may win the war.

Absentee Ballots Studied

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,981 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,068 votes and Young, 15,401.

Largest Shop Center Is Under Way

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Meacham Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

Teen Dance Saturday

The Buffalo Grove Park District will sponsor a teen dance beginning at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Emmerich Park building on Raupp Boulevard. "Poor Richard's Almanac" will play.

This is one of a series of teen dances to be sponsored throughout the coming year by the park district. All area teenagers are invited to attend the dance. Admission is $1.50 per person.

Lindstrom To Discuss School Sex Education

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, will speak on "Sex Education in the Schools," Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in Mark Twain School, 515 E. Merle Lane in Wheeling.

His speech will be accompanied by an audio-visual presentation. The meeting is sponsored by the Wheeling Township Movement to Restore Decency (MOTOREDE).

Tickets for the program may be obtained by calling 537-7430 or 537-3191. They may also be obtained by writing the MOTOREDE committee at 25 Laurel Lane, Wheeling, or at the door the night of the program.

Countryside Has Job Training

(Editors Note: The 1969 United Fund campaign in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area will be next week. Last year the campaign collected $12,000, which was distributed among the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Northside Mental Health Center, Countryside-DOOR, Inc. and the Salvation Army. This year fund raisers hope to collect $14,400. Continuing today is the third in a five-part series on the recipients of United Fund proceeds.)

Supplementing the special education programs of the public schools and providing vocational training to handicapped adults is the task of Countryside Center for the Retarded.

Located on Shirley Road north of Palatine, the center includes several buildings scattered among shady trees on a grassy, six-acre plot of land.

"We are a private school, but our ownership rests with the public since we receive public funds," explained Ralph Walberg, executive director.

"We aid the public schools by providing services to children who cannot be helped in public school special education programs. When Countryside was first founded in 1958, we could provide only for the mentally retarded child. Since then we have expanded our services to include emotionally disturbed persons as well."

THE CENTER ALSO operates a vocational training program which enables some of those attending to be placed in light industrial jobs upon completing the program.

Those who do not take jobs in outside industry may be employed in the center's sheltered workshop.

This workshop holds sub-contracts from local companies to perform such jobs as assembling boxes, packaging dinnerware and assembling and packaging bicycle safety brakes.

Currently 40 children are enrolled in the Countryside day-school and 47 adults in the workshop program. Those attending come from Palatine, Wheeling and Elk Grove townships as well as the towns of Long Grove, Libertyville, Mundelein and Fox River Grove.

COUNTRYSIDE ALSO operates DOOR, Inc. in Wheeling. DOOR (Direction to Opportunity through Occupation and Rehabilitation) is an evaluation center. The vocational and rehabilitation needs of those attending are determined there. Six persons are enrolled in the DOOR program.

"Children in the day school program learn social skills, how to function in a group, and the 'readiness skills,' such as counting and identifying colors," said Mrs. Margaret Mundstock, day school coordinator.

Countryside operates four day-school classes, three for children 3-7 and one for older children.

"These children can be referred to the public schools when we think they are ready for it," she said.

The organization also serves a group of 14-15 year old boys, who have been referred from the public schools.

"THESE BOYS HAVE feelings of failure which have contributed to serious behavior problems. We try to build up their ego and make them feel wanted by allowing them to perform tasks at the center and having them participate in social activities," Mrs. Mundstock said.

Basic work skills are taught in the vocational training program, which has been operating for only 10 months.

Participants in this program are paid on the "piecework" system and earn an average of 58 cents an hour. Raises are provided on the basis of seniority and merit.

The shop is licensed by the Department of Labor, which allows it to pay less than the minimum wage.

"These people are definitely making a contribution to society," stated James De Ore, workshop coordinator.

He explained that those who can work in a competitive situation in local industry receive assistance in job placement in the program.

"IN THE PAST THREE months, six former clients at Countryside have taken regular jobs in local businesses," De Ore said. "None have come back to us once they have been placed on the job."

A new vocational workshop building is now under construction on the grounds. Scheduled for completion in December, the building will provide for 20-30 additional persons to be enrolled in the training program.

Funds to finance the center come from a variety of sources. Thirty per cent of the aid is provided by the Illinois Department of Mental Health and the Illinois Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

HOWEVER, 70 PER CENT of the total $205,000 operating budget must be raised locally. Part of the money comes from tuition, which is $48 per month per child.

Other monies come from local school districts, townships and contributions from organizations and individuals.

"Monies provided from the United Fund have decreased in recent years," De Ore stated. "In past years United Fund money has provided 25 per cent of our budget. Now, however, it is down to 10 per cent or less, forcing us to look elsewhere for funds."

INSTRUCTION in the use of the industrial sewing machine is one of the vocational training programs offered at Countryside Center for the Handicapped north of Palatine. Here, a participant in the program makes "sweat bands," frequently purchased by industrial concerns.

Library Purchase Delayed

Wheeling's library board was unable Tuesday night to approve a purchase option agreement for the St. Mark's United Church of Christ property because the appraisal of the land and the remodeling cost estimate have not been completed.

Library trustees decided the give L. B. Anderson and Co., Inc., until noon today to complete the appraisal which the firm has been working on for several weeks.

If the appraisal is not presented by then, the board plans to hire another appraiser through Roger Bjorvik, the board's attorney.

Although the board has received one figure of the property's worth from the real estate agent verbally, they said Tuesday that unless they have the appraisal in writing and know exactly what it includes,

they cannot negotiate the option agreement.

THE BOARD ALSO decided to contact an architect for estimates of remodeling costs.

Bjorvik read the proposed option agreement to the board but excluded the figures not yet available.

He said the board will pay $1,000 for an option to purchase the property at a negotiated price.

If the board does not purchase the property within six months because of failure of a referendum or other reason, it forfeits the $1,000 and loses its option.

Bjorvik also said that if appraisal figures turn out to be unreasonable or if negotiations with the church owners are unsuccessful, the district has a new power which may make finding a library site easier.

BJORVIK TOLD trustees that legislation passed in the last session of the Illinois General Assembly gives library districts the power to condemn land. That power would mean that if a landowner refuses to sell his property to the Wheeling district, the trustees can have the property condemned.

Referring to the property owned by the G. D. Searle Pharmaceutical Co., which lies adjacent to the new village municipal building along Dundee Road, Bjorvik said that the board might be able to "go back to Searle with authority." Earlier negotiations for purchase of that property proved fruitless.

The board also heard a presentation from Elie Nekimken who suggested the library board might compile a slide presentation in connection with a library referendum.

The slide show would be similar to one used to promote the "Torch" program, a forerunner to the current Community School Services program.

The trustees decided to see the Torch presentation before deciding if such a program would be appropriate for informing the public about the library referendum for a new building.

Pools Registration Deadline Is Nov. 1

A new deadline for registration of swimming pools in Wheeling has been set.

The deadline, now set for Nov. 1, will end registrations of existing swimming pools in the village. After that date, all pools will be considered new and will have to be inspected for compliance with the village's new swimming pool ordinance. Pools registered after that date will require a $2 fee for portable pools deeper than 24 inches and a $5 fee for permanent pools.

The deadline extension was made at Monday's village board meeting because of a delay in delivery of the village newsletter to residents. The deadline has been postponed three times since the passage of the ordinance in June.

Surprise Won Race for Crane

by ED MURNANE

A News Analysis

A stunning upset in Elk Grove Township and a strong showing on both ends of the 13th Congressional District put Philip M. Crane of Winnetka on the road to Washington as successor to former Congressman Donald Rumsfeld.

Crane pulled off the two major surprises of the 13th District GOP Primary election Tuesday — first by defeating Samuel Young in Elk Grove Township, and second, by defeating the six other serious candidates throughout the district.

He's not in yet, but only a battle with Democrat Edward Warman on Nov. 25 stands in his way, and a Democrat in the 13th District is not a serious threat to any Republican, be he conservative, like Crane, or liberal.

CRANE DID IT THE easy way — by running at or near the top in each of the eight 13th District townships.

He carried two, Palatine and Elk Grove, and ran second in four others. Only in Evanston, where he finished fourth, and in New Trier, where he was third, was Crane not in the running for the lead.

Why did he win? Why not Young, who had the endorsement of three of the eight townships and the Chicago Tribune? Why not Johnston, who had the endorsement of the powerful New Trier Township Republican organization?

A township-by-township analysis tells the tale.

FIRST, IN PALATINE, where Young had hoped to do well, Crane was an overwhelming winner with 2,831 votes. Young, who had a number of supporters who had backed the Palatine GOP organization following its endorsement of Crane, ran third behind Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights.

That was one strike against Young. His second one came in Elk Grove where Crane beat him by 75 votes. Young had been endorsed by the Elk Grove GOP, but Committeeman Carl Hansen failed to deliver.

The third strike against Young came in Evanston Township, a township he hoped to carry, but finished behind Johnston and only 200 votes ahead of Joseph Mathewson. That was it for Young.

JOHNSTON? HE WAS dead in his own New Trier Township, where he was only able to defeat Mathewson by 27 votes, 4,163 to 4,136. Johnston needed a big win there, to go with his win in Evanston, but he didn't get it. Crane ran third, picking up valuable ground on Young.

The other candidate considered to have a chance was Mathewson, but his support died outside New Trier and he quickly fell a few thousand votes behind.

The others? Forget them. Gerald Marks and his anti-Vietnam war campaign were snowed under in all but New Trier, his home township.

EUGENE SCHLICKMAN of Arlington Heights did as expected in Wheeling Township, and did better than expected in Palatine Township, but, as expected, he had little support elsewhere.

John Nimrod of Skokie, who had predicted a 14,000 vote total for himself, fell far short with fewer than 6,000 and was a distant seventh.

Lar Daly? He was a loser, again, but he cared less than any of the others.

Saga of Ditch Continues

And so the saga of the White Pines drainage ditch in Buffalo Grove continues.

Monday night at the village board meeting, Merv Sisson, a representative of the village's engineering firm, told trustees it would cost $9,000 to grade and remove dirt from the drainage ditch. Sisson said that original drawings for the site "showed it to be a swampy area."

Sisson said that to build a closed culvert system to replace the ditch would be unfeasible.

TRUSTEE HENRY CIMAGLIO, chairman of the public improvements committee, plans to seek permission from the owner of the land to remove dirt from the area to bring it to the level specified in the original drawings.

Earlier, the village board had given the owners of the land 10 days to remove the weeds in the area. The owners had cut them down but failed to remove them.

Because the weeds were reportedly not removed by the deadline, however, the board told Village Mgr. Richard Decker to issue a citation to the owners.

The land on which the ditch is located will be turned over to the village as part of its purchase of the Buffalo Utility Co. However, that purchase has been held up for almost a year, because the village has been unable to sell $4 million in bonds.

The ditch is located in the southern portion of the village behind White Pines Road.

Bookstore Bookie Booked

by BARRY SIGALE

Palatine police Wednesday closed down a local bookmaker whose yearly intake ranged from $45,000 to $75,000.

Charged with keeping a gambling place was Arthur Ziarkowski, of 4907 Bluebird Court, Crystal Lake. He is the owner of the Palatine Book Shop, where police said bets were taken on horse races.

They estimated that between $150 and $250 in bets were taken in each day for five days a week and possibly six.

In a raid on the book store, police confiscated 12 betting slips, containing names of three or four horses running at Belmont, Hawthorne and other race tracks throughout the country, according to Robert Centner, police chief.

ALSO PICKED UP was over $200 in cash, which was apparently taken in from betters and kept separate from the cash register, which held the day's receipts, police said.

Wednesday, police questioned some of the persons involved in placing bets, which apparently was only conducted in person, and from that information they had one of the betters make another bet while they waited for the transaction to occur.

The man went inside, exchanged his money with Ziarkowski for betting slips and the police followed to make the arrest. The better then showed police where the book was located containing other betting slips.

Centner said there was no evidence that Ziarkowski was involved with a syndicate operation and that no pickup man was observed at any time.

"AS FAR AS WE KNOW, he was only making bets on horse racing. There is no indication that he had anything to do with football or baseball gambling.

Ziarkowski was released after posting 10 per cent of the $300 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 7.

Crane Has 'Great Victory'

by MURRAY DUBIN

Conservatively dressed in a dark green suit, a smiling Philip M. Crane, the 13th Congressional Republican campaign winner, held a press conference Tuesday night in a small room in the Dolphin Motel, Niles.

Sitting next to his beaming, pregnant wife, Arlene, the conservative history teacher told the eager press corps, "I feel just wonderful.

"This is a great, great victory and indicates the efforts of thousands of people. My victory expresses further belief that the great society is a thing of the past."

Three hours before, as the returns first began to trickle into Crane headquarters in Winnetka, Jerry Harkins, Crane's campaign manager said, "We've won. It's 6:25 p.m. and it's all over. You can quote me."

HIS OPTIMISTIC prediction led on deaf ears and yellow Crane campaign buttons. But as the returns were being received, more and more people began to crowd into the renovated store front. Harkins told the crowd his strategy was to run first in Palatine Township and second everywhere else.

Crane showed up at 7 p.m. and appeared nervous and excited. He laughingly told Harkins, "I'll call you every 15 minutes."

By 7:10 p.m., the storefront was jammed and Harkins told the enthusiastic crowd that Crane was beating Joe Mathewson 2-1 in Niles Township.

Five "I'm for Crane" balloons hung precariously from a cheap chandelier. Crane popped in again, studied the fast-filling charts and said, "I wish I knew how to read these and determine trends."

"And I wish I knew how those western suburbs were doing."

At 7:50 p.m. Harkins, who had predicted 2,000 votes for Crane in Palatine Township, read the final Palatine figures to the crowd. "We've 2,800 votes in Palatine. It's

12-Month School Under Study

Tom Shirley, Wheeling High School principal, is one of 11 Dist. 214 and Dist. 211 officials who will travel to Atlanta, Ga.

later this month to examine that city's 12-month school program.

Dist. 214 is considering adopting a plan in which school facilities are fully used the year round, as in the Atlanta plan. Under that plan, about one-fourth of Atlanta students are on their three-month vacation sometime during the year.

"The dynamics of the plan are what I am particularly interested in," Shirley said. "Transition is always the difficult part. There would be so many people involved in the adoption of the plan students, parents, teachers, custodians, merchants."

SHIRLEY SAID it would be "pragmatic" to say whether or not the district will adopt the plan.

"We don't know what we will find. It may be that Atlanta has only a real fine summer school program. It is hard to say if they have a true 12-month program."

The group, which will leave Oct. 20 for Atlanta, will spend about five days in that city.

Also making the trip will be Dist. 214

board members Richard Bachhuber and Richard Stamm; Dist. 214 Instructional Coordinator Ruben Conrad; faculty members Dennis Oleniki of Hersey High School and Herbert Laubenstein of Prospect High School, and citizens James DeLill and Martin Haring.

Dist. 211 officials making the trip include Leonard Nuendorf, principal of Palatine High School and school board members Carolyn Mullins and James Humphrey.

Auto Victim Was 16

The age of Deborah Ann Huber, who lost her life last September in an accident at the Buffalo Grove-Palatine Road intersection in Arlington Heights, was incorrectly stated on Sept. 26 as 15.

Deborah, 16, was on her way to work under a work-school program sponsored by Wheeling High School, when the accident occurred.

Walkout Threat at Fremd

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weimer, Fremd High School principal, said.

In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weimer said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillesheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillesheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we are working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said. "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillesheim said.

School administrators attribute the idea of a walkout at Fremd to publicity of a nationwide walkout on college campuses next week when students will spend the day trying to convince citizens to oppose the Vietnam war.

No mention was made of the Vietnam issue in the literature passed out yesterday, according to Hillesheim.

"I DON'T THINK many students will walk out," Janice Rennack, another Fremd senior, said. "Seniors won't do it because they have too much at stake."

Weimer said he has had phone calls from parents and students supporting the administration's stand against a walkout. "We've had kids come by the office to tell us they think it is a stupid thing to do."

"It's our job to make sure school is not disrupted," Hillesheim said. "I've talked with the five who were suspended to help them understand that we will listen to their suggestions, although we may not condone them."

"We have to make every effort to stop something like a walkout, which would disrupt school. That is why they were suspended."

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Daily of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

Area Trends Are Queried

Surveys to determine the attitudes of Rolling Meadows residents about night racing and other issues are being distributed by local Jaycees today.

The surveys cover night racing, open housing, the naming of a new high school to be built in Rolling Meadows and lot for shopping centers.

Interest in community attitudes was sparked by the formation of a group of residents who want to check opinions of night racing at Arlington Park race track.

THIS GROUP originated to encourage residents to write letters to city officials expressing their opinions. Rolling Meadows Jaycees are now sponsoring the survey and the letter writing campaign.

Residents met last week to organize and to determine the level of interest in the city about night racing. At the meeting, Bill Meyer, Jaycee president said the survey would be expanded and results presented to the city council.

Surveys will be collected by Jaycees this weekend. Findings of the survey will be compiled and presented at the Oct. 14 council meeting.

Citizens opposing the track hope to find support for their opposition to night racing. However, they are mainly interested in a majority opinion, either for or against night racing.

IF ENOUGH OPPOSITION is voiced, residents hope the city will attempt to block night racing or work out a compromise.

Mayor Roland Meyer indicated earlier that if residents oppose night racing, and there is enough written protest, City Atty. Donald Rose will appear before the racing commission.

Decision on the future of night racing at the track will be made when the racing commission meets next month.

Meyer has asked residents to put their protest in writing so the city will have proof of opposition. Besides opinion gathered in the Jaycee survey, the group also encourages letter writing.

dors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

Trash Picked Planned

Palatine's semi-annual trash pickup will be made next week on the regular collection days.

Residents are asked to put all trash at the curb on the day regular refuse collection is made. All unwanted items with the exception of construction materials will be taken.

Weimer said he has had phone calls from parents and students supporting the administration's stand against a walkout. "We've had kids come by the office to tell us they think it is a stupid thing to do."

"It's our job to make sure school is not disrupted," Hillsheim said. "I've talked with the five who were suspended to help them understand that we will listen to their suggestions, although we may not condone them."

Gene Knows That He's Out

by TOM WELLMAN
and ALAN AKERSON

The quiet disbelief that marked Tuesday night at Gene Schlickman's Wheeling Township headquarters in the Arlington Carousal Restaurant gave way to grim acceptance yesterday morning.

For the men and women, the veterans of other Wheeling Township campaigns, it was a disappointing defeat. Many had worked long hours to sell their candidate to the voters.

For the Schlick Chicks, the seemingly endless horde of youthful campaign workers, it must have been difficult to wake up yesterday and realize the fun and energy had not produced a winner.

FOR THE INNER circle — the men and women who stayed at Schlickman's office on Campbell Street — it was a bitter defeat. Yesterday some of them were looking for paying or volunteer jobs.

The wake began at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday when several precinct captains walked into the almost-empty Carousal basement and posted their precincts on the tally board.

Wheeling Township committeeman Richard Cowen and several others looked on quietly as Crane's total mounted. Crane was not tallying 5 or 10 per cent of the vote; he was scoring 15, 20 and even 30 per cent forays into precincts in "safe" Schlickman territory.

And Schlickman was not winning 70, 80 or 90 per cent. By 7 p.m., before the adding machines were whirling, a Herald tally of eight precincts showed Schlickman with only a 2-1 edge over Crane, with the other candidates — except Joe Mathewson and Sam Young — out of the picture.

AT THE REAR of the big room, Fred Yonkers and other volunteers took calls from other townships. And the bad news came early; for example, Schlickman tallied only a quarter of the Palatine Township vote, and the eastern townships were out of his grasp.

Slowly, precinct captains reported in with individual precincts, but the picture did not change. Schlickman was winning in the township, but he was not sweeping it. And he would need a sweep to gain the GOP nomination.

By the time 80 of the 89 precincts were in, Schlickman was holding about 43 per cent of the vote. Crane was holding at 27 per cent.

Finally, 87 of 89 precincts were in, and Schlickman had landed 42.5 per cent — 5,432 votes — of the township total. Crane, sweeping precincts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, tallied 26.7 per cent — 3,414 votes.

SCHLICKMAN couldn't manage to carry more than half of his township, and Crane had captured more than a quarter of it.

According to Ron Wittmeyer, Schlickman's finance chairman, his candidate needed to carry the township "by about a 3-1 margin."

"We also needed second place finishes for Gene in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships," he said.

Others agreed and began to wonder out loud why Crane had run so strong. Personal charisma, a powerful volunteer organization and a last-minute letter to voters from Crane's wife were all mentioned.

Cowen observed that several factors worked against Schlickman, including his legislative vote for the state income tax, support of HB 1241 (which antagonized many Prospect Heights voters) and the lack of any substantial eastern vote.

"CRANE MARSHALLED a strongly conservative vote. He's an effective platform speaker. He's articulate and a strong campaigner."

"He's accomplishing what all of us talked about; he carried one township and ran second or third in virtually every other," Cowen said.

Finally, Schlickman came over to officially thank his backers for their effort.

The man who had hoped to weld a powerful voting bloc in the western half of what has been called the most affluent

Congressional district in America stood on a table with his wife and was generous with his thanks:

"During this campaign I learned more than I learned in any previous campaign and I met more dependable and wonderful people than in all of my previous eight campaigns."

"THERE ARE so many people I'd like to thank," he said, carefully and tiredly, "But if I did, we'd be here all night."

Later, he was asked if he would support Crane.

"I've always supported Republican candidates in the past without exception," he said firmly.

However, he would not comment on whether he would campaign for Crane.

How did Crane win? "Crane put forward a distinct philosophy that, in effect, set himself apart from the rest," said Schlickman.

THE CROWD OF 200 Republicans was beginning to filter out. Schlickman shook as many hands as he could, then joined a group of couples dancing as a small combo played. The campaign may have ended, but the party was going strong at 11:30.

Meanwhile, Cowen headed over to the Crane headquarters in Niles. For him, Schlickman's campaign was over, too.

GENE IN THE "Gene Machine" urged Wheeling Township residents to vote in the 13th District congressional election. "Vote Republican, vote Schlickman" was the oft-repeated sentence coming from a friend's Dodge motor home, Schlickman, candidate for 13th District congressman, was in the final hours of his ninth election campaign in 10 years. His "most nervous" race was when he ran for Arlington Heights trustee at age 29, he said. His hardest race was for the committeeman in 1966.

Study Mail Votes

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Darrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,981 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,068 votes and Young, 15,401.

Sports Complex Bids Are Studied By Architects

Bids for steel and concrete work for the proposed Rolling Meadows sports complex were presented to the park board Monday.

The complex, financed by a $900,000 bond issue, will provide a new recreational area for residents.

The low bid for concrete offered by Zenan Concrete, was $95,000, and the low bid for steel, offered by L-J Iron Works, was $73,558.

The high bid for concrete, offered by Koch and Weitz, was $121,594 and the high bid for steel, offered by Vierking Iron, was $110,400.

The bids are being analyzed by the architectural firm of McFadden and Evers. According to Susan Smith, park board secretary, bids become invalid after a three-week waiting period.

Alterations in the original plans of the sports complex were suggested to comply with Fire Chief Tom Fogarty's suggestions for fire safety. New roads to provide access for fire trucks may be added to the architects drawings.

Bids for carpentry, structural steel, metal sidings, plastering, roofing, acoustical tile, asbestos flooring, painting, glass and glazing will be presented at an Oct. 23 meeting.

Camp Fire Projects Set for School Year

Rolling Meadows Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds are beginning the school season with a number of projects.

One of these is collecting gifts to send to servicemen in Vietnam. The girls have filled over 130 bags with items hard to acquire overseas.

At the annual "Fly Up," Sept. 23, two Blue Bird groups graduated to Camp Fire, one group went to Junior High Camp Fire and the first Horizon Club in Rolling Meadows was established.

Parents of Camp Fire girls will join in the Community Chest Drive and help collect newspapers and magazines in a paper drive for funds for Korean orphans and for camping equipment.

Nelson Will Chair Christmas Seal Drive

Robert W. Nelson, 629 N. Williams Drive, Palatine, has been named community Christmas Seal chairman for 1969.

Nelson is vice president and real estate officer for the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

Serving as co-chairman for the fund drive is Richard W. Shorter, vice president of the 1st Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine.

"Christmas Seals pay off in immediate and long-range benefits," Nelson said. Because of today's increasing incidence of other respiratory diseases, seals also support medical research and educational programs against emphysema, air pollution, bronchitis and other hazards to the respiratory system, he said.

This year's campaign begins in mid-November and continues until the end of December. Last year more than $1 million was raised.

EVEN THOUGH the sign promised it was one way to Congress, Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights has learned there is no easy road to Washington, D.C. After weeks of intensive campaigning, he finally got to cast his

the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

Librarian Urges Voice Of Students

Rolling Meadows librarian Virginia Connell has proposed new library policies which would give high school and college students a chance to suggest programs and improvements for the library.

Miss Connell, who recently returned from a library convention in Missouri, said students "should be given a voice in the library. I want to create interest in our problems and ideas and I want the youths who come to be alive and filled with things to say."

She suggested asking students from Fremd and Forest View high schools and Harper Junior College to meet with library staff members.

"WE ARE NOT REACHING out far enough to the populace," she said. "Millions of children are turned out of the schools with an inability to read."

"Libraries will have to educate their staff to realize that the public library is comparable to the school. The librarian is equivalent to a principal; her staff the equal of the school's teachers. We should get an equivalent portion of the budget. Remember, the library begins with the children but goes on to educate the adult," Miss Connell added.

'Ambassador' Quinn Aids Mercy Crusade

Campaign theme this year for the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy is "People Who Care."

Volunteers, called ambassadors of mercy, go to industrial plants, factories and offices asking people to contribute.

One of the 145 men and women serving this year's campaign is Martin F. Quinn, 225 S. Rohlwing, Palatine.

The volunteers speak to employ groups wherever people work. Quinn is personnel administrator at Central National Bank.

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin
For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Day of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The Democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

Walkout Threatened

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weiner, Fremd High School principal, said. In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weiner said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillesheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillesheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we are working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said. "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillesheim said.

School administrators attribute the idea of a walkout at Fremd to publicity of a nationwide walkout on college campuses next week when students will spend the day trying to convince citizens to oppose the Vietnam war.

No mention was made of the Vietnam issue in the literature passed out yesterday, according to Hillesheim.

"I DON'T THINK many students will walk out," Janice Rennack, another Fremd senior, said. "Seniors won't do it because they have too much at stake."

Trash Picked Planned

Palatine's semi-annual trash pickup will be made next week on the regular collection days.

Residents are asked to put all trash at the curb on the day regular refuse collection is made. All unwanted items with the exception of construction materials will be taken.

Palatine police Wednesday closed down a local bookmaker whose yearly intake ranged from $45,000 to $75,000.

Charged with keeping a gambling place was Arthur Ziarkowski, of 4907 Bluebird Court, Crystal Lake. He is the owner of the Palatine Book Shop, where police said bets were taken on horse races.

They estimated that between $150 and $250 in bets were taken in each day for five days a week and possibly six.

In a raid on the book store, police confiscated 12 betting slips, containing names of three or four horses running at Belmont, Hawthorne and other race tracks throughout the country, according to Robert Centner, police chief.

ALSO PICKED UP was over $200 in cash, which was apparently taken in from bettors and kept separate from the cash register, which held the day's receipts, police said.

Wednesday, police questioned some of the persons involved in placing bets, which apparently was only conducted in person, and from that information they had one of the bettors make another bet while they waited for the transaction to occur.

The man went inside, exchanged his money with Ziarkowski for betting slips and the police followed to make the arrest. The bettor then showed police where the book was located containing other betting slips.

Centner said there was no evidence that Ziarkowski was involved with a syndicate operation and that no pickup man was observed at any time.

"AS FAR AS WE KNOW, he was only making bets on horse racing. There is no indication that he had anything to do with football or baseball gambling."

Ziarkowski was released after posting 10 per cent of the $300 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 7.

Police said they began their investigation of the bookstore this spring and noted that the same persons had been seen each day entering and leaving the store. Their license numbers were recorded and the surveillance continued until the Arlington race track opened.

According to Centner, fewer persons who were coming in from day to day came to the store after the track opened, probably because bets could be placed directly.

The investigation was then resumed, according to police, when the track closed. Plainclothes officers failed in an attempt to place bets at the store, Centner said, indicating that betting was closed to the general public.

THE SAME ROUTINE was repeated after the track closed. There were a few hard-core bettors coming in every day, some twice a week, said Centner. Photographs were taken of the people who came in regularly.

"As long as scratch sheets keep coming out," said Centner, "and bettors can get this information daily, we are going to get this sort of set up. If they didn't get this information, we could stop this from happening."

Several members of the police department were involved in the investigation, which was led by Lt. Frank Ortiz and Sgt. Walter Schoenfeld.

Ziarkowski owned the book store for about three or four years, according to Centner. The store is located at Palatine Road and Bothwell.

Center To Break Ground

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to (Continued on Page 2)

Gene Knows That He's Out

by TOM WELLMAN
and ALAN AKERSON

The quiet disbelief that marked Tuesday night at Gene Schlickman's Wheeling Township headquarters in the Arlington Carousal Restaurant gave way to grim acceptance yesterday morning.

For the men and women, the veterans of other Wheeling Township campaigns, it was a disappointing defeat. Many had worked long hours to sell their candidate to the voters.

For the Schlick Chicks, the seemingly endless horde of youthful campaign workers, it must have been difficult to wake up yesterday and realize the fun and energy had not produced a winner.

FOR THE INNER circle — the men and women who stayed at Schlickman's office on Campbell Street — it was a bitter defeat. Yesterday some of them were looking for paying or volunteer jobs.

The wake began at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday when several precinct captains walked into the almost-empty Carousal basement and posted their precincts on the tally board.

Wheeling Township committeeman Richard Cowen and several others looked on quietly as Crane's total mounted. Crane was not tallying 5 or 10 per cent of the vote; he was scoring 15, 20 and even 30 per cent forays into precincts in "safe" Schlickman territory.

And Schlickman was not winning 70, 80 or 90 per cent. By 7 p.m., before the adding machines were whirring, a Herald tally of eight precincts showed Schlickman with only a 2-1 edge over Crane, with the other candidates — except Joe Mathewson and Sam Young — out of the picture.

AT THE REAR of the big room, Friend Yonkers and other volunteers took calls from other townships. And the bad news came early; for example, Schlickman tallied only a quarter of the Palatine Township vote, and the eastern townships were out of his grasp.

Slowly, precinct captains reported in with individual precincts, but the picture did not change. Schlickman was winning in the township, but he was not sweeping it. And he would need a sweep to gain the GOP nomination.

By the time 8:30 of the 89 precincts were in, Schlickman was holding about 43 per cent of the vote. Crane was holding at 27 per cent.

Finally, 87 of 89 precincts were in, and Schlickman had landed 42.5 per cent — 5,432 votes — of the township total. Crane, sweeping precincts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, tallied 26.7 per cent — 3,414 votes.

SCHLICKMAN couldn't manage to carry more than half of his township, and Crane had captured more than a quarter of it.

According to Ron Wilmeyer, Schlickman's finance chairman, his candidate needed to carry the township "by about a 3-1 margin."

"We also needed second place finishes for Gene in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships," he said.

Others agreed and began to wonder out loud why Crane had run so strong. Personal charisma, a powerful volunteer organization and a last-minute letter to voters from Crane's wife were all mentioned.

Cowen observed that several factors worked against Schlickman, including his legislative vote for the state income tax, support of HB 1241 (which antagonized many Prospect Heights voters) and the lack of any substantial eastern vote.

"CRANE MARSHALLED a strongly conservative vote. He's an effective platform speaker. He's articulate and a strong campaigner."

"He's accomplishing what all of us talked about; he carried one township and ran second or third in virtually every other," Cowen said.

Finally, Schlickman came over to officially thank his backers for their effort.

The man who had hoped to weld a powerful voting bloc in the western half of what has been called the most affluent

Congressional district in America stood on a table with his wife and was generous with his thanks:

"During this campaign I learned more than I learned in any previous campaign and I met more dependable and wonderful people than in all of my previous eight campaigns."

"THERE ARE so many people I'd like to thank," he said, carefully and tiredly. "But if I did, we'd be here all night."

Later, he was asked if he would support Crane.

"I've always supported Republican candidates in the past without exception," he said firmly.

However, he would not comment on whether he would campaign for Crane.

How did Crane win? "Crane put forward a distinct philosophy that, in effect, set himself apart from the rest," said Schlickman.

THE CROWD OF 200 Republicans was beginning to filter out. Schlickman shook as many hands as he could, then joined a group of couples dancing as a small combo played. The campaign may have ended, but the party was going strong at 11:30.

Meanwhile, Cowen headed over to the Crane headquarters in Niles. For him, Schlickman's campaign was over, too.

GENE IN THE "Gene Machine" urged Wheeling Township residents to vote in the 13th District congressional election. "Vote Republican, vote Schlickman" was the off-repeated sentence coming from a friend's Dodge motor home. Schlickman, candidate for 13th District congressman, was in the final hours of his ninth election campaign in 10 years. His "most nervous" race was when he ran for Arlington Heights trustee at age 29, he said. His hardest race was for the committeeman in 1966.

Study Mail Votes

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,981 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,068 votes and Young, 15,401.

Sports Complex Bids Are Studied By Architects

Bids for steel and concrete work for the proposed Rolling Meadows sports complex were presented to the park board Monday.

The complex, financed by a $900,000 bond issue, will provide a new recreational area for residents.

The low bid for concrete offered by Zenan Concrete, was $95,000, and the low bid for steel, offered by L-J Iron Works, was $73,558.

The high bid for concrete, offered by Koch and Weitz, was $121,594 and the high bid for steel, offered by Vierking Iron, was $110,400.

The bids are being analyzed by the architectural firm of McFadden and Everly. According to Susan Smith, park board secretary, bids become invalid after a three-week waiting period.

Alterations in the original plans of the sports complex were suggested to comply with Fire Chief Tom Fogarty's suggestions for fire safety. New roads to provide access for fire trucks may be added to the architects drawings.

Bids for carpentry, structural steel, metal sidings, plastering, roofing, acoustical tile, asbestos flooring, painting, glass and glazing will be presented at an Oct. 23 meeting.

Camp Fire Projects Set for School Year

Rolling Meadows Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds are beginning the school season with a number of projects.

One of these is collecting gifts to send to servicemen in Vietnam. The girls have filled over 130 bags with items hard to acquire overseas.

At the annual "Fly Up," Sept. 23, two Blue Bird groups graduated to Camp Fire, one group went to Junior High Camp Fire and the first Horizon Club in Rolling Meadows was established.

Parents of Camp Fire girls will join in the Community Chest Drive and help collect newspapers and magazines in a paper drive for funds for Korean orphans and for camping equipment.

Nelson Will Chair Christmas Seal Drive

Robert W. Nelson, 629 N. Williams Drive, Palatine, has been named community Christmas Seal chairman for 1969.

Nelson is vice president and real estate officer for the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

Serving as co-chairman for the fund drive is Richard W. Shorter, vice president of the 1st Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine.

"Christmas Seals pay off in immediate and long-range benefits," Nelson said. Because of today's increasing incidence of other respiratory diseases, seals also support medical research and educational programs against emphysema, air pollution, bronchitis and other hazards to the respiratory system, he said.

This year's campaign begins in mid-November and continues until the end of December. Last year more than $1 million was raised.

EVEN THOUGH the sign promised it was one way to Congress, Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights has learned there is no easy road to Washington, D.C. After weeks of intensive campaigning, he finally got to cast his

the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated.

It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 33 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

Librarian Urges Voice Of Students

Rolling Meadows librarian Virginia Connell has proposed new library policies which would give high school and college students a chance to suggest programs and improvements for the library.

Miss Connell, who recently returned from a library convention in Missouri, said students "should be given a voice in the library. I want to create interest in our problems and ideas and I want the youths who come to be alive and filled with things to say."

She suggested asking students from Fremd and Forest View high schools and Harper Junior College to meet with library staff members.

"WE ARE NOT REACHING out far enough to the populace," she said. "Millions of children are turned out of the schools with an inability to read."

"Libraries will have to educate their staff to realize that the public library is comparable to the school. The librarian is equivalent to a principal; her staff the equal of the school's teachers. We should get an equivalent portion of the budget. Remember, the library begins with the children but goes on to educate the adult," Miss Connell added.

'Ambassador' Quinn Aids Mercy Crusade

Campaign theme this year for the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy is "People Who Care."

Volunteers, called ambassadors of mercy, go to industrial plants, factories and offices asking people to contribute.

One of the 145 men and women serving this year's campaign is Martin F. Quinn, 225 S. Rohlwing, Palatine.

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 561-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Daly of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 5,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not wanted to bring out a vote.

The democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Meacham

Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

Woodfield Work Under Way

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers. Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

Ahern OK'd As Trustee

by DAVE PALERMO

The eligibility of newly elected Trustee Daniel Ahern to sit on the Mount Prospect Village Board was questioned Tuesday by Ahern himself, on grounds of his residence requirement for public office.

Ahern lives in Fairview Gardens subdivision, which was annexed to the village last summer.

However, after a lengthy statement by Village Atty John Zimmerman, who researched the legality of the case, it was decided that Ahern's presence on the board was valid, after all.

AHERN TOLD THE board that, although at the time of the spring elections he was not aware of the fact, he fell 86 days short of fulfilling the residency requirements set forth in the municipal code.

That code states that an official to an elected or appointed public post must have resided in the municipality for at least one year next preceding his election or appointment.

Fairview Gardens entered the annexation process in March, 1968, but was not officially made a part of Mount Prospect until July 8, 1968.

"In the past week I have researched the situation," said Ahern, "and have called upon the village attorney to assist me in understanding my position."

IN A NINE-PAGE statement, Village

Atty John Zimmerman reviewed the case citing precedents to arrive at the conclusion that Ahern's seat should not be considered vacant and that acts reviewed by the board in his presence be considered valid.

The statement disclosed that the validity of the trustees may be contested within 30 days of the election by filing a petition and affidavit with municipal officials.

In conclusion, Zimmerman said, "The office of trustee is not vacant, the trustee in office is a de facto official, and his acts as such are valid and binding and will continue to be so until such time as his office becomes vacant."

"I CANNOT OVEREMPHASIZE the fact that his past actions were and are valid and will continue to be valid," he said. "In addition, I may point out that there are no cases in Illinois which state that if a person is elected to an office at a time when he does not possess the necessary legal qualifications, his election is a nullity."

"True, the annexation of Fairview Gardens occurred within a year next prior to the April 15 election, but for many years Ahern has lived in the house he is presently living in, his post office address was Mount Prospect, the schools his children attended are in Mount Prospect, and he and his family shop in Mount Prospect."

"This man (Ahern) knows Mount Prospect. Practically speaking, he has lived here many years. He is not a newcomer, totally unfamiliar with the community and its customs," Zimmerman said.

'Fantasies' Parade Slated for Nov. 29

"Holiday Fantasies" is the tentative theme for the 1969 Arlington Heights holiday parade which will come to the village Saturday, Nov. 29.

Sponsored by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and conducted by a special committee of village residents, the parade again will offer enormous balloons, marching bands, the flash of bright uniforms and a variety of colorful floats.

ACCORDING TO parade planners, this year's giant balloons will be different from last year's attractions and based on the theme of circus animals. There will be a 100-foot-long snake, a 65-foot-long leopard and a 150-foot-long balloon depicting elephants on parade.

A total of 14 marching units have promised to strut through Arlington Heights that day.

Units from local high schools, five drum and bugle corps units and attractions from Medinah marching units will be on hand.

The 1969 parade will follow the route established last year. Units will step off at 9:45 a.m. from a marshalling area near Arlington Park Race Track. They will march south on Wilke to Campbell, east on Campbell to Dunton, north on Dunton to Miner and finally ending at Recreation Park on Douglas.

Extensive promotion of the parade is planned throughout the Northwest suburbs prior to the event.

Working on the project is a planning committee whose members are expected to meet during the next month in final preparations for the parade.

145 To Collect In Mercy Crusade

Ralph Holshouser of 307 N. Emerson, Mount Prospect, will serve as one of the 145 men and women ambassadors for this year's Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

The campaign, carrying the theme "People Who Care," is established to gain support of thousands of employees who are asked to contribute at the plant, factory or office where they work.

Ambassadors of Mercy are called upon to speak to employee groups wherever and whenever people work — from their lunchrooms to loading docks and boxcars — during lunch hours, at breakfasts or even during a break in the night shift.

IF YOU LISTEN CLOSELY, you can hear the clash of cymbals and the roar of the drums. The annual Arlington Heights holiday parade is coming on Nov. 29 with the theme of Holiday Fantasies to guide it. The enormous balloons of last year's parade crowded the streets of the route. More and bigger balloons are expected this year.

Gene Knows He Is Out

by TOM WELLMAN
and ALAN AKERSON

The quiet disbelief that marked Tuesday night at Gene Schlickman's Wheeling Township headquarters in the Arlington Carousal Restaurant gave way to grim acceptance yesterday morning.

For the men and women, the veterans of other Wheeling Township campaigns, it was a disappointing defeat. Many had worked long hours to sell their candidate to the voters.

For the Schlick Chicks, the seemingly endless horde of youthful campaign workers, it must have been difficult to wake up yesterday and realize the fun and energy had not produced a winner.

FOR THE INNER circle — the men and women who stayed at Schlickman's office on Campbell Street — it was a bitter defeat. Yesterday some of them were looking for paying or volunteer jobs.

The wake began at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday when several precinct captains walked into the almost-empty Carousal basement and posted their precincts on the tally board.

Wheeling Township committeeman Richard Cowen and several others looked on quietly as Crane's total mounted. Crane was not tallying 5 or 10 per cent of the vote; he was scoring 15, 20 and even 30 per cent forays into precincts in "safe" Schlickman territory.

And Schlickman was not winning 70, 80 or 90 per cent. By 7 p.m., before the adding machines were whirring, a Herald tally of eight precincts showed Schlickman with only a 2-1 edge over Crane, with the other candidates — except Joe Mathewson and Sam Young — out of the picture.

AT THE REAR of the big room, Fred Yonkers and other volunteers took calls from other townships. And the bad news came early; for example, Schlickman tallied only a quarter of the Palatine Township vote, and the eastern townships were out of his grasp.

Slowly, precinct captains reported in with individual precincts, but the picture did not change. Schlickman was winning in the township, but he was not sweeping it. And he would need a sweep to gain the GOP nomination.

By the time 80 of the 89 precincts were in, Schlickman was holding about 43 per cent of the vote. Crane was holding at 27 per cent.

Finally, 87 of 89 precincts were in, and Schlickman had landed 42.5 per cent — 5,432 votes — of the township total. Crane, sweeping precincts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, tallied 25.7 per cent — 3,414 votes.

SCHLICKMAN couldn't manage to carry more than half of his township, and Crane had captured more than a quarter of it.

According to Ron Wittmeyer, Schlickman's finance chairman, his candidate needed to carry the township "by about a 3-1 margin."

"We also needed second place finishes for Gene in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships," he said.

Others agreed and began to wonder out loud why Crane had run so strong. Personal charisma, a powerful volunteer organization and a last-minute letter to voters from Crane's wife were all mentioned.

Cowen observed that several factors worked against Schlickman, including his legislative vote for the state income tax, support of HB 1241 (which antagonized many Prospect Heights voters) and the lack of any substantial eastern vote.

"CRANE MARSHALLED a strongly conservative vote. He's an effective platform speaker. He's articulate and a strong campaigner."

"He's accomplishing what all of us talked about, he carried one township and ran second or third in virtually every other," Cowen said.

Finally, Schlickman came over to officially thank his backers for their effort.

The man who had hoped to weld a powerful voting bloc in the western half of what has been called the most affluent Congressional district in America stood on a table with his wife and was generous with his thanks:

"During this campaign I learned more than I learned in any previous campaign and I met more dependable and wonderful people than in all of my previous eight campaigns."

"THERE ARE so many people I'd like to thank," he said, carefully and tiredly, "But if I did, we'd be here all night."

Later, he was asked if he would support Crane.

"I've always supported Republican candidates in the past without exception," he said firmly.

However, he would not comment on whether he would campaign for Crane.

How did Crane win? "Crane put forward a distinct philosophy that, in effect, set himself apart from the rest," said Schlickman.

THE CROWD OF 200 Republicans was beginning to filter out. Schlickman shook as many hands as he could, then joined a group of couples dancing as a small combo played. The campaign may have ended, but the party was going strong at 11:30.

Meanwhile, Cowen headed over to the Crane headquarters in Niles. For him, Schlickman's campaign was over, too.

Weller Neighbors Discuss Problems

Last night Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert got an idea of public reaction concerning the effect Stage 4 of the Weller Creek Project will have on residents living along the waterway.

Appearing before the Mount Prospect Clean Streams Committee, Teichert fielded questions from residents living in the affected area.

Exactly how much area will be required by the engineers and the effect the project will have on property were the primary concerns.

Teichert assured the committee that the engineers would avoid land destruction whenever possible and that completion of the project would increase the value of the land.

He said that the engineers would need approximately 50 feet from the center of the stream outward in each direction but added that for the convenience of the landowners the amount would fluctuate whenever possible.

ANOTHER TOPIC discussed by the committee was the effect this would have on homeowners forced to sell their property during the interim of the Weller Project.

Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett said he expected some adverse public reaction but he said as residents become more educated about the project and realize that it is increasing land value, dissent should decline.

Teichert asked the committee to help him inform the residents about the project as well as helping in securing easements which are necessary before the project can be funded.

Teichert told the committee that more information would be available when a special meeting is held Oct. 23.

Street Light Study Made

by GERRY DeZONNA

A preliminary survey for the installation of street lights in Fairview Gardens was taken yesterday by Walter Lambert, district superintendent for the Commonwealth Edison Co., and Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett.

The survey was made following a request from the Fairview Gardens Homeowners Association for the installation of approximately 30 street lights with an underground-cable system.

"Installing an underground-cable system will involve some engineering studies and a good deal of surveying. I expect to begin work on the studies as soon as possible, but it will be at least three weeks before I'll have a final report," Lambert said.

LAMBERT SAID THE engineering studies would have to be completed before he could estimate the cost of the project. The Village of Mount Prospect is wired for street lights using an overhead-cable system, and there is no installation charge for street lights hooked up to the regular system.

"However, there is an installation charge when an underground system is used because there is much more work involved in the project. The Village of Mount Prospect is wired for street lights using an overhead-cable system, and there is no installation charge for street lights hooked up to the regular system."

"However, there is an installation charge when an underground system is used because there is much more work involved in the project. Overhead cables usually run along the rear-lot lines, which means we'd have to dig trenches and lay cable from the backyard to the front yard to make the hookups."

"Also different poles and man-arms are used in underground systems, so I couldn't really estimate the cost for the project until all the measurements and studies have been made," Lambert said.

A RESIDENTIAL STREET light costs approximately $2.40 per month for service and maintenance with no charge for installation and equipment. It is estimated that an underground-cable system can cost two or three times as much as a regular overhead system.

"This could be a costly project, but how costly I just don't know. The Fairview Gardens Homeowners Association has tentatively agreed to pay for the project by special assessment which means that the property owners will pay for the entire cost of the project with the exception of any lights designated as public benefits by the village," Barnett said.

Lambert estimated that, once the engineering studies are completed and the project is approved, it will take approximately six months to a year to complete the project.

"WE'RE JUST SWAMPED with work, and I doubt very much if we could install the lights and finish the project much before late next summer," Lambert said.

There are approximately 293 homes in Fairview Gardens, and the power company will not install street lights without almost complete agreement and approval from residents in the subdivision, according to Barnett.

"Some people just don't like street lights or they can't agree on where the lights should be located, but I doubt if there will be any problems in this case, because the Homeowners Association made the request, which I assume represents the majority of property owners," Barnett said.

Walkout Threatened Today at Fremd

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weimer, Fremd High School principal, said.

In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weimer said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillenheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillenheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we are working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said. "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillenheim said.

GENE IN THE "Gene Machine" urged Wheeling Township residents to vote in the 13th District congressional election. "Vote Republican, vote Schlickman" was the oft-repeated sentence coming from a friend's Dodge motor home. Schlickman, candidate for 13th District congressman, was in the final hours of his ninth election campaign in 10 years. His "most nervous" race was when he ran for Arlington Heights trustee at age 29, he said. His hardest race was for the committeeman in 1966.

Absentee Ballots Studied

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,381 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,068 votes and Young, 15,401.

Class in Leadership Still Has Openings

Only a few openings remain in the youth leadership class being sponsored by Randhurst Toastmasters Club.

The eight-week course in the essentials of oral communications and leadership is being provided to young people at no charge and is scheduled to begin Oct. 9, at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

Arthur Wiebe, the youth leadership course chairman, said the program was developed by Toastmasters International, a world-wide communications and leadership organization, specifically for young people.

The program, he said, offers young people the opportunity to learn more effective speaking, analytical listening, and critical thinking. It also provides practice in conducting a meeting properly.

Boys and girls of junior high and high school age who are interested in participating in the class may contact Wiebe at CL 3-7077 for additional information.

Trustees OK Special Census

In an effort to accurately determine the amount of money Mount Prospect will receive annually from the Illinois motor fuel and state income taxes, the village board approved a motion to finance a special census this week.

State funds are currently allocated to Mount Prospect on a per capita basis based on the 1966 population estimate of 30,202.

Village officials, however, estimate that the current population is 33,500 and, if verified, this would mean an increase in revenue from the two sources of $46,781.

THE CENSUS, WHICH would be conducted by the Bureau of Census of the United States Dept. of Commerce, would cost the village $6,800.

The current MPT fund would increase this year to $254,323 on the basis of the 1966 census. If the new population were verified the incoming revenue would mean an additional increase of $27,881.

An affirmation of the new population estimate would increase income from the state income tax from $173,661, to 192,625, or an increase of $18,960.

Building Man Is Dismissed

George Schumann, a Mount Prospect building inspector, was dismissed from his job Tuesday by Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett.

"There are problems in the building department related to him which could no longer be excused. These complaints included discourtesies to the public, lack of responsibility in handling village equipment, inefficiency and an inability to perform his job," Barnett said.

The village manager said that he hopes to fill the vacancy as soon as possible because a shortage in personnel would create an extra burden on the department.

"There's a lot of work to be done in the building department at this time. The village has a lot of iron in the fire, such as the Kenroy and Old Orchard developments as well as regular village business, and the personnel in the building department are very busy now," he said.

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin
For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct total, unofficial results stand this way: Crane 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,928; Alan Johnston, 10,478; Eugene Schlickman, 9,282; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Daily of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, OF Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The Democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Meacham

Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

Woodfield Work Under Way

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $60 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 160 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,200-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoes to central air-conditioning equipment.

Ahern OK'd
As Trustee

by DAVE PALERMO

The eligibility of newly elected Trustee Daniel Ahern to sit on the Mount Prospect Village Board was questioned Tuesday by Ahern himself, on grounds of his residence requirement for public office.

Ahern lives in Fairview Gardens subdivision, which was annexed to the village last summer.

However, after a lengthy statement by Village Atty John Zimmerman, who researched the legality of the case, it was decided that Ahern's presence on the board was valid, after all.

AHERN TOLD THE board that, although at the time of the spring elections he was not aware of the fact, he fell 85 days short of fulfilling the residency requirements set forth in the municipal code.

That code states that an official to an elected or appointed public post must have resided in the municipality for at least one year next preceding his election or appointment.

Fairview Gardens entered the annexation process in March, 1968, but was not officially made a part of Mount Prospect until July 8, 1968.

"In the past week I have researched the situation," said Ahern, "and have called upon the village attorney to assist me in understanding my position."

IN A NINE-PAGE statement, Village

Atty John Zimmerman reviewed the case, citing precedents to arrive at the conclusion that Ahern's seat should not be considered vacant and that acts reviewed by the board in his presence be considered valid.

The statement disclosed that the validity of the trustees may be contested within 30 days of the election by filing a petition and affidavit with municipal officials.

In conclusion, Zimmerman said, "The office of trustee is not vacant. The trustee in office is a de facto official, and his acts as such are valid and binding and will continue to be so until such time as his office becomes vacant."

"I CANNOT OVEREMPHASIZE the fact that his past actions were and are valid and will continue to be valid," he said. "In addition, I may point out that there are no cases in Illinois which state that if a person is elected to an office at a time when he does not possess the necessary legal qualifications, his election is a nullity."

"True, the annexation of Fairview Gardens occurred within a year next prior to the April 15 election, but for many years Ahern has lived in the house he is presently living in, his post office address was Mount Prospect, the schools his children attended are in Mount Prospect, and he and his family shop in Mount Prospect."

"This man (Ahern) knows Mount Prospect. Practically speaking, he has lived here many years. He is not a newcomer totally unfamiliar with the community and its customs," Zimmerman said.

'Fantasies' Parade
Slated for Nov. 29

"Holiday Fantasies" is the tentative theme for the 1969 Arlington Heights holiday parade which will come to the village Saturday, Nov. 29.

Sponsored by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and conducted by a special committee of village residents, the parade again will offer enormous balloons, marching bands, the flash of bright uniforms and a variety of colorful floats.

ACCORDING TO parade planners, this year's giant balloons will be different from last year's attractions and based on the theme of circus animals. There will be a 100-foot-long snake, a 65-foot-long leopard

145 To Collect
In Mercy Crusade

Ralph Holshouser of 307 N. Emerson, Mount Prospect, will serve as one of the 145 men and women ambassadors for this year's Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

The campaign, carrying the theme "People Who Care," is established to gain support of thousands of employees who are asked to contribute at the plant, factory or office where they work.

Ambassadors of Mercy are called upon to speak to employee groups wherever and whenever people work — from their lunchrooms to loading docks and boxcars — during lunch hours, at breakfasts or even during a break in the night shift.

and a 150-foot-long balloon depicting elephants on parade.

A total of 14 marching units have promised to strut through Arlington Heights that day.

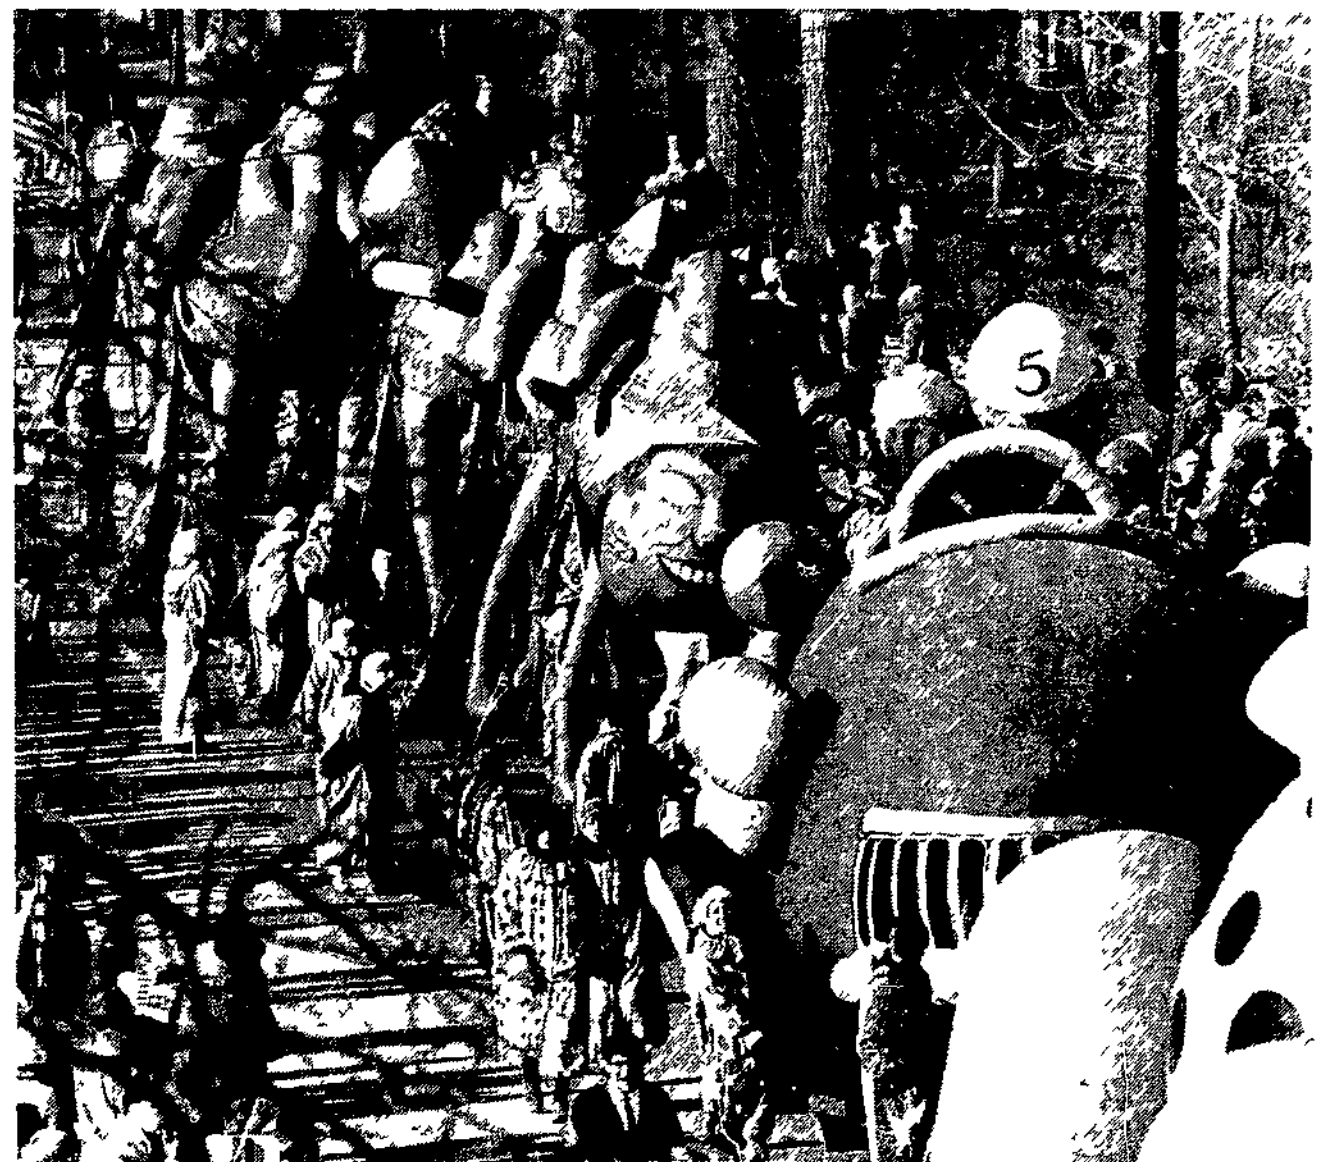

Units from local high schools, five drum and bugle corps units and attractions from Medinah marching units will be on hand.

The 1969 parade will follow the route established last year. Units will step off at 9:45 a.m. from a marshalling area near Arlington Park Race Track. They will march south on Wilke to Campbell, east on Campbell to Dunton, north on Dunton to Miner and finally ending at Recreation Park on Douglas.

Extensive promotion of the parade is planned throughout the Northwest suburbs prior to the event.

Working on the project is a planning committee whose members are expected to meet during the next month in final preparations for the parade.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS are Robert Y. Paddock, parade chairman; Ann Sluke, parade co-chairman; James Mason, parade marshal; Irving Robbin and Donald Florence, finance chairman and co-chairman; Rev. David Stuckmeyer, church groups chairman; James Svoboda, decorations chairman; John Janszen, personalities chairman; Jack Starke, manpower chairman; Anita Wilkins, program booklet chairman; Margie Flanders, retail chairman; Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, transportation chairman; Stephan Berry, Dist. 214 coordinator; Marge Lemelleur, program advisor; Harold Bell, chamber of commerce executive director.

IF YOU LISTEN CLOSELY, you can hear the clash of cymbals and the roar of the drums. The annual Arlington Heights holiday parade is coming on Nov. 29 with the theme of Holiday Fantasies to guide it. The enormous balloons of last year's parade crowded the streets of the route. More and bigger balloons are expected this year.

Gene Knows He Is Out

by TOM WELLMAN
and ALAN AKERSON

The quiet disbelief that marked Tuesday night at Gene Schlickman's Wheeling Township headquarters in the Arlington Carousal Restaurant gave way to grim acceptance yesterday morning.

For the men and women, the veterans of other Wheeling Township campaigns, it was a disappointing defeat. Many had worked long hours to sell their candidate to the voters.

For the Schlick Chicks, the seemingly endless horde of youthful campaign workers, it must have been difficult to wake up yesterday and realize the fun and energy had not produced a winner.

FOR THE INNER circle — the men and women who stayed at Schlickman's office on Campbell Street — it was a bitter defeat. Yesterday some of them were looking for paying or volunteer jobs.

The wake began at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday when several precinct captains walked into the almost-empty Carousal basement and posted their precincts on the tally board.

Wheeling Township committeeman Richard Cowen and several others looked on quietly as Crane's total mounted. Crane was not tallying 5 or 10 per cent of the vote; he was scoring 15, 20 and even 30 per cent forays into precincts in "safe" Schlickman territory.

And Schlickman was not winning 70, 80 or 90 per cent. By 7 p.m., before the adding machines were whirring, a Herald tally of eight precincts showed Schlickman with only a 2-1 edge over Crane, with the other candidates — except Joe Mathewson and Sam Young — out of the picture.

AT THE REAR of the big room, Fremd Yonkers and other volunteers took calls from other townships. And the bad news came early; for example, Schlickman tallied only a quarter of the Palatine Township vote, and the eastern townships were out of his grasp.

Slowly, precinct captains reported in with individual precincts, but the picture did not change. Schlickman was winning in the township, but he was not sweeping it. And he would need a sweep to gain the GOP nomination.

By the time 80 of the 89 precincts were in, Schlickman was holding about 43 per cent of the vote. Crane was holding at 27 per cent.

Finally, 87 of 89 precincts were in, and Schlickman had landed 42.5 per cent — 5,432 votes — of the township total. Crane, sweeping precincts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, tallied 26.7 per cent — 3,414 votes.

SCHLICKMAN couldn't manage to carry more than half of his township, and Crane had captured more than a quarter of it.

According to Ron Wittmeyer, Schlickman's finance chairman, his candidate needed to carry the township "by about a 3-1 margin."

"We also needed second place finishes for Gene in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships," he said.

Others agreed and began to wonder out loud why Crane had run so strong. Personal charisma, a powerful volunteer organization and a last-minute letter to voters from Crane's wife were all mentioned.

Cowen observed that several factors worked against Schlickman, including his legislative vote for the state income tax, support of HB 1241 (which antagonized many Prospect Heights voters) and the lack of any substantial eastern vote.

"CRANE MARSHALLED a strongly conservative vote. He's an effective platform speaker. He's articulate and a strong campaigner."

"He's accomplishing what all of us talked about; he carried one township and ran second or third in virtually every other," Cowen said.

Finally, Schlickman came over to officially thank his backers for their effort.

The man who had hoped to weld a powerful voting bloc in the western half of what has been called the most affluent Congressional district in America stood on a table with his wife and was generous with his thanks.

"During this campaign I learned more than I learned in any previous campaign and I met more dependable and wonderful people than in all of my previous eight campaigns."

"THERE ARE so many people I'd like to thank," he said, carefully and tiredly, "But if I did, we'd be here all night."

Later, he was asked if he would support Crane.

"I've always supported Republican candidates in the past without exception," he said firmly.

However, he would not comment on whether he would campaign for Crane.

How did Crane win? "Crane put forward a distinct philosophy that, in effect, set himself apart from the rest," said Schlickman.

THE CROWD OF 200 Republicans was beginning to filter out. Schlickman shook as many hands as he could, then joined a group of couples dancing as a small combo played. The campaign may have ended, but the party was going strong at 11:30.

Meanwhile, Cowen headed over to the Crane headquarters in Niles. For him, Schlickman's campaign was over, too.

GENE IN THE "Gene Machine" urged Wheeling Township residents to vote in the 13th District congressional election. "Vote Republican, vote Schlickman" was the oft-repeated sentence coming from a friend's Dodge motor home. Schlickman, candidate for 13th District congressman, was in the final hours of his ninth election campaign in 10 years. His "most nervous" race was when he ran for Arlington Heights trustee at age 29, he said. His hardest race was for the committeeman in 1966.

Weller Neighbors Discuss Problems

Last night Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert got an idea of public reaction concerning the effect Stage 4 of the Weller Creek Project will have on residents living along the waterway.

Appearing before the Mount Prospect Clean Streams Committee, Teichert fielded questions from residents living in the affected area.

Exactly how much area will be required by the engineers and the effect the project will have on property were the primary concerns.

Teichert assured the committee that the engineers would avoid land destruction whenever possible and that completion of the project would increase the value of the land.

He said that the engineers would need approximately 50 feet from the center of the stream outward in each direction but added that for the convenience of the landowners the amount would fluctuate whenever possible.

ANOTHER TOPIC discussed by the committee was the effect this would have on homeowners forced to sell their property during the interim of the Weller Project.

Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett said he expected some adverse public reaction but he said as residents become more educated about the project and realize that it is increasing land value, dissent should decline.

Teichert asked the committee to help him inform the residents about the project as well as helping in securing easements which are necessary before the project can be funded.

Teichert told the committee that more information would be available when a special meeting is held Oct. 28.

Street Light Study Made

by GERRY DeZONNA

A preliminary survey for the installation of street lights in Fairview Gardens was taken yesterday by Walter Lambert, district superintendent for the Commonwealth Edison Co., and Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett.

The survey was made following a request from the Fairview Gardens Homeowners Association for the installation of approximately 30 street lights with an underground-cable system.

"Installing an underground-cable system will involve some engineering studies and a good deal of surveying. I expect to begin work on the studies as soon as possible, but it will be at least three weeks before I'll have a final report," Lambert said.

LAMBERT SAID THE engineering studies would have to be completed before he could estimate the cost of the project. The Village of Mount Prospect is wired for street lights using an overhead-cable system, and there is no installation charge for street lights hooked up to the regular system.

"However, there is an installation charge when an underground system is used because there is much more work involved in the project. The Village of Mount Prospect is wired for street lights using an overhead-cable system, and there is no installation charge for street lights hooked up to the regular system."

"However, there is an installation charge when an underground system is used because there is much more work involved in the project. Overhead cables usually run along the rear-lot lines, which means we'd have to dig trenches and lay cable from the backyard to the front yard to make the hookups."

"Also different poles and mast-arms are used in underground systems, so I couldn't really estimate the cost for the project until all the measurements and studies have been made," Lambert said.

A RESIDENTIAL STREET light costs approximately $2.40 per month for service and maintenance with no charge for installation and equipment. It is estimated that an underground-cable system can cost two or three times as much as a regular overhead system.

"This could be a costly project, but how costly I just don't know. The Fairview Gardens Homeowners Association has tentatively agreed to pay for the project by special assessment which means that the property owners will pay for the entire cost of the project with the exception of any lights designated as public benefits by the village," Barnett said.

Lambert estimated that, once the engineering studies are completed and the project is approved, it will take approximately six months to a year to complete the project.

"WE'RE JUST SWAMPED with work, and I doubt very much if we could install the lights and finish the project much before late next summer," Lambert said.

There are approximately 293 homes in Fairview Gardens, and the power company will not install street lights without almost complete agreement and approval from residents in the subdivision, according to Barnett.

"Some people just don't like street lights or they can't agree on where the lights should be located, but I doubt if there will be any problems in this case, because the Homeowners Association made the request, which I assume represents the majority of property owners," Barnett said.

Walkout Threatened Today at Fremd

by JUDY BRANDES

An unknown number of students at William Fremd High School is allegedly planning a 10 a.m. walkout today to protest the school dress code, the closed campus policy and the lack of a smoking area in the school.

Five students were suspended from school for three to five days for passing out unauthorized literature in school corridors before classes began yesterday. The mimeographed literature urges students to join the walkout.

"I think the general student opinion is not to join the walkout," Carl Weimer, Fremd High School principal, said.

In an announcement over the school's public address system, Weimer said he asked students to act in a mature way and not leave school at the end of second period today.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATING in the walkout face the possibility of suspension from school. Parents of a suspended student must come to school for a parent conference before their child can be readmitted, according to school policy.

"All of the things the five students want action on, except the smoking area, are in the discussion stages now," Thomas Hillesheim, assistant principal at Fremd, said.

Hillesheim spent yesterday talking with the suspended students. "I think they wanted to be heard and didn't know we were working on the problems already."

"Everybody has been complaining about the dress code," Linda Cunningham, a Fremd senior and member of the High-Lights for Youth staff at Paddock Publications, said. "What students want is a chance to say something about the dress code."

THREE COMMITTEES of faculty, students and parents are discussing and proposing changes in the dress code. The administrative council, made up of district administrators and the three high school principals will consider the suggestions from the three committees.

"I don't think there will be a walkout today," Hillesheim said.

School administrators attribute the idea of a walkout at Fremd to publicity of a nationwide walkout on college campuses next week when students will spend the day trying to convince citizens to oppose the Vietnam war.

No mention was made of the Vietnam issue in the literature passed out yesterday, according to Hillesheim.

Lions' Center May Stay in Loop

Lions Club International, which has considered land in the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect as a possible site for new headquarters, will most likely stay in the Chicago Loop area.

General counsel Roy Schaefer said yesterday that final details are not ironed out for the move but "at present it looks like the international headquarters will remain in the Loop."

The international group sold its 100-year-old building at 209 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, and the organization's constitution demands that headquarters remain in the metropolitan area. The board has investigated several city and suburban sites during the past few months.

four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election

Trustees OK Special Census

In an effort to accurately determine the amount of money Mount Prospect will receive annually from the Illinois motor fuel and state income taxes, the village board approved a motion to finance a special census this week.

State funds are currently allocated to Mount Prospect on a per capita basis based on the 1966 population estimate of 30,202.

Village officials, however, estimate that the current population is 33,500 and, if verified, this would mean an increase in revenue from the two sources of $46,781.

THE CENSUS, WHICH would be conducted by the Bureau of Census of the day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,981 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Samuel Young of Glenview received the next highest vote totals. With three Wheeling Township precincts results still missing, Crane totaled 17,068 votes and Young, 15,401.

United States Dept. of Commerce, would cost the village $6,800.

The current MPT fund would increase this year to $254,523 on the basis of the 1966 census. If the new population were verified, the incoming revenue would mean an additional increase of $27,881.

An affirmation of the new population estimate would increase income from the state income tax from $173,661, to 192,625, or an increase of $18,960.

Building Man Is Dismissed

George Schumann, a Mount Prospect building inspector, was dismissed from his job Tuesday by Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett.

"There are problems in the building department related to him which could no longer be excused. These complaints included discourtesies to the public, lack of responsibility in handling village equipment, inefficiency and an inability to perform his job," Barnett said.

The village manager said that he hopes to fill the vacancy as soon as possible because a shortage in personnel would create an extra burden on the department.

"There's a lot of work to be done in the building department at this time. The village has a lot of iron in the fire, such as the Kenroy and Old Orchard developments as well as regular village business, and the personnel in the building department are very busy now," he said.

Haynsworth Doubted

WASHINGTON — Half the Senate Republican leadership team, Senators Robert P. Griffin and Margaret Chase Smith, came out publicly yesterday against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.'s nomination to the Supreme Court.

Griffin said he could not support Haynsworth because of "legitimate and substantial doubt" about his sensitivity to the court's high ethical standards. Mrs. Smith said the nomination "will further damage public confidence in the court."

Revoke Turner Medal

WASHINGTON — The Army announced yesterday it has revoked the Distinguished Service Medal awarded in 1968 to Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, accused by Senate investigators of improprieties while serving as the Army's provost marshal.

At the same time, congressional sources said that Turner was under government investigation when he was named chief U.S. marshal by the Nixon administration last March, six months after his Army retirement.

Big Margin For Crane

Final tallies of 13th District balloting in the Republican congressional primary Tuesday still declare Philip Crane of Winnetka the winner by over a 2,000-vote margin.

With three missing Wheeling Township precincts now added to the 551-precinct totals, unofficial results stand this way: Crane, 17,982; Sam Young, 15,854; Joseph Mathewson, 12,926; Alan Johnston, 10,473; Eugene Schlickman, 9,292; Gerald Marks, 6,566; and John Nimrod, 5,585.

Lar "America First" Day of Chicago was listed as receiving 57 votes, but some precincts did not count his votes.

CRANE, 39, of Winnetka, an author and lecturer, will face Democrat Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election. Outcome of that election will determine the congressman who will succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

Warman received 6,565 Democratic votes in the primary, where he ran unopposed. He said Wednesday he had only anticipated a 5,000-vote turnout in his party primary and was "encouraged" because he had not worked to bring out a vote.

The Democrat, 43, of Skokie, said Crane was his choice for an opponent and predicted he would get more of the Republican's moderate votes than Crane will. Crane's views are not those of half of the people, Warman said.

Warman said he had thought before he would have to gear his campaign to Democrats, but now will also direct it to moderate Republicans.

IF YOU LISTEN CLOSELY, you can hear the clash of cymbals and the roar of the drums. The annual Arlington Heights holiday parade is coming on Nov. 29 with the theme of Holiday Fantasies to guide it. The enormous floats of last year's parade crowded the streets of the route. More and bigger balloons are expected this year.

Fantasies Parade Planned

"Holiday Fantasies" is the tentative theme for the 1969 Arlington Heights holiday parade which will come to the village Saturday, Nov. 29.

Sponsored by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and conducted by a special committee of village residents, the parade again will offer enormous balloons, marching bands, the flash of bright uniforms and a variety of colorful floats.

ACCORDING TO parade planners, this year's giant balloons will be different from last year's attractions and based on the theme of circus animals. There will be a 100-foot-long snake, a 65-foot-long leopard and a 150-foot-long balloon depicting elephants on parade.

A total of 14 marching units have promised to strut through Arlington Heights that day.

Units from local high schools, five drum and bugle corps units and attractions from Medinah marching units will be on hand.

The 1969 parade will follow the route established last year. Units will step off at 9:45 a.m. from a marshalling area near Arlington Park Race Track. They will march south on Wilke to Campbell, east on Campbell to Dunton, north on Dunton to Miner and finally ending at Recreation Park on Douglas.

Extensive promotion of the parade is planned throughout the Northwest suburbs prior to the event.

Working on the project is a planning committee whose members are expected to meet during the next month in final preparations for the parade.

Work Will Block Cars

Construction that will shut down traffic on certain blocks of the downtown area of Arlington Heights south of the railroad tracks is scheduled to begin Monday morning.

The first phase of construction will eliminate cars on Evergreen Avenue from Sigwalt Street north to Campbell Street. The block of Evergreen is scheduled to be closed to traffic beginning Monday morning and will be closed for about a week, according to Al Sander, village engineer.

The project includes the replacing of water mains which are more than 40 years old. After the initial construction is completed on Evergreen, the block of Campbell from Evergreen west to Dunton Avenue will be closed for construction.

Campbell from Dunton to Vail Avenue will be the third and final phase of the project.

When construction is completed on one block, it will be opened to traffic and the next block will be barricaded.

No set detour will be provided since only one block will be closed at a time and the traffic load on these blocks is not very heavy, according to Sander.

After the preliminary construction, traffic will be allowed on the streets although the project will not be complete. The project's contractors, Santucci Construction Co. of Skokie, will come back through later to chlorinate the main, have it inspected and make individual hookups.

The new water main, which will cost more than $218,000, will increase fire protection in the downtown area and will help eliminate some maintenance problems the village has had with the old main, Sander said.

The village will work out local traffic problems, Sander said. These problems include cars that go through the drive-in windows at the First Arlington National Bank and then exit on Campbell between Evergreen and Dunton.

Sander said the closing of streets to traffic will be safer and allow a shorter construction time than if they were left open.

Any auto found parked on the closed block will be towed away at the owner's expense, the village engineer said.

Mail Votes Are Studied

While voters delivered a decisive victory Tuesday for Philip Crane, Republican primary candidate for congressman, the State's Attorney's Office investigated the use of absentee ballots by Crane supporters.

According to Daniel Coman, chief of the civil division of the State's Attorney's Office, four assistant state's attorneys and four investigators were in the 13th District election day.

Results of the investigation will not be known until the individuals file reports, Coman said.

A REVIEW OF absentee ballot requests was prompted by a Herald investigation which found that 70 different absentee ballots had been mailed to only four receiving addresses, all on the fringe of the 13th District.

A Crane supporter, Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, admitted to Herald reporters he used one Lake Zurich address as a drop-box to receive absentee ballots. Franzen said he had absentee ballots mailed there so Crane supporters would not be disenfranchised of a vote election day when they would be out of town.

FRANZEN SAID Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett would not mail the ballots to Cook County addresses so he necessarily needed an address outside the county. County Clerk's records show 48 ballots were mailed to the Lake Zurich address, the home of a former Buffalo Grove resident.

Crane, one of eight Republican candidates seeking his party's nomination for congressman, won the primary election by 1,931 vote margin, three precinct totals not included in this figure.

Largest Shop Center Is Under Way

Today is a red letter day for Schaumburg and Northwest suburban shoppers.

Ground will be broken at 11 a.m. for Woodfield Mall, billed as "the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development."

The projected opening date for the $90 million shopping center is fall, 1971. When it is completed in early 1972, the center will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

WOODFIELD MALL is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road, making it centrally situated to serve Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Palatine and Wheeling townships' residents.

The three major tenants — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field and Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc. — will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

Those three department stores and The Taubman Co., Inc., of Southfield, Mich., are building Woodfield.

LEASING HAS begun in the center which will house more than 150 stores and services including retailers not now represented in the Chicago area. Merchants committed to date will be announced soon.

The multi-level design of the center interlocks two and three levels to provide maximum shopping convenience by reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer.

Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walk-ways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic in the center.

Aesthetically, three "grand courts" within the malls will have unique sculpture, fountains and waterfalls adding to the beauty and pleasant atmosphere.

SUPPLEMENTARY buildings that will be constructed with the retail development include a 300-room motor hotel, a 2,400-seat twin theater and two multi-story office towers encompassing 400,000 square feet.

The shopping center will employ about 6,000 persons to serve the trade area population of 750,000.

The three department stores will occupy about 1 million square feet.

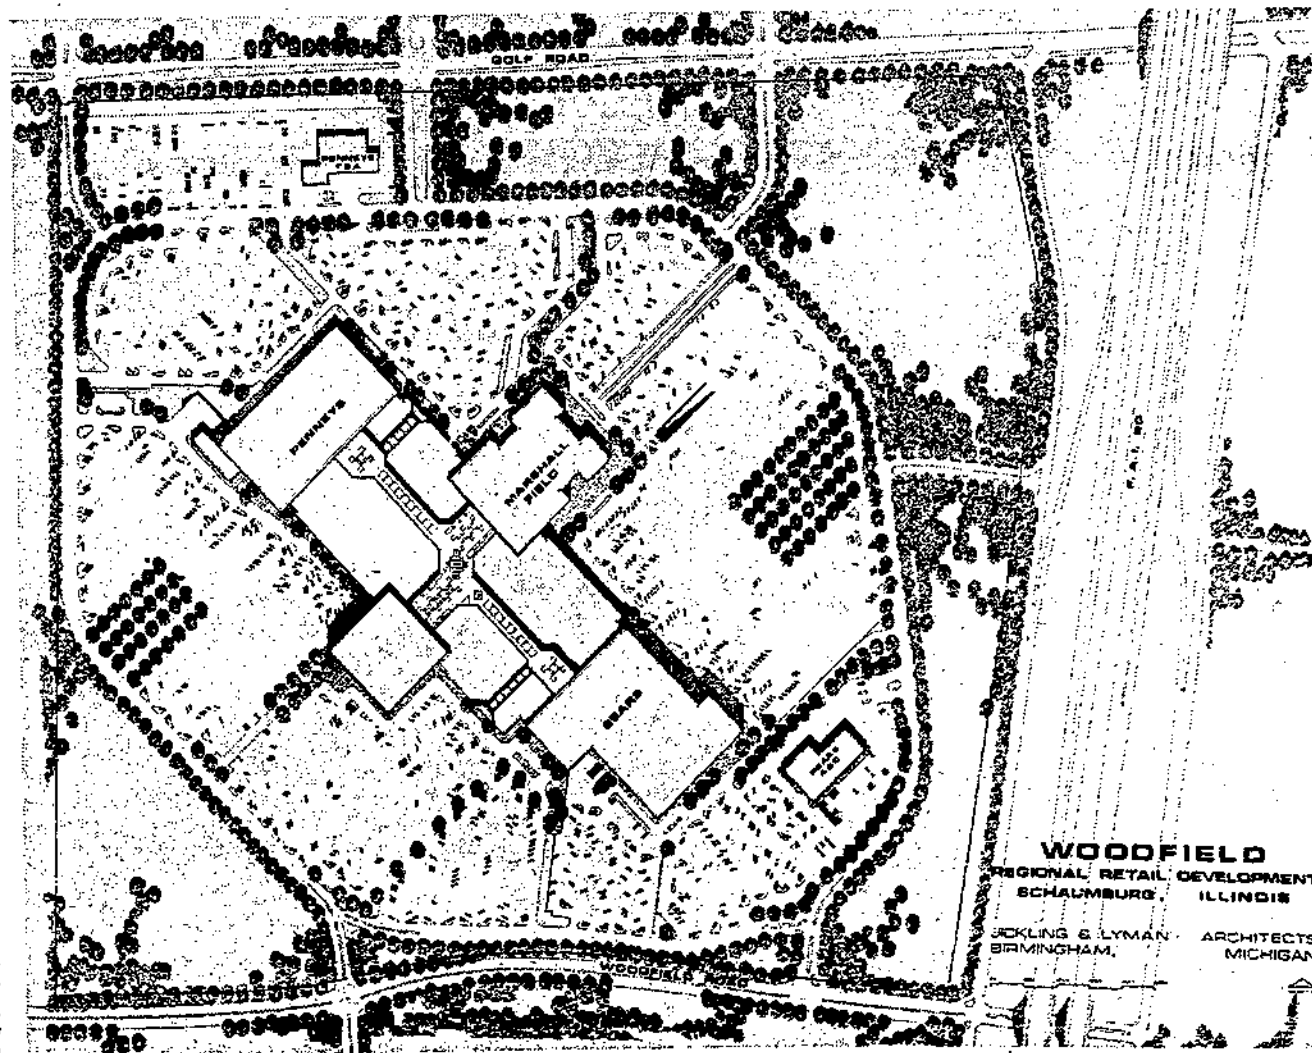

The Penney store will be 332,000 square feet, including 30,913 square feet for a separate auto service center. The two-story unit will be the firm's largest facility out of a total of nearly 1,700 stores operated. It will be a full-line department store, exemplifying one-stop shopping, said John E. Nelson, district manager.

THE MARSHALL FIELD store will have three levels, including two upper floors and a complete budget basement. It will be Field's ninth suburban store. The store will include women's apparel and accessories, apparel and furnishings for men, gift items, home furnishings and accessories and children's wear. Additional features will be a restaurant and beauty salon.

The Sears store is not only the company's largest retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago, but also the company's first in this area located in an enclosed mall. Occupying a gross area of 365,000 square feet, Sears will include a two-story main building, a detached automotive service center and a garden or seasonal sales area.

"Everything that Sears has learned in its 83 years of satisfying the merchandising and service needs of the American family will be incorporated in our new store," said Edward B. Petersen, general manager of Sears Chicago retail group.

It will also be a full-line department store with 58 sales departments offering around 130,000 items ranging from shoe-laces to central air-conditioning equipment.

WOODFIELD MALL is positioned diagonally in the center of the 191-acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars. Access will be provided along Golf Road, Interstate 90 frontage road, Higgins Road and Meacham

Road. Split-level parking will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level. Expansion space has been provided for a fourth department store. Architects are Jickling & Lyman of Birmingham, Mich.

The 'Gene Machine' Is Resting Quietly Now

by MARTHA MOSER

The "Gene Machine," the mobile campaign headquarters of Eugene Schlickman, took off running a week ago last Sunday and didn't stop until it hit Tuesday's 6 p.m. finish line.

Election day for the 13th District congressional primary found Arlington Heights' candidate broadcasting "Vote Republican, vote Schlickman" from a Dodge motor home.

Like many of his seven opponents in the GOP primary, Schlickman was spending the last few hours before polls closed visiting precincts and checking voting patterns.

IF ONE WONDERS why candidates always visit polls on election day, one campaign manager has an answer. "Frankly, it keeps him busy," he told a Herald reporter.

Schlickman showed no signs of nervousness election day as he sat, microphone in hand, in a stuffed vinyl-leather chair in a friend's mobile home.

"I was more nervous the first time I was a precinct captain," Schlickman said.

As the bus sped east on Euclid Avenue, he remarked about the beautiful weather. A bright sun was penetrating the morning chill. Colored leaves drifted in the breeze. Fair weather was said to be a good omen for those candidates like Schlickman, who fell on the moderate political scale.

SCHLICKMAN NOTED HE was conducting his ninth election campaign in the past 10 years. He had never lost an election.

"I've never enjoyed it with so much class, though," he said looking around the cabin on wheels.

The carpeted trailer had all the comforts of home, including refrigerator, stove, sink and dining room table. Robert Bishop, a former Arlington Heights trustee elected in 1953, had purchased the motor home in July and turned it into a "Gene Machine" for Schlickman's closing campaign.

Bishop said they had been putting 100 miles a day on the vehicle in the last week. Their planned election day jaunts would take them through Wheeling, Palatine and Elk Grove townships. Bishop was at the wheel. Schlickman was to his right on the microphone. At times, Bishop prompted the candidate advising him on what to say over the public address system.

AS THE BUS passed Memorial Gardens, Schlickman could not resist rehearsing his lines: "Today is the day we elect a Republican candidate for Congress."

Cruising through Randhurst Shopping Center in the stores' opening hours, his cheery "Good morning, ladies" frightened one woman. She jumped, then turned and grinned sheepishly.

"Sorry about that," Schlickman broadcasted. "Have a good day."

Bishop thought out loud that they should turn on music so a voice would not scare people.

"Good morning," the candidate tried again. "Today is the day we elect a Republican candidate for the Congress to replace Donald Rumsfeld. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Vote Republican, vote Schlickman."

"GOOD MORNING, SIR. I hope you voted today," the candidate called. The message was lost on a man who ignored the bus.

Schlickman had better luck around the corner.

"Good morning, kids. Did your parents vote today?" The children stopped and stared and their mother smiled.

The candidate kept broadcasting, although shoppers were scarce in the parking lot.

"I'm so sick and tired of hearing myself talk," the candidate remarked aside. "The repetition of it."

The bus headed north on Route 83 and stopped at the Camp McDonald Shopping Center so Schlickman could visit two polls.

PRECINCT 28 voting in a grocery store, had its official polling sign taped to a display of large sacks of dogfood. Two of the four women judges were knitting. There had been 57 out of a possible 500 votes cast by 10 a.m.

Schlickman left the store and as he stepped from the sidewalk to the parking lot, he noted a piece of his own literature in a puddle of Monday's rain.

"Schlickman was here," he said. Nothing was dampening his good mood.

Before crossing the street to another poll, he opened the bus door and called: "Now's the time to make coffee."

Then he saw Bishop crossing Camp McDonald Road, a steaming enamel coffee pot in his hands.

OVER IN THE upholstery shop, Precinct 13 judges said 35 out of 360 voters had been in. Four Democrats had voted, a judge said. She was also knitting.

Schlickman and Bishop figured about 10 per cent polling at each precinct where they stopped. Then they hit precinct 58, where 38 out of 656 had voted. At precinct 86, 31 out of 377 had voted.

The bus stopped at Palatine Road and Schlickman hopped out to pick up more precinct voting records. Then the bus went up to Dundee where it turned around in a K-Mart shopping center and headed back home.

"Good morning, firemen," he called as the bus passed the local Arlington Heights Road station.

He broadcast a few more voting reminders as the bus headed on to the Schlickman's Campbell Street headquarters, for a review on what was going on in the rest of the campaign fronts.

And the "Gene Machine" was parked along the curb.

GENE IN THE "Gene Machine" urged Wheeling Township residents to vote in the 13th District congressional election. "Vote Republican, vote Schlickman" was the oft-repeated sentence coming from a friend's Dodge motor home. Schlickman, candidate for 13th District congressman, was in the final hours of his ninth election campaign in 10 years. His "most nervous" race was when he ran for Arlington Heights trustee at age 29, he said. His hardest race was for the committeeman in 1966.

EVEN THOUGH the sign promised it was one way to Congress, Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights has learned there is no easy road to Washington, D.C. After weeks of intensive campaigning, he finally got to cast his ballot for 13th District congressman, and although his ballot is carefully folded, everyone assumed he voted for himself. His poll was in St. Viator High School.

Gene Knows That He's Out

by TOM WELLMAN and ALAN AKERSON

The quiet disbelief that marked Tuesday night at Gene Schlickman's Wheeling Township headquarters in the Arlington Catonsville Restaurant gave way to grim acceptance yesterday morning.

For the men and women, the veterans of other Wheeling Township campaigns, it was a disappointing defeat. Many had worked long hours to sell their candidate to the voters.

For the Schlick Chicks, the seemingly endless horde of youthful campaign workers, it must have been difficult to wake up yesterday and realize the fun and energy had not produced a winner.

FOR THE INNER circle — the men and women who stayed at Schlickman's office on Campbell Street — it was a bitter defeat. Yesterday some of them were looking for paying or volunteer jobs.

The wake began at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday when several precinct captains walked into the almost-empty Carousel basement and posted their precincts on the tally board.

Wheeling Township committeeman Richard Cowen and several others looked on quietly as Crane's total mounted. Crane was not tallying 5 or 10 per cent of the vote; he was scoring 15, 20 and even 30 per cent forays into precincts in "safe" Schlickman territory.

And Schlickman was not winning 70, 80 or 90 per cent. By 7 p.m., before the adding machines were whirring, a Herald tally of eight precincts showed Schlickman with only a 2-1 edge over Crane, with the other candidates — except Joe Mathewson and Sam Young — out of the picture.

AT THE REAR of the big room, Fred Yonkers and other volunteers took calls from other townships. And the bad news came early; for example, Schlickman tallied only a quarter of the Palatine Township vote, and the eastern townships were out of his grasp.

Slowly, precinct captains reported in with individual precincts, but the picture did not change. Schlickman was winning in the township, but he was not sweeping it. And he would need a sweep to gain the GOP nomination.

By the time 80 of the 89 precincts were in, Schlickman was holding about 43 per cent of the vote. Crane was holding at 27 per cent.

Finally, 87 of 89 precincts were in, and Schlickman had landed 42.5 per cent — 5,432 votes — of the township total. Crane, sweeping precincts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, tallied 26.7 per cent — 3,414 votes.

SCHLICKMAN couldn't manage to carry more than half of his township, and Crane had captured more than a quarter of it.

According to Ron Wittmeyer, Schlickman's finance chairman, his candidate needed to carry the township "by about a 3-1 margin."

"We also needed second place finishes for Gene in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships," he said.

Others agreed and began to wonder out loud why Crane had run so strong. Personal charisma, a powerful volunteer organization and a last-minute letter to voters from Crane's wife were all mentioned.

Cowen observed that several factors worked against Schlickman, including his legislative vote for the state income tax, support of HB 1241 (which antagonized many Prospect Heights voters) and the lack of any substantial eastern vote.

"CRANE MARSHALLED a strongly conservative vote. He's an effective platform speaker. He's articulate and a strong campaigner."

"He's accomplishing what all of us talked about; he carried one township and ran second or third in virtually every other," Cowen said.

Finally, Schlickman came over to officially thank his backers for their effort.

The man who had hoped to weld a powerful voting bloc in the western half of what has been called the most affluent Congressional district in America stood on a table with his wife and was generous with his thanks.

"During this campaign I learned more than I learned in any previous campaign and I met more dependable and wonderful people than in all of my previous eight campaigns."

"THERE ARE so many people I'd like to thank," he said, carefully and tiredly, "But if I did, we'd be here all night."

Later, he was asked if he would support Crane.

"I've always supported Republican candidates in the past without exception," he said firmly.

However, he would not comment on whether he would campaign for Crane.

How did Crane win? "Crane put forward a distinct philosophy that, in effect, set himself apart from the rest," said Schlickman.

THE CROWD OF 200 Republicans was beginning to filter out. Schlickman shook as many hands as he could, then joined a group of couples dancing as a small combo played. The campaign may have ended, but the party was going strong at 11:30.

Meanwhile, Cowen headed over to the Crane headquarters in Niles. For him, Schlickman's campaign was over, too.

Transit-Freeway Link Is Studied

A consulting firm studying the proposed Rand-Golf expressway is looking into the possibility of rail rapid transit with a freeway that would tie into the Chicago Transit Authority with commuter railroads.

This was part of a report that O. V. Anderson delivered to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission last night.

Anderson said the firm of H. W. Lochner is doing the study for the state. He said Lochner is exploring the possibility of combining mass transportation facilities with freeway facilities.

IN OTHER ACTION, the plan commission referred three proposed subdivisions to Victor Beisler's plat and subdivision committee.

The preliminary plats that were referred are the Highland Subdivision, 934 S. Highland; Doppke Subdivision, east side of Walnut between Kirchoff and Central; and the Windsor Road Subdivision on Windsor Drive, north of Palatine Road.

The commission also voted to continue the hearing on a rezoning request of manufacturing usage for 10 acres of property west of Arlington Heights Road and north of Fairview Lane.

Because the relocation of Arlington Heights Road may cut the property in half, the petitioner agreed to continue the hearing until the disposition of the village's main north-south artery is determined.

Bookstore Bookie Booked

by BARRY SIGALE

Palatine police Wednesday closed down a local bookmaker whose yearly intake ranged from $45,000 to $75,000.

Charged with keeping a gambling place was Arthur Ziarkowski, of 4907 Bluebird Court, Crystal Lake. He is the owner of the Palatine Book Shop, where police said bets were taken on horse races.

They estimated that between $150 and $250 in bets were taken in each day for five days a week and possibly six.

In a raid on the book store, police confiscated 12 betting slips, containing names of three or four horses running at Belmont, Hawthorne and other race tracks throughout the country, according to Robert Centner, police chief.

ALSO PICKED UP was over $200 in cash, which was apparently taken in from bettors and kept separate from the cash register, which held the day's receipts, police said.

Wednesday, police questioned some of the persons involved in placing bets, which apparently was only conducted in person, and from that information they had one of the bettors make another bet while they waited for the transaction to occur.

The man went inside, exchanged his money with Ziarkowski for betting slips and the police followed to make the arrest. The bettor then showed police where the book was located containing other betting slips.

Centner said there was no evidence that Ziarkowski was involved with a syndicate operation and that no pickup man was observed at any time.

"AS FAR AS WE KNOW, he was only making bets on horse racing. There is no indication that he had anything to do with football or baseball gambling."

Ziarkowski was released after posting 10 per cent of the $300 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 7.

Police said they began their investigation of the bookstore this spring and noted that the same persons had been seen each day entering and leaving the store. Their license numbers were recorded and the surveillance continued until the Arlington race track opened.

According to Centner, fewer persons who were coming in from day to day came to the store after the track opened, probably because bets could be placed directly.

The investigation was then resumed, according to police, when the track closed. Plainclothes officers failed in an attempt to place bets at the store, Centner said, indicating that betting was closed to the general public.

THE SAME ROUTINE was repeated after the track closed. There were a few hard-core bettors coming in every day, some twice a week, said Centner. Photographs were taken of the people who came in regularly.

"As long as scratch sheets keep coming out," said Centner, "and bettors can get this information daily, we are going to get this sort of set up. If they didn't get this information, we could stop this from happening."

Several members of the police department were involved in the investigation, which was led by Lt. Frank Ortiz and Sgt. Walter Schoenfeld.

Ziarkowski owned the book store for about three or four years, according to Centner. The store is located at Palatine Road and Bothwell.

Early Morn Bike Hike Attracts 50 Peddlers

About 50 persons got up at the crack of dawn Saturday to take part in the Arlington Heights Park District's free bike hike.

Meeting at the village's train station at 6 a.m., the cyclists left for Ned Brown Forest Preserve in Elk Grove. A few mothers with children riding on the back of their bikes in seats pooped out and went home rather than trying to complete the trip.

The harder cyclists who made it to the forest preserve dined on a breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, coffee, rolls and juice. Participants then played a game of volleyball before making the five-mile trip home.

Futurities

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements will hold a special meeting, at 8 p.m. today in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road.
